Magazines For Libraries

WE supply newspapers and magazines to reading rooms in every part of the country, among them many Y. M. C. A. libraries.

We have distinct advantages to offer the magazine buyer. Our agency is thoroughly systematized, and is in charge of experienced clerks, which enables us to execute every order promptly.

We get from one to ten thousand subscriptions annually for many leading periodicals, and large lists for others, and our customers receive the benefit of the special rates we are able to secure. Our prices are the lowest consistent with the prompt and faithful servive that we give.

We publish a list of about 2500 periodicals, with our net prices, which will be sent free upon request. Special estimates given upon any lists submitted to us. Our experience in this line of business makes us thoroughly conversant with the magazine market.

We append a few out of hundreds of indorsements that we have received.

Send us your lists for estimates and

YOU WILL BE EQUALLY PLEASED.

DES MOINES, IA., August 30, 1900.

"We have found the J. M. Hanson Subscription Agency to be THE BEST WE HAVE EVER DEALT WITH. We have received from them the lowest rates and the best satisfaction. They are careful in all of their dealings and WE HAVE NEVER LOST A MAGAZINE ORDERED THROUGH THEM. I can cheerfully recommend this agency to all Y. M. C. A. secretaries."

Respectfully,

[SIGNED] CHARLES F. JOHNSON,
General Secretary Y. M. C. A.

ST. PAUL, MINN., May 28, 1900.

"We are very much pleased with the services you have rendered our Association during the past two years and CAN HEARTILY RECOMMEND YOUR AGENCY TO ANY ONE WHO MAY BE THINKING OF DEALING WITH YOU We intend to continue patronizing you and expect to give you a big order again in the fall."

Very truly yours,

[SIGNED.] GEO. W. ASLING,
Educational Director Y. M. C. A.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, April 14, 1900.

"I have found your agency MORE SATISFACTORY THAN ANY WE HAVE HAD DEALINGS WITH. THE MAGAZINES HAVE COME PROMPTLY AND WITHOUT MISTAKES THROUGHOUT THE SEASON, and we wish to express appreciation of your well organized methods. Kindly call upon me, if I can help you in any way in this portion of the country in the matter of reference."

Yours very truly,

[SIGNED.] B. E. YOUNG.

RUSSELL, KY., July 10, 1900.

"I send my subscriptions annually to the J. M. Hanson Newspaper and Magazine Agency, of Lexington, Ky., and I HEARTILY RECOMMEND IT TO MY FELLOW-SECRETARIES AS PROMPT AND RELIABLE IN EVERY RESPECT."

Inspiring Books

A BOOK FOR THE HONEST DOUBTER

THE FACT OF CHRIST

By P. Carnegie Simpson. M.A. 12mo, cloth, $1.25

"It is a new and forceful statement of the fact and claim of Christianity. To me it is one of the finest statements of the atonement principle that I have ever read. Nothing I have seen appeals to me as getting nearer the heart of the truth than this volume."—G. Campbell Morgan.

"It puts the essential points in the Christian argument into a nutshell; it has the credit of discarding professional and hackneyed terms; it fights the modern weapons against modern foes; and it contains as much of the purpose as many far more pretentious volumes."—The Speaker.

By DUNCAN CAMPBELL MACGREGOR

G. H. C. Macgregor

A Biography. With Photogravure Portrait
8vo, cloth, $1.50

"Thousands have listened to him during the last decade in Chicago, Boston and particularly at Northfield. A scholar full of the missionary spirit, and a thoroughly manly man, this record of his life deserves place among the treasures of the Church for the quickening power of a noble example."—Outlook.

HOW TO PROMOTE AND CONDUCT

A Successful Revival

Edited by R. A. Torrey. 12mo, cloth, $1.50

A CYCLOPEDIA OF REVIVALS.

"Many successful evangelists have contributed to this book the results of their experience under as many topics as serve to exhibit the conditions they have found requisite to success. Such a treatment of the subject promises the largest satisfaction."—Outlook.

Margaret E. Sangster Says:

"Major Whittle's poems are wonderfully helpful and uplifting. They will be entitled to permanance in Christian literature. I cannot think of a book of verse which one can more appropriately lay beside the Bible, on the little table where one keeps books for the silent hour, than this sweet collection of sacred lyrics."

Prayer Meeting Talks.
12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.00

To some men is given the ability to condense to a postal card the contents of a sheet of foolscap, losing none of the orlginal thought in the process of reduction. The short talks of Dr. Banks would be to many a man sermons—there is many an idea in every talk—pointed and practical and usable.

THE MISSIONARY BOOK OF THE YEAR

Irene Petrie: A Woman's Life for Kashmir

By Mrs. Ashley Carus-Wilson. 8vo, cloth, with portrait, $1.50

With an introduction by ROBERT E. SPEER, Frontispiece, illustrations and colored maps. "Specially noteworthy both for the character of its subject and for the fact that it is the first biography of a student volunteer . . Should be in the library of every college for women"—Outlook.

"Unquestionably the missionary book of the year. No one interested in mission work can afford to miss this record of a singularly beautiful life, which takes rank with the lives of Dr. Paton and Mackay of Uganda."—The British Weekly.

Is the Bible worth STUDYING?

If so, it is worth studying systematically and by a REASONABLE METHOD. . . . . .

The Outline Study Course of the American Institute of Sacred Literature

(Directed by the Council of Seventy)

Provides such a method, covering in our years four great subjects:

THE LIFE OF CHRIST.
THE FORESHADOWINGS OF THE CHRIST.
THE FOUNDING OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.
THE WORK OF THE OLD TESTAMENT SAGES.

 The material presents careful and explicit directions for daily study, prepared by the best Old and New Testament scholars. The work is especially adapted to study in Y. M. C. A. Classes. Question sheets furnished. Certificates awarded.
 Annual expense, fifty cents. Time required, fifteen minutes daily. Secretaries should examine this plan, for the benefit of their Associations.

The Black Gown

By RUTH HALL. $1.50

CHICAGO JOURNAL—

"The Black Gown," by Ruth Hall, deserves place among the best historic novels that have appeared during a decade."

BROOKLYN EAGLE—

"The Black Gown" is one of the best historical novels of the year. It can be read for the pictures it gives of the time, as well as for the story's sake. It is for the latter that most people read a novel: in this instance there is no likelihood of disappointment."

ALBANY COUNTRY GENTLEMEN—

"The book has a freshness, a cleverness of plot, and a fullness of historical background, that ought to carry it near to the front rank of successful novels."

Forty-eight Volumes will be sent to you on receipt of $2.00

Payment thereafter to be at the rate of $2.00 per month for eleven months; cost to you per volume, 50 cents.

SCOTT'S classic works will be read as long as the English language endures, combining, as they do, the thrilling interest of romance with historical instruction. No library is a library without them. Here are some facts about this great offer :

1. There are forty-eight separate books in the set.
2. They occupy over four feet of space in a row. Size of cover. 5 x 7½ inches.
3. Each volume contains many pictures—there are over 2000 illustrations in all.
4. The books are printed on fine paper from large, new type.
5. They are bound in excellent cloth in permanent style, and should last a century.

This set is copied from the first complete edition of the Waverley Novels in 1829, revised and corrected by Scott himself—his own edition, perfect and representative of his genius.

. . . OUR OFFER . . .

We will send you the entire set of forty-eight volumes, charges prepaid, on receipt of $2.00. If you do not like the books when they reach you, send them back at our expense, and we will return the $2.00. If you do like them send us $2.00 every month for eleven months.

In order to keep you in touch with us, during these months, on receipt of your request for these books we will enter you as a subscriber to either HARPER'S MAGAZINE, HARPER'S WEEKLY, or HARPER'S BAZAR for one year without any additional cost to you. In writing, state which you want. Address

HARPER & BROTHERS, FRANKLIN SQUARE NEW YORK CITY.

This same set is also bound in half leather, with gold stamping on side and back. The price in this binding is $48. It will be sent on the same terms for $3 a month.

A History of Babylonia and Assyria.

By ROBERT WILLIAM ROGERS, Ph.D. (Leipzig), LL.D., F.R.G.S.

This new history of Babylonia and Assyria contains in Book I, Prolegomena, the most elaborate account ever written of all the explorations and excavations in Assyria and Babylonia as well as the history of the decipherment of the inscriptions. It is untechnical and popular in style, and is abundantly illustrated with copies of the inscriptions, showing the processes of decipherment. Book II gives the history of Babylonia from 4500 B. C. to the period of Assyrian domination, and Book III the history of Assyria to the fall of Nineveh. Book IV contains the history of the great Chaldean empire to the fall of Babylon.

Professor A. H. Sayce, of the University of Oxford, the most eminent Assyriologist of England, who read the entire work in manuscript, writes as follows:

DEAR PROFESSOR ROGERS:

I read your manuscript with the greatest interest and delight. Many thanks for the sight of it. The history you have given of the decipherment of the inscriptions is a veritable romance, and for the first time has been given completely. It ought to be widely read.

Your history of Babylonia has been brought up to the present level of knowledge and tells us all that can be known at present on the subject. I know of nothing, at all events in English, which at all approaches it in completeness. No fact seems to have escaped you, and you have studied and weighed, I see, whatever has been written on the matter by modern Assyriologists.

Yours very truly, A. H. SAYCE.

All histories of Babylonia and Assyria published prior to 1880 are hopelessly antiquated by the archæological discoveries of the great expeditions to the valley of the Tigris and Euphrates. Students of ancient oriental history in general, and of the history of Israel in particular, have long desired a new history of the Babylonians and Assyrians which should be consistently based on original sources, and yet so written as to be intelligible and interesting to men who are not specially trained in the subject. It is confidently believed that this great gap in modern historical literature is filled by this new history.

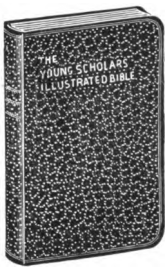
Printed in Clear Ruby Type on Fine Bible Paper.



Containing an Illuminated Title, Thirty-two Illustrations and a Full, Simple and Interesting Description of each Picture.

By W. H. RYLANDS, F. S. A.,

SECRETARY TO THE SOCIETY OF BIBLICAL ARCHÆOLOGY.

THE illustrations in this Bible are not mere imaginary pictures of well-known events in Bible History, but have been selected with the idea of putting forward a book that will both interest and instruct, and show that the records of our faith do not stand alone, but are supported by contemporary evidence. The explanations are simple, easily understood, and the whole work cannot fail to be appreciated.

The Variorum Bible, WITH OR WITHOUT TEACHER'S HELPS.

The REV. N. P. PELOUBET says: "Probably the most complete and perfect Bible for teachers and pastors in existence is the Variorum Teacher's Edition, published by Eyre and Spottiswoode. It not only has the helps usually found in Teachers Bibles revised and improved to the very latest date, but it has at the foot of each page the various Renderings and Readings, with the authorities, so that at a glance the teacher can know whether he is speaking by authority, can correct his impressions, and can receive no little light on the meaning of all difficult passages. It brings at a glance what could elsewhere be gained by long research or special books. It is beautifully printed, beautifully bound. It is a work of art as well as of learning."—Senior Sunday School Quarterly,

The TEXT is the AUTHORIZED VERSION with the passages marked where the rendering is considered faulty by scholars, and where the reading of the original text is found to vary from the best and more recently discovered MSS., Versions, Translations, etc.

All the best critical editions and translations, including the Revised Version, are collated up to date. The breif explanatory notes and interpretations have been increased, and

The Poetical portions of the Text are set out in parallelisms characteristic of Hebrew Poetry.

The notes thus collated place before the reader the evidence for or against alterations of the Revised Version, and the authorities that confirm the same.

The sources from which these Annotations are taken comprise, in the

Used in many Y. M. C. A. Bible Classes with great satisfaction

The International Y.M.C.A. Committee on Systematic Bible Study

In its last Annual Prospectus recommends for Association use the Progressive Grade of the Three Historical Courses of THE BIBLE STUDY UNION (BLAKESLEE) LESSONS.

namely:

OUTLINES OF OLD TESTAMENT HISTORY. Genesis to Malachi. The preparation of the world for Christ as seen in the history of the Chosen People.

THE GOSPEL HISTORY OF JESUS CHRIST. Matthew to John. Christ's reception by men and His work on earth as described by the four Evangelists.

THE HISTORY OF THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH. Acts to Revelation. The result of Christ's work as seen in the planting and growth of the Apostolic Church.

THESE THREE COURSES TOGETHER give a comprehensive and connected outline view of the entire Biblical history, and afford one that familiarity with the Bible as a whole, and that definite and well-arranged knowledge of its principal events and teachings, which are the best helps to the Christian life, and the best foundation for an intelligent and profitable study of special Biblical books, doctrines, institutions, etc.

FOR BOYS' CLASSES

The Committee recommends the Biographical series of these lessons instead of the Historical, in the Junior and Intermediate grades according to age.

ALMOST A MAN.

A FRANK TALK TO A BOY WHO WAS "ALMOST A MAN," AND THE GOOD IT DID HIM.

AS it is in story form, every boy will read it, and be the better for it, as was the boy in the story.

Y. M. C. A. secretaries find it just what they need to help the boys in their classes to gain ideals of purity and right thinking.

Fathers should put it into the hands of their boys as a safeguard against the wrong instruction that others may try to give their sons.

Highly endorsed by "Association Men" and by all Y. M. C. A. secretaries who have seen the book.

PRICE, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

ETHICAL MARRIAGE,

By DELOS F. WILCOX, Ph. D.

Treats of the all-important question of marriage from a standpoint not taken by any other writer. The thoughts are new, and will be considered advanced by many. Every thinking young man should carefully read and consider the philosophical basis for marriage here presented. The book is all practical in its presentation of the right marital relations; it answers in a thorough and satisfactory manner the question which must arise in the mind of every one contemplating marriage: "How shall I live so as to receive the most happiness from this new relation?"

Price, $1.25.

HOMO-CULTURE,

Or the Improvement of Offspring Through Wiser Generation.

By M. L. HOLBROOK, M. D.

This book, under its old title of "Stirpiculture," has attracted widespread attention. The subject of the betterment of the human race is the most important one that we have to consider. Young and old should alike be interested in it. Every one should read this clear presentation of this great subject. Especially should those contemplating marriage read this book.

Cloth Binding, $1.00. Paper Binding, 50c.

Oxford Teachers' Bibles

Light, thin, compact, beautifully printed on Oxford India Paper.

Just Published. The Ideal Book for Bible Students,

The Oxford Two-Version Bible

With References. Large Type Edition.

Being the Authorized Version with the difference of the Revised Version printed in the margins, so that both texts can be read from the same page. Size, 8⅛ x 5¾ x ⅞. Printed on fine white and the famous Oxford India Papers. From $2.00 upwards.

October 20, 1900.

"It appears to me by far the best edition of the Bible yet issued for the use of Theological Students, Clergy, and all others desiring to study carefully the text of the Bible. I have hitherto used the Revised Version as the main English text with my classes. The difficulty which I have always felt that in this way they are not enabled to use more intelligently the older Version will be obviated by the use of this Two-Version Edition." REV. PROF. W. C. BODY, D.D., General Theological Seminary, New York.

October 24, 1900.

"I congratulate you upon the plan and its execution. You have absolutely solved the long standing problem, and have placed in our hands both Versions so admirably co-ordinated as to give any Bible student at one glance the mastery of two translations. I can unreservedly commend it."
REV. PROF. ROBERT W. ROGERS, D.D.,
Drew Seminary.

Price 25c. each.

FASCINATION.

This game certainly merits it name. It consists of a top, eight marbles, and a board. The board is slightly concave in shape, is proteced by a light rim and contains eight depressions each the size of a marble. These are numbered from 1 to 8. Put the eight marbles in the centre of the board and spin the top among them. The result is to scatter the marbles in all directions. If they do not at once roll into one of the depressions, they will return to the centre of the board, to be hit again by the top, which is still spinning. This continues until the top stops, when the score is found by adding the numbers of the depressions which have been filled by the marbles. Price 25c. each.

All these Games are sold by leading Book, Stationery, Toy and Department Stores in the United States, or mailed, postpaid.

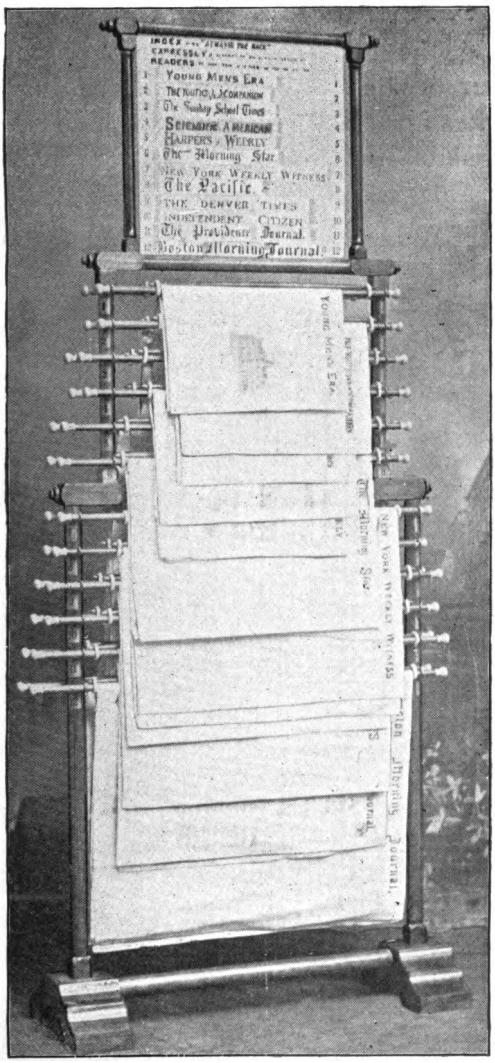
J. H. ATWATER,

ANTHONY, R. I. (Formerly of Providence, R. I.)

MANUFACTURER OF THE ATWATER NEWSPAPER FILES

AND FILE RACKS FOR READING ROOMS.

BUSINESS ESTABLISHED IN 1863.



THIS illustration from a photograph shows a Three-story File Rack with six Files on each side of the first story and six Files on each side of the second story, uprights, supported by brass hooks. The third story is the Index, which is preferred by some.

Twelve Files of any three consecutive lengths between bands, can go on the first story, and twelve of any other three consecutive lengths smaller, can go on second story. The lengths between the bands is 12-14 16-18-20-22-24-26-28-30 32-34-36-38 and 40 in.

This Rack occupies floor room, only about one foot wide by three feet in length—a great advantage in economy of room.

It weighs only about twenty pounds, and is very portable and is usually sent by express in a package, each piece protected and can be readily set up at its destination. Illustrated price list sent free both of files and racks

The size most frequently ordered is for Files eighteen to twenty-eight inches between bands. The racks are usually made of whitewood finished nicely with two coats of either orange or mahogany colored shellac. If Oak Racks are ordered they will cost one dollar extra.

The Atwater Files and Racks are now, and long have been the standard article in general use.

ADDRESS, J. H. ATWATER, ANTHONY, R. I.

META KAFER JEMISON, Reader

META KAFER JEMISON showed in her recitations remarkable elocutionary ability. Her selections were good, her presence and manner attractive and easy, and her voice musical. —Trenton State Gazette.

Everybody enjoyed the recitations. I think MISS JEMISON is an elocutionist of unusual promise and very pleasing to any audience.
J. HOWARD FAIRCHILD,
Pastor Hedden M. E. Church, N. Y. City.

All who heard MISS JEMISON, were impressed with the fact that she has the making of a first class reader, a good voice, a pleasing presence, naturalness and the ability to understand the characters she attempts to portray.
W. H. PATRICK, Sec., Studio Choral, N.Y. City

META KAFER JEMISON, the young Reader delighted our Sabbath School and Congregation with her admirable rendering of various selections. I heartily recommend her to our Sabbath Schools and Churches.
JAMES YEREANCE, Supt. Sunday School,
Central Presbyterian Church.
West. 57th St. New York City.

META KAFER JEMISON, carried off the honors of the evening in the rendition of "Silly Billy" and a "Jolly Brick." N. Y. Tribune.

It is no discredit to the rest of the entertainers to say that MISS JEMISON was the artist of the evening. Her rendition of Eugene Fields' "Jest 'fore Christmas" and James Whitcomb Riley's "A Boy's Mother" was exquisite. G. A. WARBURTON, in Railroad Men.

BIENNIAL REPORTS OF THE AGENTS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE

1899-1900

ADMINISTRATION

REPORT OF RICHARD C. MORSE

General Secretary

I.—General Administration:

The International Committee in reporting to the Jubilee Convention its enlarged work has desired the general secretary to include in his statement some of the items which have heretofore been referred to in the report submitted by the chairman.

At the Grand Rapids convention, for the two years then closing, the committee reported unprecedented growth in the work entrusted to it. This was due chiefly to the undertaking of the army and navy work during the late Spanish war. Since the Grand Rapids convention similar enlargement has been realized especially upon the foreign field. This extension both at home and abroad seemed to call for a readjustment and reorganization in the administration of the committee's work through its subcommittees and secretaries. This adjustment as set forth in the report of the committee, has resulted in giving to the general secretary the much needed cooperation of two associates, Clarence J. Hicks in the home, and John R. Mott in the foreign work.

Subcommittees have also been added upon the religious work, the boys' work, and the management of Association Men, the publication of which the Grand Rapids convention authorized the committee to undertake.

II.—Committee Meetings:

The work of the committee is now distributed to fifteen subcommittees, whose reports have been carefully reviewed and acted upon at the regular monthly meetings of the working quorum in New York city.

The regular fall conferences of the committee and its secretaries were held at Long Beach., N. Y, September 2-5, 1899, and at Sea Girt, N. J., September 1-5, 1900. Each of these gatherings thus far has surpassed its predecessor in attendance and value. Every secretary presents a statement of his work during the past year and of his hopes and desires for the future.

After the conference of the committee with all the employed officers has adjourned, the secretaries engaged in the same line of work tarry to meet, each group with the sub-committee in charge of it. General outlines of future effort are determined, to be carried out after due consultation with state and local assoociation authorities. While the gatherings have been most impressive to those who have lately become connected with the committee's work, expressions of surprise and satisfaction are often heard from the more experienced, who have been busy in their special fields and hence not fully aware of the wide and varied work undertaken.

At the conference of 1900 special attention and instructions were given in each department concerning the mutual relationships of comity and conference between the International Committee and the state or provincial committees as "established by usage hitherto," and as emphasized by the action of the Grand Rapids convention.

Harmony in these relations was still further promoted at the biennial meeting of the general secretaries' conference (June 1900) in a section conference of international, state and metropolitan secretaries. This section held an adjourned meeting for two days (October 14 and 15, 1900) in Philadelphia, and passed unanimously resolutions in accord with the action of the Grand Rapids convention.

The annual dinner meetings of the committee and its friends in New York, November 17, 1899 and November 16, 1900, were attended by an unusual number of guests and were improved as valuable opportunities for the review of the entire work.

III.—Jubilee Convention:

The preparations for the Jubilee convention, begun promptly on the adjournment of the Grand Rapids convention and in obedience to its instruction, have been assiduously continued. Almost every member of the committee's force has been from time to time enlisted. A special secretarial Jubilee committee was appointed and organized. The Boston association has cooperated with great efficiency. The preparation of the exhibit has required unusual exertion under the faithful leadership of the educational secretary, George B. Hodge.

IV.—The Field Work:

Field Secretary C. K. Ober has continued his service of general field supervision, with headquarters at Chicago, but has given one-fourth of his time to the foreign work. Field Secretaries C. L. Gates, W. B. Millar, C. S. Ward and (since Sept. 1899) C. C. Michener, have continued their service respectively in the southern, the eastern, the northwestern and the southwestern divisions. Mr. Millar, however, has given a considerable portion of his time to the administration of the Army and Navy Department.

The contemplated addition of another field secretary to its permanent force in the coming fall will enable the committee to consummate its long cherished object of giving to another important section of the North American field the accessible and continuous service of a resident field secretary.

In all parts of the field substantial progress has been made. Valuable assistance has been given to state and provincial committees. Important city associations have been strengthened, and in some cases effectively reorganized. Timely aid has been rendered in many critical emergencies. State committees temporarily without state secretaries have been served by the field secretaries, state conventions arranged for, and state work continued which otherwise would have been abandoned. Several states have also been helped to secure permanent state secretaries.

In the fall of 1899 Fred B. Smith became temporarily associated with the Field Department as a special secretary for the religious work, and in the fall of 1900 Don O. Shelton was added to the force for similar service. The plan on which the work of both Mr. Smith and Mr. Shelton has been conducted is that of visitation among the associations for the purpose of awakening, informing and organizing their officers, committeemen and active members with reference to the whole scheme of the association religious work. The results have been in the highest degree encouraging and have led to a general demand for the enlargement of this special emphasis on the religious work in all departments. The expense of the work of Messrs. Smith and Shelton has been met in part by payments from the associations and the state committees which have desired their help, and partly by special gifts independent of the committee's treasury.

Robert Weidensall, honorary and senior secretary of the committee, has continued to devote himself, so far as his health and private engagements have allowed, and with only nominal expense to the committee, to the development of the county work and the enlistment and training of volunteer workers in the associations. Edgefield County, S. C., received a month's visit from John Lake at the expense of the committee.

T. T. Hazlewood has done a large and valuable work in the East under general direction of the committee, but the expense of his work has been met by the state committees and the associations aided. Some visitation was also done by E. W. Hearne.

V.—Work for Special Classes :

1. The Railroad Department. In the Railroad Department there has been a steady and substantial growth during the last two years. One remarkable feature indicating that this work is no longer regarded as an experiment is the large number of new buildings erected ; of the 25 buildings erected, 19 were for new associations.

The membership of the railroad associations now numbers 41,794, an increase of 9,756 or thirty per cent in two years. Most of the growth has been in connection with the system plan of organization and development. The force of railroad secretaries employed by the committee is the same as reported two years ago, Clarence J. Hicks devoting over one-half his time to general administration in this department, and his five associates working within definite fields, as follows : Edwin L. Hamilton, Central West ; H. O. Williams, Southeast ; John F. Moore, Northeast ; George D. McDill, West ; Fred. B. Shipp, Southwest.

During about eight months of each year J. M. Burwick has visited railroad associations under general direction of the committee, to aid in evangelistic work and Bible study. During the past year he has been accompanied by Paul Gilbert, well known as a member of the association quartet. The expense of this work has been borne, as heretofore, entirely by the associations visited.

At the call of the committee, the tenth international conference of the Railroad Department was held in Philadelphia, Pa., October 11-14, 1900. The conference, made up of 1,170 delegates, was entertained by the Pennsylvania Railroad department and by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The proceedings have been published and widely circulated among railroad officials and employees.

Through the generosity of Miss Helen Miller Gould the committee has been enabled to provide libraries for the railroad associations located on the Gould lines at Texarkana, Poplar Bluff, Ft. Scott, Moberly, Decatur, St. Thomas and Niagara Falls.

The interesting details in the growth of this department are given in the reports of the six railroad secretaries.

2. Student Department. The work of this department has increased in extent and results, as is shown in detail by the reports of its secretaries.

John R. Mott has continued to act as the senior secretary of the department and as the general secretary of the World's Student Christian federation. In August, 1900, the convention of the federation was held in Versailles, France, and the meeting of the general committee was held in connection with this convention. The extent and influence of the federation has steadily increased. Mr. Mott was present at these meetings. He has also served as secretary of the Foreign Department of the International Committee for the administration of the work on the mission field. The support of Mr. Mott for his entire many-sided work has been continued through the special gifts of friends without tax upon the committee's treasury.

The administration of the home student work has been shared by H. P. Andersen. Harry Wade Hicks has continued to visit colleges in Canada and the East, and H. M. McIlhany, Jr., in the South. Until July, 1900, the work in the West was served with rare ability and devotion by the late H. W. Rose, who was succeeded by E. T. Colton. George Gleason visited preparatory schools until the summer of 1900, when he was succeeded by F. Boyd Edwards. Theological seminaries were visited by S. Earl Taylor, and special aid among these institutions was given by A. H. Ewing. Henry White and his successor, W. C. McKee, have served as office secretaries.

Owing to delay in finding a permanent secretary for the Bible study department, this has been administered by Mr. Andersen. The Bible study courses of the Student Department are meeting with increasing favor. Fully 14,000 students are enrolled in voluntary Bible classes or circles in the associations.

Mr. Mott and Mr. Andersen have served as members of the Executive Committee of the Student Volunteer Movement. Its work in cultivating the missionary department has been increasingly fruitful Student summer conferences were held in 1899 and 1900 at Pacific Grove, Lake Geneva, Asheville and Northfield. The total attendance in 1900 was 1,228, a larger number than in any previous year. To meet special conditions on the Pacific Coast, the time of that conference was changed to the Christmas holidays, when a session was held with increased numbers and effectiveness. Presidential conferences and a deputation conference have also been useful in training leaders.

The Intercollegian, published jointly by the committee and by the Student Volunteer Movement, has continued its valuable work of stimulating, instructing and unifying the associations in the student field.

The first theological convention was held in Allegheny, Pa., November, 1900, with an attendance of 193 from 47 institutions. It was successful in every particular and showed marked progress in the work in the seminaries. In response to a general demand, a report of the convention has been published.

The increased strength of the student work can be seen in the larger number of student general secretaries. Sixty-nine men are now employed for the whole or a part of their time as local, metropolitan, state and international student secretaries. Buildings have been completed at Williams College, Princeton University and Union College, while buildings are in the course of erection at Columbia University and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

3. Army and Navy Department. This work has continued under W. B. Millar as secretary, assisted in the army work by J. H. Banks, and in the navy work by F. L. Smith and Chaplain Wesley O. Holway, D.D., U. S. N. Most of the early association effort in the army was with volunteer troops, but now the soldiers of the regular army begin to look upon the association as an integral and important feature of army life and they are joining it in increasing numbers. This has led to the extension of the work to Alaska, including four of the isolated garrisons scattered from Skagway to Cape Nome. In China our work has not only been a boon to our own men at Tientsin and Peking, but an object lesson to the other armies. The building provided by General Chaffee as headquarters and principal station for the work in Peking was conveniently situated for German and English soldiers and they were welcomed to the use of the privileges provided in it. In both Porto Rico and Cuba the work has been maintained and a large portion of the troops serving in both islands have been benefited.

The work in the Philippines has produced excellent results, winning the confidence and esteem of civil officers as well as those of the army and navy. Many new points have been reached and the number of organizations has been more than doubled. In cooperation with the provincial committee of Ontario and Quebec, three representatives were sent with the detachments of Canadian troops serving in South Africa.

The traveling library system is a great blessing to men in isolated garrisons. Other lines of educational work have been taken up in many of the fields. The first association army building was dedicated in October, 1900, at Governor's Island, by the army department of the New York city association.

While the secular lines have been emphasized, the distinctively religious work has not been slighted. Many men have been reached by evangelistic meetings. The Soldiers' Bible and Prayer League of the Army Young Men's Christian Association binds many men together by a pledge to daily prayer and Bible study. The constantly increasing membership in different parts of the world where our soldiers are stationed indicates that the organization will have a strong influence in developing their religious life.

The passage of the army reorganization bill imposes upon the associations a new responsibility to provide places of resort for the men and to bring to them the religious influences furnished by the associations to the young men of our cities and towns. The money needed for two army post association buildings is already promised.

The sailors and marines of the navy have also felt the beneficent influence of the association even when at distant stations. The work has been developed both ashore and afloat.

A friend has provided the large amount necessary for the new naval branch building in Brooklyn, and while this is being erected the work is carried on in temporary quarters. The statistics for the past year show the marked appreciation of the men.

At Cavite, P. I., the authorities have granted the use of a building, and this has been fitted up by the committee and a very helpful work is being prosecuted. Quantities of reading matter, games, etc., have been shipped to this and other points for the Asiatic Squadron.

On shipboard a number of ship associations have been formed, and various association features, especially upon educational, temperance and religious lines, have been inaugurated and are developing with great promise.

A rear admiral, in speaking of the association organized on his flagship, said that he had noticed a marked improvement in the conduct of the men, and attributed it to the work of the association.

4. Work for Colored and Indian Young Men. W. A. Hunton has labored very effectively among the associations for colored young men, which have made decided progress when all their difficulties are taken into consideration. In caring throughout this wide field for both the city and the student associations, Mr. Hunton has been ably seconded, especially in the city work, by his associate, J. E. Moorland. The two annual conferences in 1899 and the four held in 1900 were reported by several experienced association men who participated in them as remarkable meetings. Methods of work were carefully studied, deep spiritual impressions were received, and a decided impulse was given to the work of the department.

The work among Indian young men has been prosecuted by Arthur T. Tibbetts, under the care of the field secretaries. The summer school in 1899, and the association and Bible study conferences in 1900, were very successful in the training of leaders. In the association season of 1900 and 1901 over 1,000 Indian young men were enrolled in Bible classes.

VI.—Physical, Educational and Religious Work Departments:

1. Physical Department. Dr. Luther Gulick and George T. Hepbron have given counsel with reference to the building and equipping of gymnasiums; they have presented the physical work at conferences and conventions, and have supervised the arrangements for the physical directors' conferences. Advice has been given regarding exhibitions and field days, and personal service has been given in their conduct. Definite work has been done in the clean sport campaign. The Association Athletic League has afforded opportunity for those associations wishing it to enter into athletic competition. The monthly league letter has kept the membership informed as to new developments in connection with the work and its scientific section has dealt with the scientific aspects of the physical training problems of the association. As has always been the case, the committee's engagement with Dr. Gulick has been for a portion of his time.

One hundred and two associations are members of the Association

Athletic League; 1,965 men have been registered; 450 sanctions for games have been issued; 42 associations not in the league have applied for registration of their men. George W. Ehler of Chicago has continued to cooperate with the league in the central West.

2. Educational Department. The work of this department has steadily developed in strength and quality, under the direction of George B. Hodge. While the number of different associations giving definite attention to educational features has not largely increased, the number of men helped and the efficiency of the work done is much in excess of any previous period. The students have given more hours to the work each season, the attendance is more regular, and the faithfulness and ability of the teachers have increased. The students show their appreciation of the work by paying extra tuition fees. These fees in total have grown from $2,000 in 1893 to $38,000 in 1900.

The growth and interest in the examinations have been very encouraging. Eight new subjects of study have been added, making twenty-six altogether. In 1899, 102 associations participated and 972 men won international certificates; in 1900, 134 associations participated and 1,566 men won certificates. The examination system has so strengthened the educational work that a similar one was instituted in Bible study last year, and was carried on under the same management and regulations as the educational examinations. This first experience has already proved very beneficial to the work in Bible study.

Considerable progress has also been made in improving the work of the literary societies by means of new pamphlets on that subject.

The fourth international educational exhibit at the Grand Rapids convention was by far the most practical, extensive and helpful one ever arranged. Exhibits were made for the first time by the physical, army and navy, Bible study and junior departments; to these were added pictures and plans of association buildings.

On October 1, 1900, A. G. Bookwalter was secured to give for the present special attention to promoting social economics, civics and the affiliated subjects. He has shown himself tactful, able and successful.

The complete reports of this department are published annually July 1, after the close of the school year, and consequently are separate from the Year Book.

3. Religious Work Department. In this department Edwin F. See, general secretary of the Brooklyn association, has continued his gratuitous and invaluable cooperation. In preparing and developing the religious work prospectuses of 1899, 1900 and 1901, including the varied courses of Bible studies, he has sought and received the cooperation of international, state and local secretaries. Fred B. Smith and Don O. Shelton, mention of whose work in its relation to the field secretaries has already been made, brought valued suggestion from their close contact with the religious work of the associations. In this work the emphasis of Mr. Shelton's effort has been directed to the promotion of Bible study in the associations, and that of Mr. Smith has included conferences of active workers and the holding of evangelistic meetings for young men which have resulted in many hopeful conversions. The committee has received strong and wide commendation of all this special religious work, as done by its representatives above named, and this has been accompanied by urgent solicitation to continue and extend the work. In line with such extension the committee last December called Fred S. Goodman, formerly secretary of the Cleveland association and of late years state secretary of New York, to become a secretary of the committee in connection with this important department. Mr. Goodman has accepted the call, and enters upon his office June 1, 1901.

VII.—Boys' Department:

For many years the committee has been solicited to give study and attention to the boys' department by the employment of a special secretary for that work, but no provision for such a secretary accompanied the call until the biennial meeting of the North American general secretaries at Thousand Island Park, June, 1900. At that meeting a strong sentiment in favor of such an international secretary was manifested, and so much of the money needed for his employment for the first year was pledged that the balance was secured soon after the meeting, chiefly through the efforts of the committee's field secretary, William B. Millar.

The attention of the committee was called to the qualification for the proposed secretaryship of E. M. Robinson, who, in September, 1900, accepted a call to this position on the international force. His efficient work has already demonstrated the value of the new departure.

VIII.—Secretarial Department:

From January 1, 1899, to December 31, 1900, 248 men were aided by international secretaries in entering the service of the associations. Personal interviews or correspondence were held with 555 others, 312 of whom were not fitted to undertake the work or for other reasons did not enter it; 131 found places in it through their own efforts; 46 already in the work remained in the positions which they occupied and 66 left it.

Four hundred and sixty applications for men were received, 14 of which were for state secretaries and assistants, 201 for general secretaries, 111 for assistants, 130 for physical directors and 4 for educational directors. Of these 460 vacancies, the committee's secretaries assisted in filling 248 and 212 were filled by the action of others. Of the vacancies that we helped to fill, 10 were in Canada, 34 in New England, 75 in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; 78 in states west of these and 51 in the South. Seven were for state secretaries, 3 for assistant state secretaries, 57 for general secretaries of city and village associations, 45 for assistants, 55 for physical directors, 2 for educational directors, 48 for railroad secretaries, 17 for railroad assistants and 14 for college secretaries.

The extensive correspondence from the office on these matters was conducted by John Glover, in connection with the discharge of other varied duties.

IX.—The Central Office:

The multiplying work at the central office has called for careful administration. Upon it depends much of the efficiency of what is attempted by the committee on the wide association field. To aid Mr. Uhl, its veteran office secretary, in his ever increasing work, a secretarial office committee has been appointed, consisting of C. J. Hicks, W. E. Lougee, and John Glover. On this committee Mr. Glover acts as associate office secretary.

Under the management of George L. Leonard, the publication department continues to serve efficiently all departments of the association brotherhood. Fifty-nine new publications or revisions were issued during 1899 and 1900. A list of these follows:

Year Book for 1899 and 1900.

Encouraging reports were received from the November day and week of prayer. The office and traveling force of the committee united in vigorous effort for its promotion.

X.—Financial Effort:

In connection with the work at the central office and the general administration, the financial department has received, as heretofore, special attention from the general secretary. With great efficiency Mr. Lougee has cared for and stimulated the wide solicitation which has been necessary. He has been ably seconded by his associates. Associations and their friends have so generously responded that the committee has closed each of the fiscal years 1900 and 1901 with a small balance in the treasury. In the reports of the committee and of Mr. Lougee further details of this important department will be found.

XI.—Foreign Work:

The enlargement of the foreign work is carefully reported by its secretary, Mr. Mott. Its administration has called for unusual care and labor. C. K. Ober has cooperated in this administration, and has very efficiently brought the work and workers on the field into closer touch and sympathy with their fellow workers at home. Very encouraging reports are received from all our secretaries in foreign lands.

XII.—Reports of Corresponding Members:

The following reports of corresponding members have been received and form a part of the Year Book: Australasia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Canadian West, Maritime Provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Hawaii, Yukon District, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland group, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon-Idaho, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont-New Hampshire, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin.

XIII.—Relations to State and Provincial Conventions:

In response to requests from state committees, arrangements were made for the representation of the committee at sixty-two state and provincial conventions during 1899 and 1900. The full list of these conventions and representatives is given on another page. The committee continues to receive strong evidence of the usefulness of these representatives in the urgency with which their presence is sought from year to year by those responsible for the conduct of the conventions.

XIV.—Relief for Texas Sufferers:

The terrible disaster experienced through flood by the city of Galveston wrecked the association building and work of that city and also inflicted damage upon the state work in Texas. In response to an appeal sent out by the International Committee $2,465.28 were received and forwarded to the Galveston association and $254.41 to the state committee. Smaller amounts designated as tokens of personal sympathy for the Galveston general secretary and physical director were also sent through the committee's office. The disaster to that city has been entirely unprecedented, and the need of the brethren there for practical sympathy in the form of contributions to maintain their work will continue for the present year and probably for a yet longer period.

XV.—The Relation to the World's Conference and to the World's Student Christian Federation :

Important correspondence has been maintained with the committee of the World's Conference at Geneva, Switzerland. A full meeting of this committee was held near Paris, at Versailles, in July, 1900, at which Mr. James Stokes, one of the American members of the Committee, was present, with the general secretary, John R. Mott and Clarence J. Hicks.

Following this meeting at Versailles, the general committee of the World's Student Christian Federation assembled and was attended by the general secretary, also by Mr. Mott, as general secretary of the Federation, and by H. P. Andersen and F. P. Turner, American student secretaries.

The deliberations of both these conferences had important relation to the development of the association work in all lands.

XVI.—Personal Visitation :

The general secretary has attended the international secretaries' conferences and the student summer schools at Northfield. He has attended several state conventions and conferences with association officers, and has delivered anniversary and other addresses.

He has also continued to serve as chairman of the graduate committee of the Yale Young Men's Christian Association, and as trustee of the association training schools at Springfield and Chicago. He has cooperated with the National Council of Great Britain as its corresponding member for America, with the Central International Committee as its American honorary secretary, and with the World's Student Christian Federation as one of the American members of its general committee.

REPORT OF CLARENCE J. HICKS

Associate General Secretary for Home Work and Railroad Secretary.

General Work.—My work during the two years covered by this report has been as heretofore largely in the line of the Railroad Department, but in accordance with the instructions of the committee I devoted considerable time during the year 1900 to matters connected with the general administration of the home work. No attempt will be made in this report to specifically cover this portion of my work, as it has been closely connected with the home work reported by Mr. Morse.

The change has involved my spending more time at the office than in any previous years, although frequent visits to different parts of the field, attendance upon state conventions and conferences and interviews with railroad officials have all received attention.

The Railroad Department shows a gratifying growth during the last two years, and the railroad secretarial force of the International Committee has continued without change, either in men or the fields they represent, five men devoting their time to definite sections assigned them by the committee, and one exercising general supervision.

Digitized by Google

The reports of the five other secretaries in this department give some details of the work in their respective fields, but a brief summary of the whole reveals the following interesting items of growth :

In the two years the number of railroad associations has increased from 137 to 161 ; the membership has grown from 32,038 to 41,794 ; while the 25 new buildings erected make a total of 82 buildings, valued at $1,192,835, now occupied by the Railroad Department. The corporate support given towards current expenses exceeded $195,000 during 1900 alone. The total attendance at all religious meetings in 1898 was 435,947, with an average of 56 ; and in 1900 the attendance was 580,613, with an average of 64.

The tenth international railroad conference, held at Philadelphia, October 11-14, 1900, was the largest in attendance, the most fruitful in its immediate results, and the most successful in its wide spread influence of any yet held. Eleven hundred and seventy-two delegates were present ; 25 railroad companies granted free transportation for delegates through the International Committee ; and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on the day following the conference, gave a free excursion to Atlantic City, with dinner at eight of the leading hotels. Three delegates were in attendance from Russia, especially commissioned to investigate the railroad work and submit a report to the Russian government. Another delegate was present with a similar commission from the German government. After the conference these foreign delegates spent considerable time in visiting various railroad associations and gathering material for their reports.

The evangelistic work of J. M. Burwick among the railroad associations has been more than usually successful, with the assistance of Paul Gilbert, who has led the singing and aided in other ways. The calls for Mr. Burwick having been more than he could respond to, Tom Keenan, an engineer on the D. L. & W., and some other railroad men, have also been holding evangelistic services, under direction of the International Committee, but without expense to its treasury.

In connection with the work at the office, special aid has been received from E. M. Willis, particularly in the work related to the Philadelphia conference.

Work Abroad.—During the early part of the year 1899 I was granted three months leave of absence, and visited Russia without charge to the committee for either salary or expenses. A two-fold mission was accomplished in connection with this trip : (1) An investigation at the request of the Government of the conditions surrounding railroad men in Russia, and the submission of a report concerning the introduction of the work of the Railroad Department. (2) Preliminary work connected with the organization of a city association in St. Petersburg, as a result of the initiative and generous support of James Stokes of New York. This association now occupies well-equipped quarters, has a membership of over eight hundred and is carrying on an aggressive association work.

In the summer of 1900 I attended the world's committee meeting at Versailles, France, and spent four weeks abroad in work connected with the Jubilee Convention and the Railroad Department.

REPORT OF JOHN R. MOTT

Associate General Secretary Foreign Work and Secretary Student Department

In accordance with the reorganization of the international and secretarial force and administration, I have been continued as secretary of the Student Department and have been appointed associate general secretary with special reference to the supervision of the foreign work. With the administration of the committee's work on the foreign field I have of late years been increasingly identified.

During the past two years I have devoted about five months to the work of the Student Department of the International Committee, five months to the work of the Foreign Department, two months to the Student Volunteer Movement, and six months to the World's Student Christian Federation. The rest of the time has been spent in general association work and in vacations. Fully six months of this entire period I have been occupied in work outside of the United States. The entire expenses of my work during the past two years, as well as from the time I started on my journey around the world in 1895, have been provided from sources entirely apart from the regular treasury of the International Committee.

Student Department of the International Committee.—In conjunction with Mr. Andersen I have carried on the executive work of the Student Department. Special attention has been devoted to outlining the general policy of this department, and to helping to train new student secretaries of the committee. I have attended forty-one conventions. Of this number six were summer conferences, nine were conferences for training workers in student associations, sixteen were general association gatherings where I carried on work in the interest of the Student Department, and the others were denominational or special gatherings. Nearly forty important universities have been visited. Evangelistic campaigns have been conducted at several student centers. In nearly every place there were spiritual awakenings and the work resulted in the conversion of many students. As chairman of the editorial committee of The Intercollegian I have given time regularly to editorial work on behalf of the movement. A report entitled "Four Years of Progress in the Student Young Men's Christian Association Movement of the United States and Canada" has been prepared. Not a little time has been consumed in thinking upon the problems of this work. The Student Department continues to expand. There are now 648 student associations. There are nine student secretaries of the International Committee who are working in this large field. The past two years have been the most fruitful in the history of the movement in increase in number of associations, in number of conversions, and in growth of the Bible study department.

Student Volunteer Movement.—As chairman of its executive committee I have had the general direction of this movement. At annual conferences and frequent meetings of the committee the policy has been outlined and projected. Six or more new secretaries have had to be selected and instructed each year. Almost the entire burden of the budget of the Student Volunteer Movement has rested upon me. A book entitled "The Evangelization of the World in This Generation" has been written.

Digitized by Google

Besides its use in mission study classes and otherwise on this continent, it has been or is being reprinted in Great Britain, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Japan, and China. This book was designed not only to set forth the watchword of the Volunteer Movement, but also to show the vital relation which the student association movement at home and in non-Christian lands sustains to the world's evangelization. The period under review has witnessed real progress. The institutions of North America have received more thorough visitation than ever. The number of students in mission study classes has ranged between four and five thousand. The number of volunteers who have sailed has steadily increased until there are now over 1700 on the foreign field who have gone out under the various mission boards. The Volunteer Movement has not only increased the number of able candidates of the mission boards, but also, by virtue of the fact, has enabled the boards to raise their standard of qualifications. The reflex influence of the movement on all the other departments of association work, and on the spiritual life of the colleges, has continued to be very helpful. It would be difficult to overstate the importance of the service rendered by the various secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement to our associations.

Foreign Department of the International Committee.—Mr. Ober and I during the last two years have shared the secretarial direction of the Foreign Department. During the first part of this period I had charge of the secretarial supervision of the foreign student association work; during the latter part of the period I have been responsible for the secretarial supervision of the entire foreign association work, Mr. Ober taking the home cultivation work of the department. These two years have been characterized by remarkable progress. The force of foreign secretaries has been increased from eleven to nineteen. The new men sent out have been V. W. Helm to Japan, W. J. Southam to Hong-kong, Robert P. Wilder to the national student secretaryship of India, B. R. Barber to the assistant general secretaryship of Calcutta, L. P. Larsen to the student secretaryship of Madras, Dr. L. H. Beals to student settlement work in connection with the Madras association, Dr. J. Rutter Williamson to the student general secretaryship of Lahore, and A. H. Grace to the general secretaryship of Allahabad. Constant correspondence has been carried on with all the foreign secretaries. The work of the home office has been completely reorganized. I have served as a member of the editorial committee of The Foreign Mail. Mr. Ober and I united in conducting conferences of the Volunteer League in the East and in the West. These conferences have resulted in a marked development of missionary interest in the home associations. A large section of time has been given in securing money for the foreign work. Notwithstanding the handicap to which the foreign association work has been subjected during the past two years as a result of famine, plague, and war, the general progress of the department has been striking. In development of both the general and student associations, now numbering over 300; in enlarging the material equipment; in increasing the number of foreign and native secretaries; in the expansion of the Bible study work; in the growth in number of conversions and in the spread of the revival spirit; in the development of the real missionary spirit in the foreign associations, as well as in an increasing sense of responsibility spreading among the home associations, the past two years have been unique in the history of the Foreign Department.

World's Student Christian Federation.—My work as general secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation has taken me into eleven different countries where I have carried on work at important student centers. Careful attention was given to planning, working up, and helping to conduct the federation conference held at Versailles in August, 1900. This conference was attended by leaders of student movements representing twenty-four different countries of all parts of the world, and has sent out a wonderful influence. An exchange list and directory has been prepared or revised each year and introduced in such a way as to keep the various student movements of the world acting and reacting upon one another. The observance of the universal day of prayer for students has been successfully promoted in over forty countries. A report entitled "Facts of Progress in the Work of Christ Among Students" has been written, and the report of the Versailles conference, as well as a collection of reports entitled "Survey of the Christian Student Movements of the World," have been edited. The archives of the federation, already the most complete of their kind, have continued to be built up. Possibly the most important service in connection with the federation has been that of establishing and preserving a close relation to between fifty and sixty national and international student secretaries, and to nearly as many leading members of national student committees scattered throughout the world field.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF W. E. LOUGEE

Secretary Business Department

Early in the development of the work of the International Committee it became apparent that its financial support could not be provided wholly by contributions from the associations or from delegates to the international conventions. Just as the local associations find it necessary to go beyond their membership and to secure help statedly from friends of young men and of work for them, so the international and later the state organization discovered that their adequate financial support necessitated a constituency of friends whose conception of the work embraced not only its local support in the cities and towns where it was carried on, but the support also of the agencies of supervision as necessary factors in the best development of the association brotherhood and the efficiency of the work of each unit in that brotherhood.

For many years this effort to enlist friends in support of the internaional work was largely in the hands of the general secretary, but the rapid growth of later years has made necessary a special business department which should collect the funds, carefully oversee all expenditures and strengthen and build up a permanent financial constituency.

It is a source of much gratification to the International Committee to note the ever increasing number of local secretaries who place this work of supervision upon their lists of benevolent investments. A large majority now contribute annually for this object.

As executive secretary of the Business Department Committee it has been necessary for me to devote the greater part of my time to this work during the past three years. During this period the work has been greatly enlarged and the number of annual donors has increased from 2,000 to over 6,000. The ever increasing amount of correspondence and record keeping involved in this effort has demanded vigilant care and attention. Two years ago the card index system was adopted for our contributors. The change added very much to our work during that year and the next, but excellent results were obtained. In addition to these duties, the Business Department has had charge of the anniversary dinner each November. This has served an admirable purpose in sustaining the International Committee's work. It is attended by members of the committee and their friends who have the opportunity of hearing at first hand reports of progress achieved. Each year has witnessed a larger attendance and deeper interest.

In order to meet the necessary expenses of the committee for the next two years and to prevent over solicitation of generous and much enduring friends, we need at least 2,000 additional annual donors contributing not less than $40,000. To secure these friends, to hold the interest of those already contributing and to administer efficiently collections and expenditures will tax to the uttermost the Business Department and its secretary as well as the general and office secretaries to whom this department is under special obligation for very efficient cooperation.

REPORT OF THOMAS K. CREE

Secretary

My work during the past two years has been largely financial and office work, both of which departments will be reported in detail by others who in summing up the results will include what I have done. However, as the Jubilee year which marks the half century of association work in America also marks the quarter century of my connection with the International Committee as one of its secretaries, the presentation of a brief retrospect, instead of a more detailed report of the past two years, may be pardoned.

In January, 1876, I became one of the secretaries of the International Committee, Mr. Morse, Mr. Weidensall and Mr. Uhl being secretaries at that time. The twenty-five years of service from 1876 to 1901 mark the introduction of all the departments of the committee's work, and the addition of more than fifty secretaries to its force. At the opening of 1874 and again in 1875, in company with George A. Hall, I made tours of some four months each in the southern states as a volunteer worker under the direction of the International Committee. In 1872 and again in 1873 tours of visitation had been made by James Stokes, William F. Lee and Mr. Hall. In 1872, when the first of these tours was undertaken, there were but two associations in all the southern states, one at Richmond, Va., and the other at the University of Virginia.

The tours of Mr. Hall and myself touched every southern state and almost if not every southern city of importance. They were largely evangelistic tours, and in many cities and towns marked revivals resulted from them in which the spiritual life of the churches was quickened and many persons professed conversion. The spiritual atmosphere generated by the meetings was favorable for the inauguration of association work, and indeed organization could not have been accomplished at that time in any other way. In every community special meetings were held in which association work and the need of work for young men was presented, and usually arrangements were made for organizing associations. State conventions were held and state committees were formed. As a secretary of the International Committee, for some years I gave special attention to association work in these southern states. I organized and advised in the work of state committees, attended and directed state conventions, organized associations in many cities and educational institutions, raised money for the salaries of secretaries for state and local associations, and then helped to secure qualified men for these positions, counseled with boards of directors, and arranged plans and engaged in canvasses for money for association buildings. One or more of these services were rendered to Richmond, Petersburg, Charleston, Savannah, Augusta, Atlanta, Montgomery, Selma, Mobile, New Orleans, Houston, Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville, Louisville, and other places. Mr. Weidensall and S. A. Taggart did good service of a similar nature. E. W. Watkins and James McConaughy and later C. K. Ober, C. L. Gates, H. P. Andersen and other secretaries of the committee representing its various departments, in cooperation with state and local secretaries and many volunteer workers, did efficient service, and as a result at the opening of 1900 in the states south of the District of Columbia and Missouri there were 245 associations, of which eighty-five are in cities and towns; eleven state committees, thirteen state secretaries, 140 local secretaries, assistants and physical directors; and more than fifty association buildings, costing over $1,000,000. But best of all, beyond computation in figures, there are in all these cities, towns and educational institutions trained bands of efficient young men working for their fellows. Five secretaries of the International Committee, representing the Field, Student, Railroad and Colored Men's departments, are now permanently located in the southern states.

New England.—While supervising the work in the South, I gave considerable attention to New England. For some years all the New England state committees had been engaged in general evangelistic work, doing much for the churches, but very little distinctively for the associations. The associations in many of the important cities either had died or were doing very little work. The evangelistic services had resulted in a large number of conversions, many of them being among young men; they had quickened many communities, and had trained some excellent leaders for association work. Working with these leaders, I reorganized a number of associations, secured the money for the salaries of secretaries, and helped to find efficient men to fill the office. This service was done in representative cities, such as Worcester, New Bedford, Haverhill and Concord. The state committees were reorganized, and their efforts directed in distinctively association lines. The helpful supervision of the International Committee and its secretaries continued, and the work has prospered all over New England.

Canada.—While the winters were spent largely in work in the South, during my earlier years of service a good part of the summers were spent in Canada. I visited repeatedly nearly all the associations in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario. At first much evangelistic work was done and with good results, but together with this the distinctive work of the associations for young men was encouraged and stimulated. Later my work was more directly attendance at conventions, conferring with associations, local and provincial secretaries and provincial committees; securing money for associations, for erecting buildings or removing debts on them, all of which services were rendered in various parts of the provinces.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey.—The call to the secretaryship of the committee found me in charge of the evangelistic work of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey in Philadelphia, and for a number of years, at the request of Mr. Moody, the committee permitted my giving a good deal of time to a similar work with them. A number of months were spent in Chicago, in charge of a successful series of meetings. Similar meetings were arranged for and directed in half a dozen western states, in five New England states, at the South, and later in 1881 for six months on the Pacific Coast. While these meetings were evangelistic and for all classes of people, special effort was made for men. The work of the associations was never overlooked, and in many ways these organizations were helped. Over $600,000 were secured directly in connection with these meetings, and much more indirectly, for local associations. During the meetings in Philadelphia $120,000 were secured for its new building ; $200,000 were secured in New York, $150,000 of it paying the debt on the Twenty-third Street building ; $80,000 were secured in Chicago, paying the debt upon its building ; $80,000 in San Francisco for a similar purpose, and smaller amounts in many other cities. These evangelistic services marked an era in the religious work of the associations all over the country, and many of the associations were permanently benefited by them.

The Pacific Coast.—With Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey I visited the Pacific Coast. This visit was made in response to the earnest request of Morris K. Jesup, a member of the International Committee, and the arrangements for it were made by the committee. Some six months were spent in this visit. There was an association in San Francisco at this time, 1881, the only one on the whole Pacific Coast ; but for years it had been doing no work for young men, and the association building was in the hands of the sheriff, under foreclosure proceedings on a debt far in excess of its value. It was not until the community was thoroughly aroused by the meetings that any attempt was made to help the association. At an opportune time this was undertaken. The old management resigned, a new constitution was prepared and adopted, a new set of officers elected, and $84,000, the entire debt, were pledged. Of this amount Mr. Moody contributed $10,000, and the International Committee secured $10,000, largely from its own members. I remained in San Francisco for some time after Messrs. Moody and Sankey had finished their work, collecting the money and attending to the payment of all the debt except $5,000. $2,500 additional were now raised to renovate and refurnish the building ; association work for young men was started and two meetings a day continued in the association building. Returning a year later $5,000 were raised to pay off the balance of the debt, and $6,000 additional secured were expended during the following three years, at the rate of $2,000 a year in evangelistic work. The most important part of the whole movement, so far as the association was concerned, was the securing of a secretary to continue the work. In enlisting H. J. McCoy for this important field the International Committee secured one who possessed the varied qualifications necessary for successful leadership. To his faithful and efficient work, with that of secretaries of the International Committee—a number of whom have devoted large portions of their time to this field—the state secretaries and committees, and the local secretaries, and above all to the influential laymen enlisted in the work is due the present condition of the associations on that coast. These organizations now extend from the northern border of Mexico to Skagway and Cape Nome, above the Arctic Circle, there being in all fifty, twenty-two of which are in cities ; two state committees, employing three secretaries ; forty local secretaries, assistants and physical directors ; and twelve association buildings, costing nearly $900,000.

Financial Work.—During all the twenty-five years of service much of my work has been along financial lines, largely in the interest of local associations. A principal service rendered was in connection with the association building in Philadelphia. A debt amounting to $420,000 had accumulated. Owing to business depression the building could not have been sold for more than $300,000. Mr. Moody had given his cooperation and more than $200,000 had been promised, of which $55,000 was secured by Mr. Moody from members and friends of the International Committee in New York. I spent some three months in Philadelphia. The money pledged was collected, the association reorganized under a new constitution and with a new management, the debt of $420,000 was reduced to $200,000, which was placed in a mortgage at a low rate of interest. In this city also the donors of the money laid upon the International Committee the responsibility of selecting as secretary a man equal to the work called for. David McConaughy consented to undertake the office, and so successfully did he carry on the work that in two years the remaining $200,000 were pledged, and the association is in possession of a building valued at $1,000,000.

Upon the Washington, D. C. association a debt for current expenses had accumulated ; it had dismissed its secretary, closed up its rooms and suspended its work. Here also by direction of the committee the money was secured to pay off its debt, and then the amount necessary to employ a secretary and carry on the work for a year. A new constitution was also prepared and adopted and a competent secretary recommended and called. Two years later I again spent some time in Washington, and secured the money necessary to purchase a building on New York Avenue, for some years owned and occupied by the association.

The Minneapolis association, after twenty years of work, became involved in debt, dismissed its secretary, closed up and abandoned its rooms. By exertion similar to that already reported, the money to pay its debt and the salary of a secretary was secured. Here also the competent secretary was enlisted in John H. Elliott. A good work was carried on and a building costing $165,000 was erected. Later this building was endangered during the financial depression of 1893–1896, when recently by the successful financiering of another international secretary, Mr. Ward, it was saved for the association. Similar work has been accomplished on a larger or smaller scale for associations in almost all sections of the United States and Canada.

Abroad.—The International Committee and the American associations have exercised much influence in promoting association work in Europe, and by permission of the committee without any tax on its treasury I have spent considerable time in connection with association work there. I attended the world's conference of 1878 in which the Central Committee, modeled after our International Committee, was organized, and have also taken part in many of the later conferences, preparing for submission to the conference the rules under which the Central Committee is now carrying on its work, and under which the world's conferences are conducted.

Other service has been rendered at various times to the World's Committee, and I have assisted in securing from year to year the American quota of the funds necessary to carry on the large and valuable work of that Committee.

Paris.—At the request of James Stokes, a member of the International Committee, in three different visits, more than a year has been spent in that city aiding in the reorganization of the association, preparing a new constitution, securing the money to do a larger and better work, in commodious and centrally located rooms. The needed competent secretary was secured and, two years later, the canvass for a building fund resulted in raising $200,000, of which Mr. Stokes and his family gave $100,000, the remainder coming from the late Alfred André and other friends in Paris. In this new building, as in the previous rented quarters, the Paris association has done a most valuable work for the young men of that great city. While engaged in the work in Paris, Lyons was visited and the money needed to employ a secretary was secured. The fund for a national secretary for France was also raised and other French cities were visited.

At Rome, Italy, upon a similar errand the first meeting in the interest of an association for that city was attended. Later I assisted in its organization, and arranged for carrying on its work. By the generous gift of Mr. Stokes, the Rome association was placed in a valuable building of its own. All of this varied and wide-spread work on the Continent was accomplished without any cost whatever to the International Committee.

FIELD DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF C. K. OBER

Field Secretary

During 1899 and 1900 I have continued my work as field secretary in relation to the general North American field and have given in 1899 one-third and in 1900 one-fourth of my time as representative of the Field Department in the secretarial administration of the foreign work.

The Field Work in North America.—The field department has now the same number of field secretaries as two years ago, Mr. Gates serving the southern division, Mr. Millar the eastern, Mr. Ward the northwestern, and Mr. Michener the southwestern. The western division consisting of Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, has received such occasional service from Mr. Ward, Mr. Michener, and myself as our other duties permitted and the more urgent needs of the field required. The county work under Mr. Weidensall, the Sioux Indian work under Mr. Tibbetts, and the special religious work, with Mr. Smith and Mr. Shelton in the field, have each made very encouraging progress. I have cooperated with my eight associates in each division of the field and department of work, have met regularly with the field committee, and have endeavored in every way practicable to supplement, unify, develop, and extend the whole work of the Field Department.

The Foreign Work.—In the work of the Foreign Department I have been associated with Mr. Mott and it has received my attention as follows:

In helping to raise the budget, which has grown from $26,000 in 1898 to $40,000 in 1900. In helping to secure men for the foreign field, the twelve secretaries in 1898 being reinforced by eight new men in 1899 and 1900. In outlining and organizing "the association foreign work," as the missionary department of an individual city, town or railroad association, which has already been adopted as a recognized permanent feature of the scheme of religious work of many of the leading associations.

In promoting the missionary spirit among the home association membership, placing emphasis upon the four essentials—a definite missionary purpose, the study of missions, intercessory prayer, and Christian stewardship. In this connection I have helped to arrange for and conduct six training conferences for leaders, have prepared a course of "Bible Studies in Missions," have sold six hundred missionary libraries to city and railroad association leaders, and have issued during 1899 and 1900 a quarterly prayer cycle in the interests of the association work and workers in mission lands.

In visiting city associations, presenting the foreign work at conventions and conferences, and in directing the tours among the home associations of Messrs. Niwa, J. Campbell White, and other visiting representatives from the foreign field.

In both the field and the foreign work during 1899 and 1900 I have attended twenty-eight conventions and conferences, and have visited thirty-seven city associations in twenty-five states and provinces.

REPORT OF C. L. GATES

Field Secretary

In January, 1899, I was afforded the privilege of renewing my connection with the work in the southern states, having been transferred to that department of the field work from the Southwest. My efforts have been directed to the accomplishment of three principal objects—the strengthening of state organizations; the promotion of a high standard in city work, and the development of trained men for the various departments of association service.

In connection with state organization the task of securing a financial constituency of strength and permanence has demanded and received a large amount of attention. I have assisted in this work by personal interviews and solicitation in seven states, and definite progress has been made. With one exception, which will soon be eliminated, the states of the southern group are in good financial condition.

The demand for a higher type of city work is very general, and suggestions looking to its establishment have been heartily received by directors, committeemen and general secretaries. Board meetings, dinner meetings and conferences with picked men have been frequont and requests for the critical consideration of proposed work, or of that already in operation, have been very numerous.

Much personal work has been done with the purpose of preparing men for efficient service in city associations. This has required many interviews with individuals and much discussion of methods of work. As an aid in this line of work a novel feature, known as the "association institute," has been introduced. The institute plan includes the presentation and discussion of leading phases of association work by experienced men, the sessions occupying two days. Two very successful institutes, reaching many of the most promising workers, have been held in Georgia. The summer conference of southern association workers at Asheville, N. C., also has in view the training of men and is rapidly becoming a factor of importance. Much time has been given to this meeting and the results are very gratifying. I have also prepared a course of study in association history, principles and work for the use of young men who desire some special training but who cannot attend the association schools. A number of young men are now pursuing this course.

Assistance has been given to nine associations in building and current work canvasses; in two instances the wrecking of associations has been averted.

Several visits for the investigation of possible opportunities for establishing associations have been made. Aid has been given in perfecting the organization of associations at five important points in four states, and secretaries and physical directors have been recommended to various fields.

During the two years 63 cities in 16 states have been visited; 29 conferences and conventions, 22 meetings of boards of directors, and 16 state committee meetings have been attended; 176 special interviews, largely by appointment, and a much greater number of incidental interviews, upon association affairs, have been had.

I gratefully acknowledge the aid, both divine and human, that has been given me, and keenly appreciate the fact that what has been accomplished but paves the way for the greater things that are possible.

REPORT OF W. B. MILLAR

Field and Army & Navy Secretary

1. Field Supervision.—With headquarters at New York I have continued my work as field secretary of the eastern division, which comprises the territory north of the Potomac River and east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo, including upper Canada and the Maritime Provinces. It is gratifying to report that at this time nine of the ten state and provincial organizations in the eastern division are well organized and manned. I have conducted a wide correspondence, have met with state committees and boards of directors, have taken part in twenty-four conferences and conventions, have cooperated in securing state and local secretaries; and have given counsel and special aid in several critical situations.

Marked progress has been made in the solution of the various problems in the Maryland Group. I assisted the state committee in its search for a state secretary, which proved successful in the acceptance of the position by George F. Tibbitts, in September, 1900. Already the work is showing the effect of his earnest and experienced efforts. Help has also been rendered several local associations in this territory.

I have continued to give attention to portions of the New England field. In my last report mention was made of the union of Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire in a single group for state supervision. Before this work had begun, at the instance of the Maine state committee, that state was released from the union, and the dual state work of Vermont and New Hampshire was re-established. T. T. Hazlewood, who had continued to act as a special secretary of the International Committee until the summer of 1900, at the urgent request of the New Hampshire and Vermont state committee became at that time the acting state secretary, and has rendered valuable service in the two states, giving aid to local associations, and clearing off a debt of $1,800 upon the state work.

During the first six months of 1900 I cooperated in arranging the program, in preparing printed matter, and in the working up of delegations for the religious work conference of city and railroad associations, held at East Northfield, Mass., June 30 to July 8.

At the Thousand Island Park secretaries' conference, in June, 1900, about two thousand dollars were subscribed towards the salary and expenses of an international secretary for boys' work. I undertook to secure the balance of the amount needed for the first year's work. This, with the collection of the amounts subscribed, has involved considerable time and effort. I have also aided in the securing of the secretary for this important department, in his induction into the work and have counseled with him and with several state and local secretaries regarding the furtherance of the association work for boys.

As a member of the Jubilee committee of the International Committee, cooperation in the preparation of the program and plans for the Jubilee convention in Boston has required time and thought. I have met several times with the Jubilee committee of the Boston association and given attention to local arrangements for the convention. I have also arranged for the visitation, in the interests of the Jubilee, of nearly all the city associations of the eastern division, either by special representatives employed by the committee, or by state and local secretaries.

Digitized by Google

Some attention has been given to the committee's finances. I have spoken at several dinner and parlor gatherings given in the interest of the committee's work, and have made 104 addresses at anniversaries and different association gatherings during the period covered by this report.

2. Army and Navy.—Administration of the Army and Navy Department through the formative and therefore critical period of its existence has made no small demands upon my time during the last two years. Encouraging progress has been made in the working out of plans for permanent organization, and in the shaping of policies for present and future growth. The solution of many of the serious problems necessarily incident to the initial stage of a work is now a matter of history, and during the two years a half million dollars have been given or pledged to the department for permanent equipment.

My associates have been J. H. Banks, who has given his entire time to the work in the army since July, 1899; F. L. Smith, at the naval branch in Brooklyn, and Chaplain W. O. Holway, U. S. N., the dean of the chaplains' corps, who in the autumn of 1899 was assigned by the Navy Department to special duty in connection with association work in the navy. W. E. Fenno has just been added to the secretarial force, with special reference to the navy work.

The responsibility of enlisting the interest and cooperation of officials has necessitated numerous trips to Washington, and has proved not only a pleasant but profitable part of my work, resulting in the establishment of cordial relations between the committee and the departments at Washington. Marked impetus to the work resulted somewhat unexpectedly from such a visit during the latter part of September, 1899. The Secretary of War not only endorsed the other matters presented to him at that time, but shortly after my return to New York there came a request from the War Department that a Young Men's Christian Association representative be sent on each transport carrying soldiers to the Philippines. The generosity of a member of the Women's Auxiliary and of other friends made it possible to meet this request. A secretary has been sent with each transport sailing from New York and several from San Francisco, and these secretaries have remained in the islands for work among the men.

The Army and Navy Department of the International Committee has sought to surround our soldiers and sailors with helpful influences wherever the fortunes of war have taken them. Many testimonies as to the value of this work and the appreciation of the men have been received, one of peculiar interest and significance coming from China. So effective was the work among the allied troops during the recent troubles there, that the Peking Missionary Association unanimously voted to request the International Committee to make the work at that point permanent, and to ask the ministers of the various nations to grant land within the legation area upon which suitable buildings may be erected, for the association work among the soldiers. This recognition of the value of our work on the part of men so well qualified to judge is very encouraging.

The home army posts also have called for attention from the department. I have visited a number of these both in the East and the West, meeting officers and men, and studying the conditions and needs. In July and August of 1900 I went to the Pacific Coast in the interests of the work, visiting several army posts en route, the Presidio at San Francisco, and the Mare Island Navy Yard. At these points special need of association endeavor was evident, and at some of them organizations have already been effected. While the War Department issued an order giving to the association rooms at the different posts when available, it has become increasingly evident that for the highest efficiency there is need of distinctive buildings of the association type. At the writing of this report two friends have offered ten thousand dollars each for the erection of buildings, one at Fort Monroe, Va., and the other at Fort Hancock, N. J.

Considerable time has been required to meet the demands for addresses before various organizations on the army and navy work. These numerous requests have been granted as far as possible, and the interest in the work thus awakened has already produced substantial results, especially in a financial way.

The need for work among our sailors, and the marked success attending the efforts of the committee in the rented quarters near the New York navy yard, led the friend who, shortly after my return in 1898 from a tour of visitation of the institutions working among the soldiers and sailors in Great Britain and on the Continent, made the conditional offer of $50,000 mentioned in my report two years ago, to increase that offer to $413,000, to cover the entire cost of the land and building. The care and attention necessary in connection with the plans, specifications and erection of this building have taken much of time and thought during the past year.

The usual lines of association work are carried on at the Naval branch, Brooklyn, modified only when necessary to meet the peculiar needs of the sailor. The figures indicate that the work is rapidly increasing, though the present quarters have long been outgrown. F. L. Smith is devoting his entire time as secretary of this branch. Mr. Smith's experience in the work of the association during the recent war, and afterwards in Porto Rico, enables him to render helpful service to the sailor. The figures given in the statistical tables tell a part of the story of what has been accomplished during the last two years at the Naval branch.

Chaplain Holway, with headquarters at the New York office, has devoted his efforts to the development of shipboard organizations, giving time to the Naval Temperance League and the educational work represented by the bulletins, stereopticon lectures and libraries. Chaplain Holway's long experience in the navy contributes to his great helpfulness in the development of these features of work among sailors, and his counsel has been very valuable.

3. Women's Auxiliary.—Continued attention has been given to the development of the Women's Auxiliary of the International Committee. This organization has grown in efficiency and strength, has rendered an increasingly helpful service, and promises much for the future. During the time covered by this report eleven public meetings have been held in New York, one in Minneapolis, one in Washington, D. C., and one in Morristown. N. J., with an average attendance of about one hundred.

Digitized by Google

The work of the various departments of the International Committee has been presented at these gatherings. The membership of the auxiliary is now one hundred and ninety-seven, and a constantly increasing interest in the work is manifest.

The largest single gift the association movement has yet received has come from a member, through the auxiliary, for the Naval branch in Brooklyn. Vigorous efforts have been made by the members to secure the needed funds for the furnishing of this building, and over one-half of the amount is already pledged, and the building is now in course of erection. In addition to this generous aid has been given to the following departments of the International Committee :—the Indian, the boys', the railroad, army and navy, and the general work.

The charter officers of the auxiliary are still serving—president, Mrs. E. A. McAlpin ; first vice-president, Mrs. Russell Sage ; second vice-president, Miss Helen Miller Gould ; and secretary-treasurer, Miss Letitia Craig O'Neill. These officers with Mrs. A. S. Barker, Mrs. John P. Munn and Mrs. O. B. Potter constitute the executive committee.

REPORT OF C. S. WARD

Field Secretary

Fully one-fourth of my time during the last two years has been given to work outside the northwestern field. Kansas City claimed very close attention and much hard financial work during the early part of that period, and until a general secretary was secured who was able to cope with the problems of that important center and to raise the work to the position of influence and power which it occupies today. Careful attention was given to the work in Minnesota, resulting finally in the calling of the present efficient state secretary.

Preparation for the international convention at Grand Rapids occupied some weeks ; most of the time was given to visitation in the Central West. The month of June following the convention was spent in assisting the local board and committees in lifting the debt from the Grand Rapids building. Later in the year assistance was rendered the Seattle board of directors at a critical time in a canvass for a like object, made successful only by long and persistent effort.

In Colorado, Nebraska, North Dakota and Manitoba all possible help was rendered to supplement the work of local secretaries, in the absence of state or provincial agents. Montana also was visited in response to calls of Christian men who desired to inaugurate association work in that state.

The early part of the year 1900 was spent mainly in Michigan assisting the overtaxed state secretary in field visitation and financial work, and finally directing and helping in the successful effort to remove from the Kalamazoo association the building debt which had threatened its very life. Immediately after this the Lincoln, Neb., association, the unfortunate condition of which had been the object of solicitude for many years, called for assistance, affording an opportunity thoroughly to reorganize its work. This required many months of constant watchfulness and not less than two months of continuous toil. Subscriptions were secured to cover all debts and a secretary was placed in charge who is already building up a strong work.

This effort closed a long chapter of difficult experiences in the Northwest. It has been followed by a series of very auspicious events. An association has been organized at Boise City, Ida., with liberal provision for its needs for a year. Preparatory work has been done in leading mining cities of the Rocky Mountain region and there is a prospect of liberal support from some of the large mining corporations.

Several states are being encouraged in an effort to secure adequate supervision by combination with adjoining states.

The year closed with the completion of a fine building at Winnipeg, costing $90,000, and containing provision for extensive effort for young men and income from rentals for its security. This building promises to be the center of a growing work for the Canadian West. Its dedication at the beginning of the new century is one of the events which indicate the opening of an era of great progress in the association movement in the Northwest.

REPORT OF C. C. MICHENER

Field Secretary

During the first eight months of 1899 I continued my work with the Student Department, visiting many colleges and universities of the Middle West, and most of the colleges of the Pacific Coast. I also attended in the interests of the Student Department the state conventions of Minnesota, Iowa and Michigan. I also did the work preparatory to the Pacific Coast and Lake Geneva student conferences. I attended both these gatherings, and was the official representative of the committee at each. In addition to this I did considerable work in a number of city associations. At the request of the committee I also gave a great deal of time to the preparation for and attendance upon the international convention held in Grand Rapids. Most of my attention was given to the program and to the organization of the forces of the country to secure a larger representation of business men.

My work in connection with the Field Department dates from September, 1899. Having been in the student work so many years, I found it difficult to drop that work entirely. Some unfinished work has been completed, and special services in evangelistic work has been given in California, Wisconsin, and Illinois. I have also assisted at the student conferences at Lake Geneva and Northfield. My field work in the Southwest began in connection with the Missouri state work. All bills of the state committee have been paid. The local associations are in excellent condition, and the state committee has employed a competent state secretary with plans for an aggressive work in every phase of association activity. Many calls have come from the unorganized territory in the Southwest, including Arkansas, Indian Territory and Oklohoma.

Digitized by Google

There are many flourishing cities which greatly need our work but in which associations have never been organized. Some attention has been given to these in a preliminary way with the hope that a number of associations may be organized in the near future. For the past two years I have attended the state conventions of all the states in my field except Texas. A great deal of time necessarily has been given to building canvasses. Such help has been rendered at Springfield and Joplin, Mo.; Lawrence and Arkansas City, Kan.; and Oskaloosa and Davenport, Ia. There are still many points where similar help is needed.

Considerable time has been given to Ohio in helping the state committee in finances and preliminary work for a building canvass at Toledo. I rendered some service at the closing of the building canvass in Kenosha, Wis. I have also attended the Indiana and Kentucky conventions. I have had some special duties in connection with the Jubilee convention. I have given some attention to the problem of securing desirable men for the secretaryship. I am also conducting an investigation on general conditions of young men in the country. That my work covers such a variety of subjects is due to the lack of a sufficient number of field secretaries.

REPORT OF ROBERT WEIDENSALL

Secretary

For the years 1899 and 1900 my time in the main was spent as follows:

1. Attendance at Association Gatherings.—During 1899 the following gatherings were attended—the international convention at Grand Rapids, the conference of international secretaries at Long Beach, the Iowa state convention and general secretaries' conference at Dubuque, a meeting of the Kentucky state committee (to report the first county convention held in the state); during 1900 I was present at the general secretaries' conference at Thousand Island Park, the conference of the international secretaries at Sea Girt, the conference of the international, state and metropolitan secretaries at Philadelphia, the Illinois state convention at Canton, the Wisconsin state convention at Janesville, the annual dinner of the Illinois state committee at Chicago, and the annual meeting of the women's auxiliary organization of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Haverhill, Mass.

2. The County Work.—From May 15 to 22, 1899, I cooperated with State Secretary H. E. Rosevear and members of the state committee and others, in presenting the county work to conferences of representative association men at Louisville, Owensboro, Frankfort and Lexington, and in securing $1,000 in cash and subscriptions to undertake the county work in Kentucky for six months. This work was to include the employment of the pioneer county secretary, John Lake, of Edgefield, S. C., as a part of the state secretarial force with the title and purpose of county department state secretary, to devote his entire time to the development of the county association work in Kentucky. John Lake was secured for this position, entering upon his work August 1, 1899, and has been very successful in it. This action of the Kentucky state committee and state secretary marks an epoch in the development of the field work of the Young Men's Christian Association. It was soon followed by other states.

At Minneapolis, March 6 and 7, 1900, I met with members of the state committee and the State Secretaries E. W. Peck and F. M. Hill, to arrange matters in such a manner that Assistant State Secretary F. M. Hill could take as a definite part of his work, the development of the county work in Minnesota. This was heartily agreed to and while he remained in Minnesota he performed this part of the work well. The same thing was done in Illinois. K. A. Shumaker, state secretary for small town work, had his title changed to secretary for county and small towns—or county department state secretary. During the spring and early summer of 1900, I assisted in raising over $500 in Chicago towards the support of this special department of Illinois state work and I expect to afford the state committee more help of the same kind.

In this new development the state committees and state secretaries of Kentucky, Minnesota and Illinois are harmonious. A meeting of these three county department state secretaries, John Lake, F. M. Hill, K. A. Shumaker and myself, was held in Chicago, April 25 and 26, 1900. In this meeting the whole scheme of the county work was carefully gone over, and a simple yet comprehensive plan for at least a year in advance was definitely outlined and approved after much discussion and prayer.

At the request of State Secretary George A. Hall, of New York, I attended a meeting of the district committee of the New York state committee at Troy, September 25, 1900, and outlined to them this new plan of county work and afforded them ample testimony from the counties where the work was done. The committee unanimously approved the plan, including the employment of a county department state secretary, and recommended its adoption by the state committee. This action was ratified by the state committee and F. M. Hill has been called as county department state secretary and has accepted.

This new plan of county work lays the burden almost wholly upon the state committee for immediate supervision, but is in full accord with the plan of the International Committee, after which it has been fashioned.

I attended the second Ogle County convention, Polo, Ill., February, 1899; visited a number of Bible classes and association bands in Luzerne County, Pa., with County Secretary Thomas Thorburn, April 29 to May 2, 1899; was present at the first county convention in Kentucky at Madisonville, Hopkins county, in November, 1899, and followed this convention by a canvass for the means to support the county work, including the employment of a county secretary; was present at the seventh annual convention of Dodge county, Kasson, Minn., in March, 1900; and attended the first Iroquois county convention, Sheldon, Ill., the following May.

3. Incidental.—I attended by request and addressed conferences of officers, committeemen and members of the Young Men's Christian Associations at Clinton, Davenport, Muscatine, Independence, Cedar Falls, and Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Springfield, Mo., during 1899. As a member and officer I was present at most of the meetings at Lake Geneva and Chicago of the board of directors and the executive committee of the Secretarial Institute and Training School.

RAILROAD DEPARTMENT*

REPORT OF E. L. HAMILTON

Secretary Railroad Department

The usual lines of association activities, namely, extension, supervision and miscellaneous work, have been followed during the years 1899 and 1900, in the territory assigned to me and known as the central states. New work has been started at seven points, as follows: Linndale and Bellefontaine, Ohio; Decatur, Peoria and Danville, Ill.; Moberly, Mo., and Antigo, Wis., and in nearly every case the plans have been wrought out by the state and International committees working in cooperation. At each of the above points, excepting Antigo, the work was begun in a new building erected for the purpose. At Roodhouse, Ill., the Chicago & Alton has pledged $3,000 for a new building and $2,000 additional have been subscribed locally. The D. M. & N. R. R. has appropriated $4,500 for a new building at Proctor Knott, Minn., and Peru, Ind., has a definite promise of $5,000 from the Wabash Company, towards a $10,000 building at that point.

The following division points also have been investigated, and new associations are already assured in at least two of them: Valley Junction and Eagle Grove, Ia.; West Superior, Fond du Lac and Abbotsford, Wis.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Moorefield and Washington, Ind.; South Chicago and Bloomington, Ill.

I have assisted at the following state conventions: Iowa, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin. I also attended the international convention at Grand Rapids, the secretaries' international conference at Thousand Island Park, conferences of International Committee and secretaries at Long Beach and Sea Girt, and the international railroad conference at Philadelphia.

Considerable time and attention have been given to visiting the railroad associations in my territory, addressing gospel meetings and anniversaries, holding conferences with secretaries and directors, and to interviews with railroad officials.

April and May, 1900, were given to a trip to London, England, as a delegate to the annual convention of the British Railway Mission, also in visiting some of its branches throughout England and Scotland, followed by a visit to Paris. The Bible study conference held at Chicago in December, 1899, was a stimulus to that line of work throughout the central states. The year 1901 opens with bright prospects for an advance in definite religious work and for the opening of large systems like the Great Northern, where four points have been investigated at the request of President J. J. Hill and a report recommending four new organizations and new buildings has been submitted.

REPORT OF H. O. WILLIAMS

Secretary Railroad Department

During 1899 and 1900 my entire time has been given to the Railroad Department. Richmond, Va., has continued to be my headquarters, but considerable time has been spent at the New York office. The work done in the field, which embraces southern New England, the East and Southeast, includes :

Extension.—Early in 1899 the work of the Railroad Department was brought personally to the consideration of the president of the Philadelphia and Reading, resulting thus far in securing attractive quarters for the P. & R. department in Philadelphia in the Reading terminal; quarters and appropriations for secretaries at Third and Berks streets, and at Ninth and Green streets where two additional departments of the road are in active operation. On the Southern Railway new associations have been organized at Knoxville, Tenn., and at Spencer, N. C.; at these points good rooms have been provided, monthly contributions have been made by the railroad company and a large membership of railroad men secured.

The work of the Baltimore and Ohio department at Baltimore, Md., has been taken out of the poor and narrow quarters it formerly occupied and has been established in a commodious and well-furnished building, provided and remodeled by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company at an expense of $8,000. The department at Ashland, Ky., on the Chesapeake & Ohio will soon occupy a new building costing $7,000, the gift of the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Ashland Coal & Iron railroad companies and the citizens of Ashland. The Meridian, Miss., association outgrew its quarters and equipment the first year of its existence and in 1900 went into much larger and more attractive rooms, the five contributing railroad companies enlarging their monthly appropriations on this account.

Work Projected.—On the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Corbin, Ky., a new building has been guaranteed ; the railroad company has given $2,500 for the purpose and $1,800 additional has been raised in the town. Construction is now under way.

A new union station in Richmond, Va., to be occupied by the Chesapeake & Ohio and Seaboard Air Line railroads is nearing completion. An entire floor of this building has been set aside for the use of a railroad department. A club house was built during 1900 by the president of the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern Railroad at Blue Ridge, Ga., on this road at a cost of over $7,000. This has been given to the railroad department to operate, the salary of a secretary promised by the railroad company, also heat, light, water and supplies. On the Illinois Central Railroad at Canton, Miss., the company has completed a building and an association is about to be reorganized. This building, exclusive of the site, costs $4,000. Plans for a new building for the men at Port Richmond on the Reading Railway have been completed and are before the officials for their consideration.

Supervision.—About ten days were devoted to work with the Atlanta railroad department and a financial canvass made to relieve the department of an annoying current expense debt. Several visits were made each year to the associations on the Chesapeake & Ohio. The associations at Camden and Trenton, N. J., Knoxville, Tenn., Spencer, N. C., Selma, Ala., Clifton Forge, Va., and Russell, Ky., have been aided in securing secretaries. Every association but five in the territory with which I have been associated has been visited one or more times; some of them many times, for conference with secretaries, committees, boards of directors, railroad officials; for gospel meetings, anniversaries, church services and financial canvasses.

Investigations.—At the request of President Cowen of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and with a letter of introduction from him, a complete investigation of that system was made by visits to fifteen division and terminal points and a report of the same recommending the establishment of twelve associations submitted to him. A like investigation and report was made concerning eleven points on the Seaboard Air Line system. At the request of railroad officials careful studies and reports have been made of the fields at Cape Charles, Va., on the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk; at Louisville, Ky., Birmingham, Ala., and Citico, Tenn., on the Southern Railway; at Paris, Ky., and Montgomery, Ala., on the Louisville & Nashville; at Parkersburg, W. Va., on the Ohio River Railroad; at Jackson, Tenn., on the Mobile & Ohio; at Water Valley, Miss., on the Illinois Central; at Williamson, W. Va., and Lambert Point, Va., on the Norfolk & Western, and Nashville, Tenn., on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis.

General.—The usual number of state conventions has been attended, the international convention, the general secretaries' conference at Thousand Island Park, and the tenth international railroad conference at Philadelphia. Also the conferences of the members and secretaries of the International Committee at Long Beach, N. Y., and Sea Girt, N. J. One week was spent on a tour of investigation of the associations on the Chesapeake & Ohio with the delegates from the Russian and German governments who visited this country in October, 1900.

The work in this territory the past two years has met with the approval of the railroad officials, with the growing appreciation, favor and cooperation of the railroad men and with the manifest bestowal of God's blessings spiritually and temporally.

REPORT OF JOHN F. MOORE

Secretary Railroad Department

My time for the past two years has been devoted almost entirely to the work of the Railroad Department. The field for which I am more particularly responsible is commonly termed the Northeast and embraces New York, Northern New England, the Dominion of Canada, and Michigan. The most important results may be referred to under the following headings:

Grand Trunk Railway.—The railroad department at Montreal formerly was open only in the evening and was without equipment or secretary. Less than two years ago a special contribution of $300 was secured from the railroad for equipment, and $50 per month for current expenses, the Montreal city association also granting $400 for the first named purpose, and $15 per month for the expenses of operation. The work here has outgrown its present accommodations, and quite recently General Manager Reeve authorized an appropriation of $7,500 and site for a new building, this gift being supplemented by one of $5,000 for the same purpose by the Montreal association. The building at Niagara Falls, Ont., to which reference was made in my previous report, soon proved too small to provide properly for the large number of men desiring to use its privileges. An addition became imperative and was made possible by the following special appropriations for that purpose : $2,500 from the Grand Trunk Railroad, and $1,200 from the Wabash Railroad. A building costing $4,500 was opened at Port Huron, Mich., January 1, 1900, but soon became inadequate to the demands made upon it. An addition costing $2,100 was completed the following July, the necessary funds being given by the railroad company. A building similar to the one at Port Huron and costing $4,500 was opened at Sarnia, Ont., in December, 1899. At Durand, Mich., an important junction of the Grand Trunk and Ann Arbor railroads an old hotel was leased and remodeled for the special needs of a railroad department. Each company appropriated $500 for equipment and granted $37.50 per month for current expenses. At Stratford, Ont., a city association has been changed (owing to the very large number of railroad men in its membership) to "city and railroad," and an appropriation of $15 per month secured from the Grand Trunk Railroad.

In 1897 there were but four railroad departments, three secretaries, and one building erected especially for railroad men on the Grand Trunk system. In 1901 there are ten departments all adequately housed, six being in homes of their own, ten excellent secretaries and a constantly increasing membership. Since 1895 the Grand Trunk Railroad has contributed nearly $40,000 for buildings, and its annual contributions for current expenses now exceed $9,000.

Boston & Maine Railroad.—One new department has been organized on this system. The company granted an appropriation of $1,500 for equipment and $100 per month, with light, heat and water, to make possible the introduction of an association at Woodsville, N. H., an important division point. Four other points on this system have been investigated and at least three of them will probably be organized this year.

Michigan Central Railroad.—For twenty years the Detroit, Mich., association enjoyed the honor of owning and occupying the first building ever erected in the world for the specific work of an association railroad department. On November 22, 1900, a fine new building costing $15,000 was opened. Of this amount the Michigan Central Railroad contributed $12,000, the men raising $3,000 among themselves. Railroad contributions of $3,000 from the Michigan Central Railroad ; $500 from the Grand Trunk Railroad ; $500 from the Wabash Railroad ; and $100 from the L. E. & D. R. Railroad, supplemented by a legacy of $1,200 and pledges for $3,500 from railroad men and citizens, made possible the opening on January 25, 1901, at St. Thomas, Ont., of a finely equipped building, which was formerly a residence but which was readily and finely adapted to the requirements of a railroad association.

New York Central & Hudson River Railroad —An investigation was made at Jersey Shore, Pa., and a report submitted which it is hoped may result in the erection of a building at this very needy point. Time has also been given to other points upon this system.

Digitized by Google

Delaware & Hudson Railroad.—Some time has been devoted to Binghamton, N. Y., first in helping to shape properly a building movement, and later in counseling regarding the same and assisting in the financial canvass. Assistance has also been given at other points upon this line.

Erie Railroad.—Help was given the Port Jervis, N. Y., railroad department in a financial canvass, and for the first time in four years that department is now entirely free from debt.

Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad.—The building at Du Bois, Pa., costing $7,500, and made possible by the gift of $5,500 from the railroad company and $2,000 from employees, was opened in January, 1900. Results thus far have exceeded expectations.

Since my last report much time has been devoted, not only to extension, but also to supervision. The organizations of committees, changes of and counseling with secretaries, the correction of unhealthy tendencies, and similar necessary tasks, have required much prayer, thought and attention. Some little time was spent in attendance upon and participation in ten state and provincial conventions. Several weeks were given, by special arrangement, to field work in New York state.

REPORT OF GEORGE D. McDILL

Secretary Railroad Department

Field.—The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway System, and lines centering into Omaha from the West.

Extension.—This has been wholly on the Santa Fe System as follows: at Argentine, Kan., a $10,000 building opened June 7, 1899; the membership at the end of the first year was 562. At Temple, Tex., a $12,500 building opened August 1, 1899; the membership at the end of the first year was 850. At Cleburne, Tex., a $12,500 building completed and ready to open was totally destroyed by fire February 1, 1900. It was replaced by an $18,000 structure, which was opened November 22, 1900. The paid membership in two months was 825.

Supervision.—In addition to the usual visitation, special attention has been given to four associations with the following results: Grand Island, Neb., reorganized, its debt raised and its standing in the community, and especially among railroad men, greatly strengthened; North Platte, Neb., reorganized, freed from debt, and its membership nearly doubled; Ellis, Kan., and Pocatello, Ida., membership nearly doubled. During the two years the membership in this field has increased from 2,000 to over 4,200, and every one of the ten associations is out of debt.

Investigation.—On request of the roads, study has been made of conditions at division points, and reports rendered thereon to the proper officials as follows: at sixteen points on the Union Pacific, at two on the Southern Pacific, and at two on the Denver & Rio Grande Railway. Numerous interviews with officials of several roads have resulted in the breaking down of prejudice and in a growing interest in association methods.

General.—I attended twelve conferences and conventions, worked in thirteen states and territories, and traveled 111,940 miles.

REPORT OF F. B. SHIPP

Secretary Railroad Department

With headquarters at St. Louis, my time during the past two years has been devoted to the development and supervision of railroad association work in the Southwest.

At the beginning of the period referred to the only railroad associations in this territory were those at St. Louis and Kansas City. Since then organizations have been formed at the following points: Poplar Bluff and Monett, Mo.; Texarkana, Ark.; Smithville, Hillsboro, Ennis and Denison, Tex., and Fort Scott, Kan., and with the exception of the last two named these associations began their work in buildings of their own erected for their special use. Three more such buildings are now in process of erection at Coffeyville, Kan., DeSoto, Mo., and San Antonio, Tex., which together with the six already completed represent a total investment of nearly $90,000, an average of about $10,000 for each building. Nearly $30,000 of this amount has been raised through subscriptions from employees and others and the balance of $60,000 has been secured in thirteen different appropriations from the following railroad companies: Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern, Kansas City Southern, Houston & Texas Central, Southern Pacific, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and St. Louis & San Francisco. None of these companies had heretofore made any contributions toward railroad Young Men's Christian Association buildings. Annual appropriations footing up a total of $10,800 have been secured from these same companies toward the current expenses of these associations.

The success of these new organizations in reaching the railroad men has been beyond our most sanguine expectations, and is indicated to some extent by the fact that the average membership is over 500, and in two instances nearly 1,000. While in some places the definite religious work is carried on under peculiar difficulties, yet without exception aggressive effort is being made in this direction with very gratifying results, one of these associations being able to report at the close of its first year fifty-one professed conversions and thirty-two who had joined churches through its work.

A considerable portion of my time has been given to investigation and preliminary work at different railroad centers in this territory where nothing definite has as yet been accomplished but where suitable buildings and successful associations will doubtless be secured in the near future.

I have during these two years attended state conventions in Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and have besides attended all the international gatherings held in this period.

The work as outlined above has involved numerous conferences with railroad officials, representatives of state committees and with secretaries, traveling which has averaged over 4,000 miles a month, correspondence and other work at the office occupying nearly one-third of my time.

STUDENT DEPARTMENT*

REPORT OF H. P. ANDERSEN

Secretary Student Department

My work during the past two years has been carried on chiefly from the New York office and may be classed under the following heads:

Executive Work.—During the period covered by this report I have shared with Mr. Mott the executive work of the Student Department. The portion of this work which has received my attention includes:

1. The arrangement and announcement of the tours of the traveling secretaries of the Student Department and correlating them with the visits of the secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement, so as to avoid unwise duplication and friction. This has involved a study of the condition and needs of the associations and much preliminary correspondence with state and provincial secretaries and with the associations, as well as conference and correspondence with the student secretaries.

2. General correspondence with all the associations upon a variety of subjects which vitally concern their extension and unity. This includes correspondence concerning the observance of the week of prayer for young men, and of the universal day of prayer for students. We have gathered and disseminated information as to the condition and results of the student association work. The financial constituency of the Student Department has been cultivated. In addition, a large volume of general correspondence has demanded attention. The literature of the Student Department has been edited and published. In this and all other matters of the office administration valuable assistance has been rendered by the succession of efficient office secretaries, D. A. Davy, Henry White and W. C. McKee.

3. Arrangements of programs and securing attendance at student conferences and conventions which are held under the auspices of the Student Department. This has included the preparations for the eastern presidents' conferences which were held in successive years in Hamilton, N. Y., and New Haven, Conn., with increasing attendance and usefulness. I cooperated with Mr. Mott in arranging the programs of the two Northfield student conferences and conducted the business management of these meetings. I also aided the traveling secretaries in the South in arranging for and in conducting the southern student conferences at Asheville.

4. Special attention has been given to problems of student association buildings, questions of association organization, and of the student association general secretaryship, and aid has been rendered associations in these directions. Occasional visits have been made to colleges to study the problems of their associations and to advise as to their solution. The rapid growth in the number of secretaries, and the development of building movements have led to a steadily increasing volume of work with reference to them.

5. As a member of the business committee of The Intercollegian, attention has been given to its publication and to the promotion of its circulation among students.

*See also report of John R. Mott, page 29.

Attendance at Conventions and Conferences.—Twenty-seven conferences and conventions were attended with special reference to student work. These included three presidents' conferences, two deputation conferences for the training of deputation men to visit colleges under the direction of state committees, five summer conferences, a conference of colored men, three conferences of student general secretaries, and two conferences of theological students. In addition I attended the international convention at Grand Rapids, the conference of general secretaries at Thousand Island Park, conferences of the International Committee and its secretaries and of the secretaries of the Student Department. I also attended several state conventions. I attended the conference of the World's Student Christian Federation at Versailles, France, in August, 1900, as one of the representatives of the Student Department.

During the first nine months of the period covered by this report the Bible study department of the student work was efficiently administered by H. B. Sharman. A vacancy occurred in this office in October, 1899, and since that time the constantly growing work of that department has been administered by me.

1. Publication. When I was placed in charge of the Bible study work, the junior course of "Studies in Old Testament Characters" and its companion volume "Old Testament Records, Poems and Addresses" by Professor Wilbert W. White were being issued in parts. Attention was given to examining the MS. and to reading the proof of these volumes. Repeated conferences were had with Howard Agnew Johnston, D. D., the author of "Studies in God's Methods of Training Workers," the course for personal work classes, and with W. D. Murray, the author of the preparatory school course on "The Life and Works of Jesus According to St. Mark" concerning the nature and scope of these courses, and the MSS. of both were carefully examined. Attention was given to mechanical sides of publication such as styles of type, paper and binding.

2. Correspondence. The scheme of correspondence with each of the leaders of Bible classes using courses of the Student Department cycle, which was devised and inaugurated by Mr. Sharman, has been maintained with satisfactory results. Reports as to the exact nature of Bible study work which has been undertaken by each association have been secured, while a careful study has been made of the adaptation of the courses to the actual needs of students. Records of attendance have been kept by the leaders of all the classes, and these have been sent to the office at stated intervals as a basis for further correspondence.

3. The Bible study in the student associations has been extended and improved through conferences and conventions. The most valuable work has been done through the summer conferences where the Bible teaching has become more and more normal in character, training students to become Bible class leaders in their institutions. In 1900 thirteen such classes were held at the four summer conferences.

I have continued to serve as a member of the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement and have attended its meetings and training conferences. During the session of the Ecumenical missionary conference, I served as a member of the hospitality committee of that conference.

REPORT OF HARRY WADE HICKS

Secretary Student Department

The field of Canada and the East, to which I have given my chief attention, has been enlarged since the last report by the addition of the states of Indiana and Michigan. Eighty-eight different institutions have received 144 visits. Every state and province has been visited, Canada having received about one-fourth of the time. During 1899 the eastern section was cultivated more thoroughly, and during 1900 the western received closer attention. Twenty-five conferences and conventions have been attended, chief among which have been the student summer conferences at Northfield, Lake Geneva and Asheville, and the four annual presidents' conferences of Ontario and Quebec, Ohio, New England, and Pennsylvania.

The nature of the work has continued to be supervisory and educational, rather than for organization of new associations. Marked advance has been made in the quality and extent of Bible study work throughout the field. Better leadership has been secured, and courses covering all or part of the four years of school or college life have been adopted in nearly all the institutions where voluntary Bible work can be promoted with success. The presence of a genuine interest in deep spiritual awakenings has been a cause for thanksgiving. In eight or ten important student centers such awakenings have resulted in several hundred conversions and in permanent strengthening of the Christian forces. The rapid increase in the number of secretarial points and buildings has given evidence of merited confidence in the movement by college authorities and friends of Christian work among students. The claims of missions have been presented with unusual discrimination and force by the secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement, with the result that many more men of high qualifications have been enrolled as intending missionaries. A new intercollegiate movement has been organized in Cleveland, and an intercollegiate secretaryship established. In the absence of a secretary for the supervision of professional school associations more time than usual has been devoted to work among the schools of seven large cities.

The entire field is ready for a deep and widespread spiritual movement. That this may result, special emphasis should be laid as heretofore on the Bible study and missionary departments, on individual and associated personal work, and on wisely conducted evangelistic effort.

REPORT OF H. M. McILHANY, JR.

Secretary Student Department

This brief report covers the sixteen months of my service with the committee, from September 1, 1899 to January 1, 1901.

During this time my work has been confined to the thirteen states of the southern field, where 120 visits have been made to 98 institutions. I have organized eleven new associations, and reorganized several that had gone temporarily out of existence. Outside of effecting these organizations my work has been largely that of strengthening and developing the existing ones by making addresses along association, devotional and evangelistic lines, and by conferences with officers, committees and college professors. Bible classes have been organized with over 350 student members, and mission study classes with about 50 members, while systematic giving to missions has been started in several institutions. Many interviews were held with individual students concerning their personal lives or their life work, and several have been led to accept Jesus as their personal Saviour and Lord.

Three state conventions have been attended at which conferences were conducted for the college delegates, and for the presidents of college associations. I have also attended the international conferences held at Long Beach and Sea Girt, as well as the conference of theological students at Allegheny, and two national conventions of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Considerable time was spent in helping to plan and conduct the southern student conference at Asheville. The Northfield conference was also attended. My work has required over 25,000 miles of travel, and the writing of nearly a thousand letters.

The work in the southern field is gradually increasing in extent and influence, and the individual associations are developing, especially in Bible and in mission study. There is great need of association buildings at three important state universities, and of at least three additional state college secretaries. Until these needs are met, particularly the latter, the international secretary cannot do his most efficient work.

REPORT OF E. T. COLTON

Secretary Student Department

The student field designated as the West for which I am responsible to the International Committee is that section of the United States and Canada extending westward from the longitude of Lake Michigan to the Pacific Coast, south to Oklahoma and including that territory. In addition to the time of my work since September 1, 1900, the term for which this report is rendered covers the year of eminent service by H. W. Rose.

The work of the lamented Mr. Rose deserves to stand alone. His entire year was a marvel of Christian zeal without considering that official duties were but the beginning of the responsibility that bore upon him. He visited eighty institutions, attended eight state conventions, conducted the Pacific Coast and Lake Geneva summer conferences and western deputation conference, while administering the considerable volume of office work incident to the extensive field. His crowning service was the setting of an example in personal work that has called hundreds of men all over the West to become, like him, importunate friends of tempted men. During the year he personally led 600 men into Bible study, over 400 to discipleship in Christ, and 25 to devote their lives to foreign missions. After six months contact with the field in which this work was wrought I would further record that these remarkable figures do not measure the contribution he made to the religious life of students. Throughout the circle of a rapidly widening influence that spirit persists which another described in speaking of his Lord, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up."

During the biennial period substantial progress has been made in projecting the movement into unorganized institutions. The planting of associations in three Montana colleges in October of the present academic year removes another state from the small unorganized list. The provision made by state committees for supervision within their respective fields has been increased by the addition of three college secretaries for all or part time and two other committees are now engaging such men for the coming year. The far West still suffers from isolation. On a recent tour in the Pacific Northwest I made the first visit of an international secretary in four years. In two of the leading institutions in a state of that group were associations that had been represented in no convention or conference during the present generation of students.

The number of general secretaries has doubled. Parallel with this growth has been the development of the special conference for these officers and their presidents at the close of the Lake Geneva conference. The large universities have shared in the general Bible study advance. Some have reached the 200 mark in enrollment. Marked spiritual awakenings have been experienced at the Universities of Indiana, Illinois, Washington, Oregon, and California, Leland Stanford Junior University, the Iowa State Normal at Cedar Falls, the Southern Illinois State Normal at Carbondale and Cornell College, Ia. Thirty-six associations represented at Lake Geneva in 1900 reported six or more conversions through their work during the college year then closing. This fruitfulness is at once the result and the cause of a growing emphasis placed upon personal work as a method in leading students to Jesus Christ.

REPORT OF GEORGE GLEASON

Secretary Student Department

During my service of two years, ending September 1, 1900, as student secretary for work in preparatory schools with the International Committee, besides attending the usual student conventions and summer conferences which fall to the lot of a student secretary, the following results have been brought about:

At the beginning of my work preparatory military academies were an undeveloped field. Now some of the most successful preparatory school associations are in institutions of this kind. In several of these schools there have been remarkable conversions.

In denominational preparatory schools, the associations have been strengthened and simplified so that they are accomplishing a better work than formerly.

Until the winter of 1899–1900 nothing has been done in the way of organized Christian work in the private day schools of the large cities. Successful associations have been started, however, in Chicago and Philadelphia, and it has been shown that successful Christian work is possible in this class of schools.

At North Adams, Mass., Dayton, Ohio, Albany and Brooklyn, N. Y., high school departments have been organized under the city associations. This has shown that even the high schools of the country are a field for the student work. In all nineteen new associations have been formed.

Digitized by Google

A pamphlet with fifty suggested subjects for religious meetings for preparatory schools has been prepared and published.

The preparation of a special course of Bible study for school associations has been secured. It is based on the Gospel of St. Mark and was prepared by W. D. Murray, of New York.

With the assistance of student associations a large amount of deputation work from the colleges to the preparatory schools has been developed and suggestions as to the best methods of doing this work have been sent to several colleges.

At the student conference at Northfield in the summer of 1900, a meeting of masters from preparatory schools was held and a regular program carried out, twelve teachers being present.

The part of my work, however, which I believe has contributed most to the student movement of this continent is the universities' camp for preparatory schools, which was held last August at Gloucester, Mass. Twenty-five school boys and thirteen college men were in attendance. Before camp broke up all but one or two of the boys had expressed their desire of becoming followers of Jesus Christ. The interest in the camp was so great that it was decided to make it a permanent feature of the student work. This camp was conducted without expense to the student movement other than my time in arranging for it.

REPORT OF F. BOYD EDWARDS

Secretary Student Department

During the six months of my service under the International Committee I have visited thirty institutions—twenty-three in the United States and seven in the Maritime Provinces of Canada. The total number of students in these institutions is about 5,000, of which number 1,000 are enrolled as more or less active members of the association. In nineteen of the institutions there were associations already organized, in six new organizations were formed and in six the existing associations were developed. There are now among the thirty schools visited six in which no associations exist; five of these have other religious organizations.

Bible study in some form is more or less thoroughly developed in twenty-four of these institutions. In three at least it is a compulsory part of curriculum work; in five it is offered for voluntary exercise in Sunday-schools in churches connected with the schools. In such cases a teacher of the school is also a teacher of the Bible study class. There are few schools in which student leaders of Bible study are to be found. Several schools have adopted Mr. Murray's outline studies and many others are expected to do so next year.

Twenty-five principals of the schools visited expressed favor toward the association, although in some cases it was not found in their schools.

Hardly more than five of the associations may be said to be managed with the same energy and success that characterizes, for instance, the athletics of the school. Yet I am impressed by the ready response school boys make to one who speaks of Christianity as an interesting and engrossing element of his own personal life. Far too many have looked upon it as a matter of creed and profession, and have seen too little of it as a great and delightful working energy. I must note especially the readiness and deliberate decision with which Canadian students met my attempt to organize associations. They seemed to have been waiting for just such a movement and their schools present a very ripe field. In one school of thirty-two members twenty-seven voted to establish an association, although only nine were professing Christians. The time which can usually be given to each school is inadequate for any far-reaching evangelistic work with a definite reckoning of results; but in every school visited I gave at least one evangelistic address, besides speaking many times in churches on association work and general Christian work for and by young people. During two weeks spent in New Jersey with a definite evangelistic purpose four schools were visited; in these about forty-five boys took a definite stand for Christ, acknowledging Him as Saviour and Lord. The great happiness with which these boys have opened their hearts to the influence of the Holy Spirit, and the real sorrow they have manifested for sin in their lives, have made the work very inspiring and impressive. It indicates that we may count on the majority of students in secondary schools as ready to give themselves to Christ if only the power of God and the love of Christ be clearly shown to them as a matter of life and not merely of intellectual assent.

REPORT OF S. EARL TAYLOR

Secretary Student Department, Theological Section

Since September 1, 1899, I have visited over sixty theological seminaries of eighteen denominations, many of them repeatedly. My time has been about equally divided between work for the International Committee and work under the direction of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions. Both in 1899 and in 1900 I attended the fall conferences of secretaries of the International Committee and of the Student Volunteer Movement.

September 15 to December 20, 1899, was spent in special preparation for, and in working up the theological conferences held in Oberlin, Ohio, and Madison, N. J., and after these conferences in visiting the seminaries of New England, New York and Canada in the interest of the student movement, giving addresses on Bible study, Mission study, Systematic Giving, the World's Student Christian Federation, the Theological Department of the Young Men's Christian Association, Secret Prayer, etc.; December 20, 1899 to January 25, 1900, I spent in traveling and in visitation in England, Scotland and Ireland. I attended the London convention of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union of Great Britain, speaking on the Student Volunteer Movement of North America, and on the Theological Section of the Student Department of the Young Men's Christian Association. My time before, during and after the convention was occupied in interviewing the leaders of the British movement and the student leaders of other lands.

From January to May, 1900, I traveled among the seminaries in student volunteer work. At each seminary visited addresses were delivered on life work, and in each case the addresses were followed by personal interviews. Wherever possible the executive committees of the associations were met and conferences held concerning the development of an all-round association work. During May, 1900, I helped in the promotion of the student missionary campaign in various denominations. In addition to some special work in the Methodist Episcopal Church, I have assisted in organizing the campaigns in thirteen other denominations. In June and July I attended the student conferences at Lake Geneva and Northfield, assisting in the missionary institutes and at the life work meetings. During the summer vacation period I kept constantly in touch with the missionary campaign leaders of the various denominations who were endeavoring to promote a better missionary life among the young people of the churches.

Six weeks in the fall of 1900 were spent in preparation for and working up the triennial theological convention held in Allegheny, Pa.

Since November, 1900, in addition to general oversight of the theological field, I have been, by special arrangement, devoting the major part of my time to developing the missionary interest of the young people of the churches.

ARMY AND NAVY DEPARTMENT*

REPORT OF J. H. BANKS

Army Secretary

During the early part of 1899 a considerable portion of time was given to the navy, particularly in connection with organization and equipment of the work of the naval branch in Brooklyn. Since July, 1899, my undivided attention has been given to the development and extension of association work in the army. The rapid growth of the movement in Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Alaska and China as well as in home posts has necessitated the giving of much time to the correspondence required for its direction, to the obtaining and forwarding of supplies and equipment, and to cooperation in securing secretaries for the various fields.

In addition to assisting in securing the services of Fred B. Smith for the committee I arranged the itinerary for his last evangelistic tour of the southern camps in the early part of 1899 and later for his visit to Cuba. Frank W. Smith was engaged for evangelistic work among soldiers in 1899. He also visited a number of cities in the Central West in the interest of the department.

Several report forms and three pamphlets concerning the work have been prepared and considerable attention given to securing reports of work from the different fields, including those relating to the Army Department for the year books of 1900 and 1901. The material for the Army and Navy Department exhibit at the Grand Rapids convention was gathered and arranged, and preliminary work has been done on a similar exhibit for the Boston convention. A combined record book for the use of the army association has been prepared and published by the committee. For use in army posts a system of traveling libraries, now including seventy-four well-selected collections, has been planned and put into operation. The Soldiers' Bible and Prayer League has been organized. Its object is the binding together of Christian soldiers for mutual help, who as a condition of membership agree to read a certain portion of Scripture and pray for a stated object each day. Its rapidly increasing membership now includes men in China, the Philippines, Cuba, Porto Rico and the States, and gives promise that the organization will be a useful factor in the development of the religious life of the men who are now, or in the future may become members of Army associations. Six conferences and conventions have been attended and seventy-five addresses given at association gatherings.

*See also report of W. B. Millar, page 39.

Digitized by Google

The organization of associations in the different forts in the United States, although hampered by the frequent changes of the garrisons on account of the need of troops for foreign service, has progressed very satisfactorily. The readiness of the soldiers to ally themselves to the association movement has made it possible to open work at thirteen points, and steps preliminary to organization have been taken at twelve others. All but two of the points of work are branches of city associations. The organization of the work has presented many problems, calling for frequent conference and close supervision. In the period covered by this report, nearly one hundred visits to twenty-one forts in ten states have been made and interviews held with fifty-two officers and forty-two secretaries concerning the establishment of the work. All of these associations, except the Governor's Island branch of New York City, occupy rooms or buildings provided by army authorities; some of them quite commodious and all very comfortable. The generosity of a friend has made it possible for the New York association to have the distinction of being the first to erect a building especially for army work. It was dedicated in October, 1900, and its use has proved the desirability of having specially planned buildings for the work. In inaugurating the movement which made the building necessary, as well as in planning it, I gave a considerable portion of time, feeling that it was important to develop at the headquarters of the East a work which would be an object lesson to the commandants of other posts. The commanding and other officers have been uniformly cordial and have cooperated in every way possible. Their friendly help has been a valuable contribution toward securing whatever success has been attained at each of the posts.

COLORED MEN'S DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF W. A. HUNTON

Secretary of Colored Men's Department

The period covered by this report was the most progressive in the history of the Colored Men's Department. At the beginning of that period J. E. Moorland had been only two months in the service of the International Committee as my associate While his work was mainly devoted to the supervision of work in cities, he also visited several student associations and cooperated in the holding of conferences as shown in his report.

City Work.—I made fifteen visits to nine city associations and organized new associations in Atlanta, New Orleans and Baton Rouge. Considerable time was given to the development of the work in Atlanta to which field a secretary will soon be called. I also assisted in canvassing funds for Atlanta, Norfolk, Va., and Charleston, S. C.

Student Work.—The first associations among colored young men were organized in the schools of the South. Special attention has always been given this student branch as the foundation upon which the city associations are built. I spent 198 days visiting 46 different student associations in 12 different states. I organized associations in nine institutions and kept in touch by correspondence with those not visited. The number of students in association Bible classes increased nearly one hundred per cent, and personal workers' bands were organized in several of the largest institutions. Ten of these student associations have furnished rooms, while the association of Tuskegee Institute is raising funds for an association building.

Conferences and Conventions.—I attended the international convention at Grand Rapids, the secretaries' conference at Thousand Island Park, the September conferences of the International Committee and the secretaries, and student conferences at Northfield. I planned, arranged for and conducted, with Mr. Moorland's cooperation, six inter-state conferences of colored associations, and assisted in conducting three other inter-state conferences and also the first conference of colored general secretaries, held at Hampton. I attended the conference at Montgomery, Ala., for the study of "the race problem," and the Negro conferences at Hampton and Tuskegee.

Office Work, etc.—A little more than two months of each year was devoted to office work—keeping in close touch with our ever growing student field, preparing the way for visits to associations, issuing announcements of and securing delegates for our six conferences and conducting other correspondence. Some of this time was spent in study, in the preparation of two pamphlets, and in planning work with my associate. I spent one month soliciting funds for the International Committee, delivered 140 gospel, anniversary and other public addresses, attended numerous meetings of committees, cabinets and boards of directors and two meetings of state committees. I also visited five city and three student fields for work preparatory to organizing associations.

Summary.—The Colored Men's Department enters upon its work in the new century with 83 associations, 62 of which are among students and 21 in cities. These have an aggregate of more than 5,000 members. Two international and eight general secretaries are devoting their entire time to the work. Six associations own real estate valued at $30,000.

Twelve associations have well-appointed reading rooms and small libraries. Night schools and literary societies are conducted with ever increasing benefit. As centers of the social and religious life of the young men who throng our cities, these associations are exerting an abiding moral and religious influence.

Our annual conferences are breaking down sectionalism and sectarianism, and are binding together the best elements of the 2,000,000 colored young men of the United States as one great army of earnest Christian workers, making this association movement a mighty bulwark against the evils that assail the race and a powerful agency for the extension of the kingdom of righteousness throughout the world.

REPORT OF J. E. MOORLAND

Secretary Colored Men's Department

The greater portion of my time for the past two years has been given to city work. I aided in planning for the erection of the new building at Norfolk, Va., assisted in canvassing for funds for its completion and gave much time in looking after the details connected with the construction of the building and its equipment. I have assisted a number of associations in financial canvasses for current expenses and have had frequent conferences with officers and committeemen on methods and plans for work.

Considerable time has been given to the securing of competent secretaries, and this most difficult of tasks has not been without satisfactory results. Careful investigation has been made of some important new fields. These, as well as the older ones, are constantly demanding counsel and supervision.

There is a spirit of awakening among colored men to do something for their fellows, and we are led to believe that many friends see in the association a means for applying the principles of the gospel in a practical way to the needs of colored young men in the cities and towns of many parts of the land. Just now there is need of the closest supervision possible of the entire city field. I have labored to make the work practical and to get at real conditions, also to adapt the means at hand in such a way as to do the greatest good. Encouraging results have been secured and a rich harvest is confidently expected in the near future.

I attended the international conferences and convention at Grand Rapids, the secretaries' conference at Thousand Island Park and the international secretaries' conferences at Long Branch and Sea Girt. I have attended also the inter-state conferences for colored associations at Atlanta, Nashville, Orangeburg, Norfolk, Tuskegee, Tougaloo, Salisbury and Baltimore. It was my duty to make the plans and complete the arrangements for those held at Nashville, Norfolk and Baltimore. I attended the volunteer workers' conference at Lake Geneva in July, 1900, and a Bible conference at Knoxville, Tenn., which promises much for colored people. I also arranged for the first conference of general secretaries and other paid agents of colored associations, held at Hampton, Va., in July, 1900. This conference will be repeated at opportune times.

I made thirty-six visits among student associations of twenty-four schools in ten states and organized five student associations. The conversion of young men, improvement of Christian character and more intense and practical work have been among the results. In a few cases revivals followed.

Much attention has been given to Bible study; no very flattering results, however, have yet been accomplished outside of the schools although the way has been cleared of many difficulties. I have been successful in interesting quite a number in some of the courses issued by the International Committee. Much time has been spent in keeping in touch with the city associations by correspondence.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF GEORGE B. HODGE

Secretary Educational Department

The work of the Educational Department during the last two years has steadily developed in strength and quality, and in respect gained. While the number of different associations giving definite attention to educational features has not largely increased, the number of men helped and the efficiency of the work done is much in excess of any previous period. Each student has given more hours to the work each season, the attendance has been more regular and the faithfulness and ability of the teachers has increased. The students appreciate the increased quality of work by paying extra tuition fees. These fees in total have grown from $2,000 in 1893, to $38,000 in 1900.

The growth and interest in the examinations has been most encouraging. In 1900, 134 associations voluntarily participated, and 1,566 men were succesful in winning international certificates. These examinations have so strengthened the educational work that similar examinations were instituted in Bible study last year. The first experience has already proved very beneficial to that work.

October 1, 1900, A. G. Bookwalter was secured by the International Committee to aid in developing the interests of the educational work as a whole, but for the present to give special attention to promoting social economics, civics and the affiliated subjects. He has already proved himself tactful, able and successful.

The complete reports of this department are published annually July 1, after the close of the school year, and consequently are separate from the Year Book.

REPORT OF ALFRED G. BOOKWALTER

Secretary Educational Department

Coming to the International Committee October 1, 1901, just as the educational year started, the short period which this report covers records little more than an attempt to gain a view-point from which to work out plans for the coming year in the special field to which I have been invited.

The visitation of 104 associations in 23 states and provinces and attendance upon the international railroad conference, five state conventions, and the educational conference in New York, indicate the sources from which I have tried to draw helpful suggestion, and serve to define a "school of experience," in this way coming in touch with leaders in the association brotherhood and getting at the best present development, as well as the needs, of the general work, the educational work as a whole, and more especially the particular phase of it bearing upon good citizenship.

Among the various agencies found already organized with more or less definable work to this end, should be mentioned the classes in social economics, political science, history and civil government; literary and debating societies and congresses; clubs of various nature and name—such as the "New Century Club," "Equality Club," "Pro and Con Club," "Up-to-date Club," "Social Service Club," "Success Club," etc.; practical talks and lectures on questions of social, economic and political interest; and hardly less directly, the reading rooms and libraries. These organizations have been studied, the successful ones marked in method and character, and the difficulties and failures of others learned and noted with equal care.

This gathering of material has been supplemented with some activity in definite promotion of the work :—meeting with educational committees and executive officers, and discussing and suggesting to them, plans for next year; starting of several classes in social economics; organization of at least four debating clubs, with reference to economic and political work as fundamental; suggestion for improvement of the work of literary societies and congresses by using "Outlines of Social Economics" and similar literature as a basis for some serious progressive study; naming to associations magazines and books that discuss soundly the problems of municipal and national welfare, which should be found in every association reading room and library; and presentation of this field of educational work before four state conventions, the educational conference, and the two training schools, and in more general terms, addressing the students of four colleges. Through correspondence, attempt has also been made to stimulate the successful life of the various agencies that make for good government and citizenship.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF LUTHER GULICK

Secretary Physical Department

During the last two years my most interesting and I believe most important pieces of work have been in connection with the publication of the physical directors' reading course letters and with the physical directors' conferences.

The reading course letter has been published monthly in conjunction with the association athletic league letter during the winter and has covered the following topics : The Development of the City as Related to the Health and Muscular Development of Young Men ; the Physical Condition and Activities of City Young Men ; the Biological Basis of Muscular Exercise ; Epitome of the Physiology of Exercise, the Neurological aspects of Muscular Exercise ; Place and Limits of Specialization in Physical Training ; Place and Limits of Competition in Physical Training ; the Effects of the Different Kinds of Physical Exercise Upon the Body and the Mind ; Historical Sketch of the Development of Physical Training within the Association ; The Grading of Men in Physical work.

The last two physical directors' conferences were held at Dayton, Ohio, and at Thousand Island Park, the latter in connection with the international secretaries' conference. At the Dayton conference I presented a series of addresses on the Study of Boys. Much of this was original work. At the physical directors' conference at Thousand Island Park I presented a series of lectures on The Use of Exercise in the Treatment of Certain Diseases.

The usual correspondence has been carried on. This has related to the qualifications of men for different positions, the equipment of gymnasiums, of bath and dressing rooms, athletic fields, the conduct of field days, as well as of the regular work, and the religious work in the Physical Department, counsel in regard to exercise in special cases, to the outline of reading courses for those who wish to do more advanced work.

I have attended the usual number of state conventions and have been active particularly in connection with the Association Athletic League in promoting the interests of clean sport. The development of sentiment in favor of high character in athletics has been steady and encouraging.

REPORT OF GEORGE T. HEPBRON

Secretary Physical Department

My work has been largely of an executive nature. I have held conferences for the extension and broadening and deepening of the clean sport principle; have assisted in establishing the practical value of the affiliation between the Association Athletic League and the Amateur Athletic Union; and have secured a verbal agreement between the National Cyclists' Association and the Association Athletic League which has resulted in the league's control of its own bicycle races. This is an advance over anything yet received from the national controlling bodies of cycle racing and completes the league's right to fully control all games held between associations.

I have been appointed secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union national basket ball committee and interpreter of the national basket ball rules. This is important as it allows the rules to be interpreted in sympathy with the best association sentiment. I have done the usual visiting to the associations. Have been the examiner of the league official basket ball and striking bag.

I have attended and assisted at annual physical directors' conferences, and have served in an official capacity at various gymnastic and athletic meets. I have collected information showing that the majority of the physical directors in the larger associations personally conduct Bible classes, and have ascertained through correspondence that the majority of the physical directors are favorable to the league's taking the initiative in putting bowling on an amateur basis.

I have carried on correspondence with the associations relating to the following matters:—Buildings, athletic records, suspension and reinstatement of associations and individuals, securing of physical directors, difficulties between associations and Amateur Athletic Union officials, registration of individuals, sanctions for games of all description, interpretation of basket ball rules, arrangements for Amateur Athletic Union basket ball championships, etc.

The last two years have been marked:—(1) In the development of a higher standard for gymnastics and athletics in the associations; (2) in the practical work done in establishing a cleaner atmosphere in the athletic world generally outside the confines of association endeavor; (3) in the recognition of the associations' influence and standing through the contact of other organizations with them in an athletic way; (4) in that the association has demonstrated that when it takes a stand for clean, manly athletics and enters the right men in outside games, its influence counts for good and the athletics of that city outside of association circles are visibly elevated.

RELIGIOUS WORK DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF FRED B. SMITH

Special Secretary Religious Work

Inauguration.—The Religious Work Department was undertaken as a culmination of the growing sentiment that the International Committee should give increased attention to the development of the distinct feature of religious effort. Other phases of the movement had enjoyed such helpful supervision that it seemed reasonable that the work recognized by all as of paramount importance should receive similar special attention. The conservative argument that such special attention would relieve of responsibility for this chief department those in all departments who were obligated to give it first consideration no longer appeared sufficient to deter the committee from careful experimental work in this direction. I was asked to take up the work January 1, 1899. The following is a brief summary of the first two years:

Vital Principles.—Not a little time and thought was necessary to decide upon the methods to be employed. Many conferences were held with members and secretaries of the committee to determine upon a careful basis that would render the largest benefit to the cause. Four fundamental needs were agreed upon:

1. To stimulate an increased number of the active members of the associations to personal cooperation in the prosecution of the distinct features of religious effort.

2. To bring to the attention of the associations more fully the fourfold religious work, namely,—Bible study, religious meetings, personal work, and foreign missions, and to impress the need that every organization should participate in each.

3. To assist in developing the committee system in the individual organizations so that the complete work might be prosecuted and a larger number of young men be developed in Christian activity.

4. To place added emphasis upon the need of more of the evangelistic spirit. Realizing that the crowning work must be the leading of young men to Christ, it seemed fitting that this feature should receive particular attention.

Method.—It was fully agreed that what was needed in order to accomplish these results was not to evolve more theories, but rather to come into personal contact with the problems in actual campaigning. Two general methods were adopted:

1. The visiting of as many local associations as possible for the purpose of presenting the needs and conferring about the adoption of improved plans.

Digitized by Google

2. Attendance at various conventions and conferences of association leaders for the same purpose.

These have formed the basis for the major portion of the two years' work.

Visitation.—I have conducted religious work conferences, from two to eight days in length, with 74 different associations. In nearly every instance these have been arranged for and conducted in conjunction with the state secretaries and committees. They were held in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, Michigan, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, California, and British Columbia.

I attended the following association gatherings: the state conventions of South Carolina, Tennessee, Indiana, Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin (twice), Michigan, Washington Oregon, California, Maritime Provinces; the international convention, international secretaries' conference, international railroad conference, and a number of sectional conferences.

I have visited for evangelistic work the following places: Military camps in Cuba; Huntsville and Anniston, Ala.; Albany, Macon, Augusta and Ft. McPherson, Ga.; Greenville and Columbia, S C.; and Forts Logan, Slocum, Crook, Columbus, Wadsworth, Sheridan, Porter and Presidio, and the Brooklyn Navy Yard; the state universities of Tennessee, Indiana, Nevada and Wisconsin; Iowa College, Grinnell, Ia.; State Normal, Cedar Falls, Ia.; and Occidental College, Los Angeles, Cal.

Results.—It would be impossible to give any accurate statistics as to results. Very encouraging tidings have come from the various fields telling of increased enrollment in Bible classes and greater interest in the missionary department, but perhaps the largest blessing has been given in the evangelistic feature. I have tried to improve every opportunity of joining hands with local men for the definite winning of unconverted men to Christ. At nearly every place visited one or more such services have been conducted, the total being 194, in which 2,612 men professed to accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour, and declared by individual testimony their purpose to live Christian lives. The number given includes none who went no further than to request prayer.

General.—While giving continued and chief attention to the distinctive spiritual forces of the movement, it has been my desire to render assistance to the entire cause in all its departments. This has been done in many ways, such as aiding in financial canvasses, building movements, and in securing secretaries.

REPORT OF DON O. SHELTON

Special Secretary Religious Work

The following report covers the six months' period ending December, 31, 1900.

The Points Visited.—During this time I attended secretaries' conferences and state conventions in Ontario, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa; Bible conferences at Eagles Mere, Pa., and Winona Lake, Ind., and also visited the following twenty-seven associations: in New Jersey, Trenton, Jersey City, Orange and Plainfield; in Illinois, Springfield

Digitized by Google

Peoria, Kewanee, Canton, Rockford, Sterling, Evanston, and six departments in the city of Chicago; in Iowa, Ottumwa, Davenport, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Muscatine, Keokuk, Sioux City, and Clinton; in Indiana, Evansville; in Minnesota, St. Paul.

The Plan of Work.—The following was the plan of campaign at nearly all of the association points visited. (1) A meeting of the board of directors, committeemen and active members for the purpose of showing that the promotion of Bible study is an essential part of the mission of the Young Men's Christian Association, and that an association that fails to do its utmost fully to develop a Bible study department will suffer seriously. The aim was to present clearly and forcibly the purposes and possibilities of the Bible study department, and to impress upon each one present his personal responsibility for its thorough and extensive development. (2) A meeting for all young men. Here the object was to show why every young man should study the Bible regularly and systematically, and to lead every man present to join the Bible class of the local association. (3) A conference of the local religious work committee for the purpose of organization and for the discussion and adoption of approved methods of work.

The Character of the Service.—In all these meetings the purpose has been to incite workers to raise the standard of teaching methods in Bible classes; to lead them to stand for the best methods of Bible study; to direct their work so that it should have a practical bearing upon the lives of men; and to improve the quality of all phases of the religious work. Committees have been counseled to systematize their work; to promote regular attendance on the part of Bible students; and, as far as possible, to lead all members to look forward to, and to take advantage of, the International Committee's examinations in Bible study.

Over sixty conferences have been held with committees and secretaries regarding suitable courses of study, in which the scope and purpose of the courses recommended in the Religious Work Prospectus were pointed out. These conferences were of special value and gave direction to the work of the entire season.

Interest was also aroused in many associations by means of correspondence. Early in the summer letters were sent to 700 associations, suggesting a simple method of Bible study for the summer months.

At secretaries' conferences and state conventions the scheme of work outlined in the Relgious Work Prospectus and the claims of the entire religious work upon the committeemen and active members in attendance were carefully presented. In every case the responses of delegates and of state and local secretaries were most cordial and encouraging.

Upon request, addresses have been given to college students, and conferences have been had with secretaries of local college associations and with chairmen of Bible study departments.

Help has also been given, incidentally, in connection with the promotion of association work in mission lands; in behalf of personal effort for the salvation of men; and, (by addresses in churches) in the interests of the general work of many local associations. It has been considered a privilege to present to many large audiences the scope and success of the association's activities, its superb adaptation to the needs of this present age, and its strong claims upon Christian people for generous support.

The Value of Personal Contact.—In these conferences the most capable men in the association are reached. The plan followed has not only insured a thorough presentation of the claims of the Bible study department, but also it has afforded opportunity for an adequate discussion of this vital part of association work by the men who are directly responsible for the activities of the associations visited. These presentations and discussions have resulted in an enlarged conception of the possibilities of the Bible study department and in the adoption of the most approved methods of work.

Personal contact with such large numbers of committeemen and active members in various cities and states not only has proved valuable to the associations visited, but also information has been secured which will be exceedingly useful in the development of the Bible study departments of the American associations. The knowledge acquired by this intimate association with men who are dealing with actual conditions will enable us, it is believed, to deal more intelligently and satisfactorily with the great problems which we are called upon to solve.

The following incident illustrates the value of personal contact in connection with the work of this department. An association that was being visited desired to organize a Bible class for business men, but had neither teacher nor students. As the conference progressed a bank cashier, a member of the board of directors, became deeply interested and suggested that an effort be made to secure as teacher of the class a talented professor in the State Normal College. We called upon this man and the claims of the proposed class were presented. Though burdened with engagements, he said it was an opportunity he could not permit to pass, and consented to take the class. For the purpose of securing scholars it was suggested that the business men of the city be seen and that they be asked to enroll. The bank cashier joined the general secretary and myself and together we made the canvass, calling upon twenty prominent men. At the end of an hour an enrollment of twenty had been secured, among them two bank cashiers, two bank presidents and four attorneys. The others were among the best known young business men of the city. This gratifying result has led to similar effort in other cities with encouraging results in every instance.

The Results Indicated in Part by Personal Testimonies.—A general secretary said: "This visit has enabled us to accomplish more in three days than we would have been able to accomplish in six months without it." Later he wrote that seven Bible classes were being conducted, and that the committee expected that the enrollment would reach one hundred before the close of the month. No Bible classes were conducted in this association the previous year.

Many similar testimonies indicate that the visits greatly invigorated the associations included in the tours and were productive of substantial and unprecedented gains, increasing the enrollment in many cases one hundred per cent and more. Perhaps the most significant of these testimonies to the value of the work are the requests that have come for the same service next year from all the states visited.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF E. M. ROBINSON

Secretary Boys' Department

Since beginning my service with the committee September 15, 1900, I have spent the greater part of the time in the study of the work now carried on for boys, and in presenting its claims to local gatherings, conferences and conventions. I have visited twenty-seven states and provinces, observing the work and advising with association representatives and others; and I have attended twelve conferences on boys' work and six state conventions.

Among the significant things noted, are the great interest manifested by both local and state authorities, the large projects under consideration in many leading associations, the plans of several associations for boys' buildings, the rapidly increasing number of boys' work secretaries, the special interest taken in efforts for employed boys, and the place given to the discussion of boys' work at state conventions and training schools. The statement that work for boys is not in any way inferior in importance to the work for men is accepted by many though not by all.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF GALEN M. FISHER

Secretary for Japan

The record of my activity during the past two years is of necessity largely intertwined with the facts as reported by your corresponding member for Japan, yet I may give them a more personal flavor. Increasing acquaintance with the Japanese language has not only made personal work more practicable but has given me also an inside grasp of men and situations. I have prosecuted my study with a teacher almost daily (except during six months abroad), and have lately ventured to try my tongue in prayer and in brief remarks.

The resignation of Messrs. Swift and Miller has added to my responsibilities, although the latter has continued to give invaluable counsel and to retain his connection with the Tokyo association. The welcome coming of Mr. and Mrs. Helm ranks only second to the coming of Mrs. Fisher.

The correspondence and other labor connected with the annual summer school has been considerable, but its growing power has been one of the cheering features of the work. The same may be said of the four district training conferences which I have attended almost invariably.

The heaviest single task has been the preparation and publication of the book of studies in the life of Christ, for inductive daily study for twenty-five weeks. They are less exacting than Mr. Sharman's, but seem a little advanced for most Japanese students; especially for the classes of mixed Christian and non-Christian membership. Yet they have been introduced and are helping to raise the standard.

Twice or three times each year I have made trips in company with Japanese secretaries or leaders to different groups of associations, conferring with workers and addressing many evangelistic meetings and district conferences. The eagerness of students everywhere to hear about Christianity is a constant stimulus.

As the representative of the International Committee and of the Japanese associations towards both the missionary body and the associations abroad, I have had not a little correspondence. This is one of my pleasantest duties. Whether it be asking for money for the summer school or to help cover President Honda's expenses to the Versailles conference or urging faithful observance of the day of prayer, the response invariably has been hearty. Last fall it was my privilege to read a paper before the general conference of Protestant missionaries of Japan on "Methods of Reaching the Student Class and Young Men's Christian Association Work."

My periodical absences from Tokyo make consecutive work here impractible. Yet I have taught a student Bible class and evening English classes in the Tokyo city association, and also for a short time an advanced class in the life of Christ. First and last the time spent aiding the Tokyo association, especially in a musical way, has been considerable.

Some years ago twelve American college graduates were placed in as many government schools in Japan as teachers of English by Mr. Swift in cooperation with the International Committee. They came out to be in effect self-supporting lay missionaries. Several positions again have been put at our disposal, and it seems like a providential opportunity to fill them with earnest men in thorough sympathy with our work. In this connection considerable correspondence has been conducted. From it we hope for far-reaching results.

These two years have seemed peculiarly brief because of the anticipation and realization of my six months' furlough, etc., in America and our trip around the world. The speaking at the Pacific Coast conference, the teaching of normal Bible classes at Lake Geneva and Northfield, added to the friendships made or renewed, all united to form a rich experience, while the contact with so many leaders at Versailles was as interesting as it was profitable. We enjoyed our long and varied sight seeing in Europe and our trip by way of Colombo and China to Japan only less than getting settled in our own home ready for our joint life-work here in the realm of the Rising Sun.

REPORT OF V. W. HELM

Secretary in Japan

During the student summer conference at Northfield in 1899, I was appointed associate secretary for Japan. From September 1 to 14, I attended the conference of secretaries of the International Committee and the Student Volunteer Movement at Long Reach. Before sailing, I visited twelve city associations in the interest of the Volunteer League and the International Committee's foreign work and nineteen college associations as a secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement.

On November 17, 1899, Mrs. Helm and myself sailed from San Francisco. En route to Japan we stopped at Honolulu and with W. J. Southam, secretary to Hong-kong, visited two student associations as representatives of the World's Student Christian Federation.

Digitized by Google

We reached Tokyo December 6, where we were met and well cared for by the committee's secretaries. We found a warm welcome from missionaries and officers and members of the association. Within twelve days we were settled in our own home. My work in Japan has been practically coextensive with the year 1900.

The first and most important occupation has been language study. With the exception of the summer vacation five mornings a week regularly have been given to the study. In order to become most proficient for the work this amount of time at least should be devoted to the language for the next three years after which it may be gradually decreased.

Being kept close to Tokyo by language study my work has been largely in connection with the Tokyo association, my relation to which was defined by the board of directors in electing me an honorary secretary. Besides conference and cooperation in the affairs of supervision I have taught English two evenings a week in the evening school, and have helped to secure foreign teachers for the other evenings ; I have assisted in directing the English speaking society ; have taught an English Bible class, have edited the English department of the Shinseiki (New Century), the monthly magazine of the Tokyo association which we expect to make the organ of the national union of city associations when that organization is perfected. I have had also regular hours at the association building for personal conferences and interviews with Japanese young men. I have assisted in the organization of a women's auxiliary, composed principally of foreign ladies, which through its entertainment, reception, decoration, library and coffee room committees has rendered exceedingly valuable assistance. We have enjoyed a weekly secretaries' conference in which Mr. Miller, Mr. Fisher and myself were joined by Mr. Niwa, general secretary of the Tokyo association, and by the Japanese traveling secretary of the Japanese Student Christian Union.

Traveling work for supervision and extension could easily consume the entire time. However, owing to the conditions above stated it has seemed wise to limit the travel to two tours of about one week each, and these practically to the same points, comprising the most important, the most insistent and ripest city fields outside of Tokyo. On both these trips I have had the company and indispensable aid of Mr. Niwa, whose eight years of experience as general secretary in Tokyo, study of association problems, travel among American associations, and knowledge of the needs of Japanese young men have qualified him for association leadership. In March we visited the cities of Nagoya, Kyoto, Kobe and Osaka, and in November again we visited the last three. Next to Tokyo these are the largest four cities in the empire and require early and uninterrupted attention. Kobe and Osaka, within an hour by rail of each other, are fast becoming the greatest commercial and manufacturing centers of Japan. In both cities there are comparatively active associations waiting for strong leadership to develop them into agencies of unlimited power. There should very soon be an American secretary resident in this field to cultivate jointly these two cities, advising, assisting and training native workers. Yokohama, the next largest city, is within an hour by rail of Tokyo. Here is a wide-awake young association with a strong band of officers and workers most of whom are graduates of mission or other schools. I am able to make frequent visits to Yokohama and keep in quite close touch with the work. Contact with the remainder of the field has been by correspondence, but extended visits are urgently needed.

Early in the summer, immediately after it was decided to dispatch Japanese troops in considerable nnmbers to China, attention was given to assisting the association in organizing work among the soldiers, mention of which is made in the report of our corresponding member. I had the pleasure of spending a few days in August with Robert R. Gailey in Yokohama, during which time contributions of over $400 (gold) were secured from American and British business men to enable him to begin work among the soldiers in Tientsin.

During the general conference of Protestant missionaries in Japan held in the Tokyo association building in October, it was a privilege to have many interviews with missionaries from all parts of the country concerning the association, and to conduct a conference with missionaries from the smaller cities (30,000 to 100,000 population) concerning special work for young men. Those present urged the necessity of cultivating this field and requested the secretaries to prepare a constitution and a suggested outline of work.

During the year an advisory committee has been formed composed of leading members of the largest missions represented in Tokyo. This committee is to bear special relations to your secretaries. The varied and extended experience of the members together with their deep interest in the association makes possible valuable assistance from them.

One of the least anticipated but most delightful experiences of the year was a conference in Tokyo of secretaries of the International Committee in China and Japan. Those present from China were Messrs. Lyon, Brockman and Southam, and from Japan, Messrs. Miller and Fisher and myself. We had the pleasure of welcoming at several sessions J. T. Swift, formerly the committee's secretary for Japan. This conference proved so valuable that all present most earnestly hope provision may be made for many conferences of a simiar nature in the future.

REPORT OF D. WILLARD LYON

Secretary for China

The first three months of the year 1899 were occupied with editorial work, language study, and office work preparatory to the second triennial convention of the college Young Men's Christian Association of China held in Shanghai in May. In April I compiled "The Association Hymnal," a collection of hymns and gospel songs in the Chinese language, designed for use in association conventions and conferences; and translated into Chinese the report of the National Committee which was later presented at the convention. May was filled with duties connected with and growing out of the convention itself. It was a notable gathering: (1) In its attendance. There were fifty-four Chinese and forty-eight foreign delegates. The Chinese delegates came from twenty-four colleges, located in nine provinces. The average age of the Chinese delegates, which was twenty-five years, indicated that they were largely upper class men and men of mature minds. (2) In its language. All the sessions of the convention were held in the Mandarin language. The only interpreted addresses were those given by foreigners who were unable to speak Chinese Mandarin. So far as we know this is the first widely representative gathering of Chinese Christians in which one language was intelligible to all, or nearly all, of the delegates. (3) In its spiritual tone. The Spirit of God had prepared the hearts of the speakers, whose messages in almost every instance were uttered with convincing power, and also the hearts of the hearers, whose ideals were raised and whose motives were purified by the faithful presentation of spiritual truth.

The three months following the convention were largely taken up with the ordinary duties as editor of The Chinese Intercollegian, our monthly organ, the editing of which implies the personal preparation in Chinese of practically every article or item which appears in its pages; the same work in the English language would probably not require more than one-tenth the labor. In the latter part of August we moved our residence from Tung-chou, where we had been living for fifteen months, to Peking. In September, I completed the preparation in Chinese of a pamphlet which I had begun in June, entitled "A Commentary on the Model Constitution for a College Association." In October when I had intended starting on a tour to the south for the purpose of visiting some of the colleges and also of welcoming Walter J. Southam, the International Committee's representative for Hong-kong who was soon to arrive, I was suddenly taken ill with typhoid fever. God saw fit to spare my life, and by the end of December much of my normal strength had been restored to me.

During the first two months of 1900, being obliged to work at low pressure, I found my time fully occupied with editorial work. About March 1 I started south on a three months' tour of visitation among the colleges. I visited seventeen college associations, two intercollegiate associations whose membership included seven more colleges, and eight other schools and colleges. I also visited and addressed the new Chinese city association in Shanghai. I had the privilege of having extended conferences with each of my fellow secretaries; Robert R. Gailey, at Tientsin; Robert E. Lewis, at Shanghai; Fletcher S. Brockman, at Nanking; and Walter J. Southam, at Hong-kong. I participated in the national Christian Endeavor convention held at Foochow and attended by Dr. F. E. Clark.

Five years previous to this tour there were only four college associations in China; one and a half years later, at the close of Mr. Mott's tour, there were twenty-seven associations, all of which entered as charter members in the formation in the fall of 1896 of the College Young Men's Christian Association of China; at the close of my tour there were forty-six college associations in eight different provinces in China. The number at the close of 1900 cannot be exactly stated owing to the fact that many of the colleges in which associations have existed have been temporarily closed by the Boxer War.

A few words to record the goodness of the Lord in preserving us from sharing personally any of the horrors of the Boxer outbreak. During my absence Mrs. Lyon had taken our two little boys with her to Paoting-fu to live with her sister, the wife of a Presbyterian Missionary in that city. Illness in her sister's family was the occasion of the entire household leaving Paoting-fu about the middle of May—less than two weeks before the other beloved friends in Paoting-fu were cut off from all communication with the outer world. Otherwise they would in all probability have also been numbered among the martyrs. On my return from the south I went immediately to Peking to secure a few things necessary for our comfort during the summer season, which we had planned to spend at the sea-side. I left Peking June 1; had I been three days later in leaving I should have been among the besieged in Peking, separated from my family. From Tientsin we went, against the advice of some of our friends, to the sea-side; had we not done so we should have been in the Tientsin siege. After the Taku forts were taken by the allied forces on June 17, we were unsafe at the sea-side, but with fully seventy other civilians and nearly one hundred British blue-jackets, we were rescued by the British store-ship Humber and carried to Taku. Those of us who were Americans were then transferred to the Nashville and transported to Chefoo, whence we scattered in different directions, some to Shanghai, some to Japan, and a few with us to Korea.

Having received instructions from the International Committee during my southern tour to make an early visit to Korea I took the opportunity furnished by our enforced absence from North China during the summer of 1900 to make a somewhat prolonged investigation of the field for association work in Seoul. We spent July, August and a half of September in the capital city of this most interesting nation. I was impressed by the ripeness of the field for association work as shown by the large number of young men accessible, their strong social instincts which would make it much easier there than in China to secure the constant using of association privileges, the cordiality with which they welcome foreigners, and the unanimity of feeling manifested by the missionaries of Seoul in desiring the work of the association to be begun in their city, as expressed in many private conversations which I had with them and in a petition which they have signed and sent to the International Committee.

In September we sailed for Japan, where I met three of my four fellow-secretaries of China, with whom I had several days of conference on the problems of readjustment growing out of the recent disturbances. Early in October a union conference of the International Committee secretaries in China and Japan was held. Although the first of its kind, we sincerely hope that it may not be the last. Similar problems face us and common purposes animate us; it is but natural that there should be large benefit in comparing notes on principles and methods of work.

Would not an all-Orient conference of secretaries to meet at some central point like Singapore or Hong-kong be likewise desirable and practicable, if held, say once in five years?

For some months I had been suffering from worn out nerves, in consequence of which, at the urgent advice of my physician and of other friends, and with the permission of the International Committee, I sailed with my family in November for America to seek rest and recuperation, arriving in San Francisco December 14, 1900.

REPORT OF ROBERT E. LEWIS

Secretary in China

Work as Traveling Secretary.—In 1899 my work as traveling secretary in China took me on extended tours in the central and southern provinces, including work at the following student points: Wuchang, Hankow, Kiukiang, Nanking, Chinkiang, Hong-kong, Canton, Swatow and Amoy. I spent several weeks in Hong-kong preparing for the arrival of the general secretary, Mr. Southam. In the summer a tour, in the heart of China, of over 800 miles in native conveyances, was made for the purpose of studying at first hand the problems of evangelization. The work in many towns and in the following cities was studied: Nanchang-fu, Chang-sha-fu, Lingkiang-fu, Tsinan-fu, Kan-chou-fu and Feng Kang.

Work as General Secretary, Shanghai.—In October, 1899, I took up the new post of general secretary of Shanghai. There was at that time a student department with 250 members. January 6, 1900, a Chinese city department, composed of college graduates, was formed. A small foreign residence was rented as the first association home. S. K. Dzaw, a graduate of St. John's college, who had also spent several years studying in Japan, resigned as a professor in the Anglo-Chinese college to become the first Chinese secretary. In January, 1900, the old English association disbanded and for the new foreign department I was able to raise for four years' expenses the sum of $40,000 (silver). During the Boxer uprising the work on the building, which was being constructed for our foreign department by special arrangement by the lessees, was at a standstill. From the Chinese city department we lost 129 members, and the college department was temporarily closed.

In September I returned from the North; the student work went on as before and the Chinese city department moved into its present commodious quarters of thirteen rooms on Nanking road. In November, 1900, a German army association with rooms on Carter road was opened with Hienrich Witt, B. A., as honorary secretary. Mr. Witt was formerly traveling student secretary in Germany. In December, 1900, Joseph Beech, B. A., (Wesleyan) became acting secretary of the Chinese city department. The Shanghai Young Men's Christian Association is now doing work in four languages; its membership has reached 750; it conducts six religious meetings and nine Bible classes per week, and during the year has enrolled 182 students in its evening classes.

Work with the Allied Armies.—In July I went north via Kiao-chou, and Chefoo, arriving at Taku two days before Mr. Gailey left for Japan. In the confusion neither knew of the other's presence. The last three weeks of July I worked to the limit of strength and with very poor facilities, for the troops assembling. On August 4, I went to the front with the army of about 2,500 men, and participated in the engagements up to the fall of Peking. My work was with the wounded, with those prostrated by the heat, while at the bivouacks we held gospel meetings. Sickness and the inability to get supplies prevented much aggressive work at the capital. The $1500 (silver) of supplies forwarded to me from Shanghai arrived too late for use in the Peking campaign. Dr. Phipps, who reached Taku just as I was leaving Tientsin with the allies for the capital, and Mr. Gailey who arrived two weeks later, took up the work, with added supplies, and are still prosecuting it with every success.

REPORT OF F. S. BROCKMAN

Secretary in China

The two years since my last report have been spent as follows: Six weeks were consumed in visits to the associations of Hong-kong, Foochow and Kiukiang. Ten weeks were occupied in conferences with other secretaries of the International Committee and members of the National Committee of China. This has necessitated several visits in Shanghai and includes a joint conference of the secretaries of Japan and China in Tokyo and a conference of the secretaries of China in Yokohama, Japan. About two months have been given to office work. As to the rest of my time, the three college associations in Nanking have had my supervision and help; and some study has been given to the difficult field which we have been unanimously requested by the missionaries of Nanking to occupy—that among the thousands of government students and the business young men of the city. My main energies, however, have been expended in the study of the Chinese language. Since June of last year all attempts at work outside of the Christian colleges has had to be abandoned in Nanking and only one of these schools is now open; but the troubles through which we have passed fortunately have not seriously interfered with my language study.

Since the departure of Mr. Lyon for America in November, 1900, the supervision of the work throughout China has been temporarily committed to me. So far this has involved only office work and is included in the estimate of time given above. As this responsibility for the broader work has been so recently assumed, I shall leave to Mr. Lyon the statement of the work done and the conditions which now face our movement throughout the Empire. I must record, however, my profound gratitude to God who has so wonderfully preserved some of the members of our small secretarial force through serious perils, and who has brought our young movement, though bathed in blood, into a richer and fuller life, better able than ever to cope with the splendid possibilities of the future.

REPORT OF WALTER J. SOUTHAM

Secretary in China

At the Northfield student conference in July, 1899, I was invited to become the secretary of the International Committee for Hong-kong. This invitation eventually was accepted, and after attending a most helpful conference of the committee and its secretaries at Long Beach, nearly two months were spent in visiting some prominent associations in the United States and Canada. The associations of central New York and Ottawa, Can., honored me by choosing me as their representative on the foreign field. Early in November I left New York for San Francisco, spending a short time at Chicago on my way. In the company of Mr. and Mrs. Helm, who were going to Japan, I left San Francisco November 17, 1899. We called at Honolulu and each of us visited one of the colleges there and addressed the students. I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Lewis in Shanghai, and also Mr. Brockman, who, on account of Mr. Lyon's illness, accompanied me to Hong-kong, at which place we arrived December 16. No time was lost in getting acquainted with the missionaries and ministers of the colony and in endeavoring to grasp the situation as far as possible.

In January I began to devote my mornings to the language, and with the exception of about four weeks spent with Mr Lyon in visiting and studying the Hong-kong and Canton fields, I kept this up to the middle of August.

I started at once a Bible class for Chinese students and for a few business men; I attended and spoke at the weekly meetings of the medical association, and have endeavored to cultivate the acquaintance of these young men and to deepen their knowledge of and interest in the purpose and work of the association.

It has been my purpose to study the needs and opportunities for work among the foreign young men in the banks, hongs, and other offices. There is no needier class of men in the colony. The problem, however, is a very serious one and will require much consideration. I have the names of some of these men who are anxious for the work to be started, and to this list names are gradually being added.

There is an attractive field for work among the soldiers and sailors. I have had numerous opportunities of speaking to them and have led a gospel meeting Thursday and Sunday evenings for the past six months with good results. Any attempt at definite organization must be deferred until other departments have been attended to.

There are nearly 200 policemen in Hong-kong and Kowloon who are cut off to a large extent from the ordinary religious influences. Since May I have conducted a Sunday afternoon evangelistic Bible class at the central barracks.

In company with Mr. Lyon some time was spent at Canton last spring; the old association was stirred up and a new one formed. There were two other institutions expecting to organize in the fall, but owing to the troubles this has not been done. As matters are becoming quieter we hope it will be soon accomplished.

At the end of August I went to Japan to attend our secretarial conference; owing to illness I was delayed and did not reach Hong-kong until November. Since then I have continued the work already mentioned. The pressure, however, has increased, and the demands upon time and energy are multiplying. One is struck more than ever with the importance of this field. The problem is a complex one and calls for the continued prayers of friends at home that the "wisdom which cometh from above" may be abundantly granted, in order that the problem may be solved aright, that the work may be started on a true and lasting basis, and above all, that Jesus Christ in all things may have the preeminence.

REPORT OF DAVID McCONAUGHY

Secretary for India

After returning at the opening of 1899 from Ceylon, where I had gone at the invitation of the Colombo board of directors to confer as to a building project, I remained at home until our Madras building was quite completed and dedicated under the patronage of the governor, Sir Arthur E. Havelock. Three times during the year I visited Bombay—in March to speak at the anniversary; in September to make preliminary arrangements for the fifth national convention, and in December to attend the convention. Most of September and October was spent on tour to the Northwest Provinces and Punjab, helping with the Bible study at an Indian Northfield, held at Mussoorie, on the Himálayas, attending the first student camp held at Beas in the Punjab, and conferring with the board of directors at Lahore for a forward move in the work of that association. Before the convention in Bombay our first conference of general secretaries in India was held at Lonauli, a quiet place on the Western Ghâts, where every one of our fifteen general secretaries from the West was present, besides two of the most promising of our Indian brothers.

The first quarter of 1900 was given to work at the national headquarters in Madras preparing for extended absence later. In April, at the urgent invitation of the general committee of the Bombay association, I took charge of the work there during the absence of the general secretary on furlough, remaining until August 1. In September and October I was on tour in Mysore, Malabar, and North Travancore; preparing the way in Bangalore, the principal city of the native state of Mysore, for the calling of a general secretary, and in Malabar and Travancore for the development of district unions with an Indian traveling secretary in each of these sections, the same to be supported in large part from local sources. During the first part of November I went up the new East Coast railway as far as the Godávari, visiting five of the more important points.

In November, having been called back to Bombay for a further term of service as general secretary in that city, I removed my family there. After a strenuous effort the accumulated debt of several years was cleared, and the outlook here is brighter than for many years. The closing days of the year were given to helping Mr. Grace in seeking a selection of some of the perplexing problems which confront him on entering upon his new field in Allahábád; in attending the Bengal-Burma student conference at Serampúr (near Calcutta), and in taking counsel with the committee of management and the board of directors of the Calcutta association over some of the big problems to be dealt with in that metropolis. Thus these two years have been spent in incessant activity, taking me from one side of the country to the other again and again, and from Ceylon to the Himálayas.

Digitized by Google

The progress made has been more solid than in any previous period as may be seen from these facts: The number of our associations has increased from 102 to not fewer than 150; the membership from 5,500 to over 6,000; the number of secretaries from 8 to 16; the number of buildings from 7 to 10, and their value, including building funds, from $153,660 to $215,266. District organization has been effected in the Punjab, North Travancore and Malabar, in addition to the Bombay Presidency previously organized.

Besides the Young Men of India, the Inquirer, intended for the help and guidance of non-Christian young men who are seeking after truth, was established in September, 1899, and is exerting a wide influence for good. The Young Men's Christian Association Bible and Prayer Union Calendar has been published in Persian, Urdu, Telugu and Mahrátta in addition to the Tamil, Malayalam and English editions already in use. Bible study has been given the foremost place, and throughout our increasing membership in India the number is steadily multiplying of those who are feeding on His Word and are learning in the school of prayer.

REPORT OF GEORGE BENTON SMITH

Secretary in India

Since my last report the Madras association has moved into its own handsome new building. This was done in May, 1899, though it was not until the following spring that the building was completed and dedicated. His Excellency, the Governor, Sir Arthur Havelock, who had always shown such a keen interest in the association, presided at the ceremony of dedication and said many kind things about our work and our aims.

After serving the association as acting general secretary for nearly eighteen months I was made general secretary and was given entire charge of the work in October, 1889. My work has been entirely in Madras where I have found more than enough to keep me busy. In November, 1899, the Rev. L. P. Larsen joined us as college secretary and head of the student settlement and two months later Dr. L. H. Beals came to us to work in the settlement and to have charge of the physical work.

With the greatly enhanced facilities offered by the new building we have been able to carry on the work much more satisfactorily than ever before. A fully-equipped gymnasium has been opened and classes have been conducted regularly six times each week.

We have also conducted each week seven Bible classes and one gospel meeting. In addition to these we have for the past few months carried on two open air meetings each week. Our educational department continues to do strong work. This year our students are studying bookkeeping, banking, commercial correspondence, commercial geography, short hand and typewriting.

The hostel has been opened for a little more than a year. I will not report for the building committee, as doubtless Mr. McConaughy will treat of this in his report as much of his time has been spent in connection with its erection. We still require about $9,000, which I trust will be secured in the very near future.

Digitized by Google

Our membership has increased to a little over 600 and the Bible classes and gospel meeting have been attended better than ever before. The building is being well appreciated by the young men of Madras, over 180,000 visits having been made to it during the past twelve months.

Famine funds and war funds have done much to make difficult the raising of money for current expenses, but we are rejoicing in the fact that our association has just entered upon its second decade with all current expenses paid and a credit balance of over Rs. 300 with which to begin the new century.

REPORT OF L. P. LARSEN

Secretary in India

There is no separately organized student department in Madras, but there is a very large field among present and past students, and no end of work that can be done in connection with the general association (of whose membership a very large proportion are educated Indians), or on lines independent of any special organization. I shall mention briefly some of the main aspects of my work during the past year.

The hostel, with accommodation for forty-six men, forms the nearest and not least important part of our field. On December 1, we had in the hostel one American (Dr. Beals), two Europeans, seven Eurasians, twelve native Christians (from different parts of South India), seven Syrian Christians and the following non-Christians: two Brahmins, eight non-Brahmins, three Mohammedans, one Parsee and one Buddhist. It was only toward the end of the year we had so many, but in its composition this list is typical for the whole year. A very few of these had made arrangements outside for their food; but men of all the different sections mentioned have taken food together here. As regards the Hindus this, of course, is possible only in the case of men whose homes have risen so much above the ordinary caste-feelings that they allow their sons when here in Madras to disregard caste rules in the serious matter of eating. Altogether it has been a comparatively easy matter to be the manager of the hostel, certainly easier than it would have been with the same number of Danish students. Very few have given any reason to complain of their conduct, and considering the very varied elements, we have been surprised that the relations have been so smooth and friendly. Of the educational value of such hostel life to the students here there can be no doubt. For the Christian influence Dr. Beals' presence has been invaluable. Others of the Christian men we have also reason to believe have exercised an influence for good. From some who have left us after their examination we have had cheering expressions of the helpful influence they had experienced.

Bible classes have been conducted especially intended for non-Christians in the hostel, for students of our educational department, and for outsiders. The attendance has not always been large; but we have reason to feel thankful for and encouraged by the interest and attention manifested. Though there are many obstacles and much that is not promising, it certainly gives ground for hope to see how Christ's person and the Bible are winning their way into the minds and hearts of educated Indians. Even on the bookshelf of a man who has been studying in a government arts college and is now studying in the government medical college, one may find a copy of the Bible. "Yes, I have bought it," the student said, "for I would like to study it."

Meetings are things we have always with us wherever we are among students. Presiding at their debates, giving them lectures at their student society meetings, or addressing them at special meetings arranged for them, we have had ample opportunities for helping them, as much as we could, to get light on some of the many points where a Hindu student feels the need of light when he begins to think seriously of religious questions.

Open air preaching we have only just tried, as a means of reaching the educated men in particular. Vernacular open air preaching has long been a feature of association work. English open air preaching we started last term right in front of a building where every evening, between five and six, a very large number of English-speaking Indians pass on their way home from work. We trust we may be able to enlist the cooperation in this work of some of the educational missionaries; their presence would doubtless help to draw the right class of men.

Visiting is a method of work for which it is difficult to find as much time as one feels is needed, especially among the class of men we are aiming to reach. There can be no doubt that at least among these men it is personal conversation, the hand to hand dealing, that accomplishes most. Gentle, kind and amiable as most of these men are, one longs all the more for time to go and see them in their homes. Many pleasant and we trust not altogether unprofitable hours, have been thus spent the past year.

One young man who came into the hostel in the beginning of the year became practically convinced about the truth of Christianity and was baptized in September. Difficult as the step is in this country between conviction and baptism one rejoices all the more when the Lord enables a young man to take it. We trust this young man may be made more and more a shining light. He is studying in the Christian college. Two past students have been coming for several months both to Bible classes and to study the gospels individually with me. One I trust may before long be baptized. The other one is a less strong character and therefore trembles more before that step. One cannot but be moved to sympathy and prayer by seeing a Hindu at this point where it is in a very real sense a matter of paying the price.

REPORT OF LESTER H. BEALS

Secretary in India

I landed in India December 20, 1899, attended the secretaries' conference at Lonauli and the national convention at Bombay, arriving in Madras January 3, 1900. My time during the year has been divided between the physical department of the Madras association and medical work among the members of the association hostel and to a limited extent among outside students. I have also assisted as I have been able in the general devotional work of the association.

Digitized by Google

The work in the physical department has consisted in leading classes in the gymnasium, in interesting the men in physical culture and in supervising association athletics. The medical work has been limited to internal medicine, and has been confined almost entirely to association members and friends. It has been without fees, except in a very small number of cases, and drugs have been supplied only in rare instances. Other time has been occupied in leading Bible classes and devotional meetings and assisting on committees and in other association work as was possible.

REPORT OF GEORGE S. EDDY

Secretary in India

During 1899 my work as traveling secretary of the Student Department of the Young Men's Christian Association and Student Volunteer Movement took me into every section of India and Ceylon, as conventions were held in twelve cities of seven presidencies. During 1900 my work has been confined largely to visiting the colleges of South India and Ceylon, and to arranging for student camps in these sections. During the latter half of 1900 I have been engaged in the study of Tamil with a view to better fitting myself for the traveling work in South India and Ceylon, where Tamil is spoken.

REPORT OF J. CAMPBELL WHITE

Secretary in India

My chief responsibilities during the two years under review may best be indicated by recalling the different official relationships which I have held during the entire period. I have been secretary of the college branch of the Calcutta association; the general secretary of the Calcutta association, this organization including three separate branches under one board of directors; the college secretary of the Indian National Council; the chairman of the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement of India and Ceylon and the secretary of the Calcutta Bible Institute. There ought to have been four different men holding these positions, but men are too scarce in India for that. I will indicate briefly the work attempted in each of the organizations.

1. The College Young Men's Christian Association of Calcutta has succeeded in getting the gospel into touch with more educated non-Christian men than any other organization in the world. An aggregate of 32,500 attended the meetings held in 1900. This is an average of 625 per week, throughout the entire year, and probably 550 of these were non-Christians.

An average of about two meetings daily is maintained continuously. One of these is a Bible class, where students read the Bible for an hour, the only Christian present as a rule being the leader of the class. The other meeting is of an evangelistic character, conducted very much as are the young men's evangelistic meetings at home. Two reading rooms are kept open all the time,—one for the public, another for members of the association. About 300 men pass through these rooms daily, or over 100,000 annually. An unbounded field for personal work is here afforded, and we use it so far as is possible in the time at our disposal.

The above statements are full of encouragement and show how ripe the field is. But we are only touching the fringe of it. More educated Hindus and Mohammedans are in Calcutta all the time than we have had in our meetings in a whole year. In addition to over 10,000 actual university students, it is estimated that fully 30,000 other college men are located in Calcutta. To cultivate this field at all adequately requires the presence of at least five men from the home lands. Thus far, the burden has rested upon one for nearly all the time.

In connection with this branch, a marvellous opening is presented for work among school boys. There are 30,000 of them in Calcutta—of whom probably 28,000 are untouched by direct Christian influences. A secretary for boys' work, and $15,000 for an extension of our building to accommodate this new work, are urgent present necessities.

In November, 1899, the work was reinforced by the arrival of B. R. Barber, as associate college secretary. Some months prior to his arrival, through the generous help of J. Herbert Tritton, of London, it was arranged to secure the temporary help of F. W. Steinthal, a Scandinavian graduate then residing in Calcutta. Through the very kind help of Mr. and Mrs. Klinger of Pittsburgh, it has been possible to retain the very valuable assistance of Mr. Steinthal.

A debt of $20,000 remains on the college branch property in Calcutta, almost wholly the result of subscriptions to the fund not being paid. Some one who sees the unspeakable opportunities before this work should relieve it of this heavy handicap. The $60,000 already paid on the property, has been by subscriptions in England and the United States.

2. The chief new feature of the work in Calcutta has been the purchase of a site and the solicitation of funds for a new building for the central branch, composed entirely of European young men. Over $40,000 has been secured of the $80,000 needed to pay for the site and buildings.

3. As college secretary of the Indian national work, and an executive officer of the Student Volunteer Movement, most of my work has been either executive or by correspondence. The visiting of other college fields was rendered impracticable because of local duties in Calcutta.

4. The Calcutta Bible Institute has acted as a clearing house and distributing center for Bible study courses and helps. There is such a wide field for the promotion of Bible study in India that one of our secretaries should be set free from other work to devote his whole time to the promotion and direction of Bible study.

5. Since August, 1900, I have been in the United States. There have been far more calls for speaking than could possibly be responded to. There seems to me to be great need of a thorough cultivation of the regular active membership of the associations, that they may be aroused to a real missionary interest and consecration.

6. The secretaries of the International Committee on the mission fields have some of the greatest positions of influence in the world today. The association movement will miss its largest opportunity of serving its generation if these places of unique and supreme importance are inadequately manned, through lack of interest and support at home. At the five university centers of India, in all of which the association is already at work, there is an opportunity to influence profoundly the whole student life of India. And the students in turn will be the chief factors in the making of the educational, social and religious future of that empire, containing one-fifth of the population of the world, and nearly one-third of the population of the heathen and Mohammedan world.

REPORT OF ROBERT P. WILDER

Secretary in India

North America.—During the first half of 1899 I visited in the United States and Canada thirty-one theological seminaries, ten other educational institutions, attended two conferences, spoke 112 times, and was present at several committee meetings. This work was done jointly for the International Committee and the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions. At the beginning of my work in 1897 only one theological seminary had formed an association. God so blessed the work that in July, 1899, thirty-eight theological institutions, representing eighteen denominations, belonged to the theological section of the association movement, with a membership of about 2,600 divinity students and professors. During 1899 two pamphlets were prepared: "The Plan of Organization for Theological Students" and "Report of the Traveling Secretary of the Theological Section of the Student Young Men's Christian Association Movement (November 1897—May 1899)."

Europe.—In August, 1899, your secretary delivered five addresses at the conference of the British College Christian Union and Student Volunteer Missionary Union held at Aberystwith, Wales; at this gathering there were 358 delegates from ninety-seven institutions of learning. Later the conference of the Scandinavian University Christian Movement at Setnesmoen, Norway, was attended. There were present about 400 delegates from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Iceland. Here I spoke four times and had fifty-one interviews. After this conference I delivered several addresses in Norway and spoke to students in Denmark.

India.—December 20, 1899, we landed at Bombay. During the year following our arrival in India God has enabled me to do the following work:

Visitation. Visited 28 places, spoke 192 times, and traveled 10,510 miles.

Investigation. Much time has been given to collecting and collating statistics of students in each place visited and to a study of the whole student field in India.

Organization Three associations formed. The principals of institutions in two other places have promised to organize associations. Ten Bible circles formed. Most of the time has been given to strengthening and developing existing associations.

Conferences, etc. Attended three Young Men's Christian Association conferences, the Young Women's Christian Association camp, the all-India Christian Endeavor convention and two conventions for the deepening of spiritual life; also meetings of the Indian National Council executive committee, the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement of India and Ceylon, the college committee of Indian National Council, the Bombay district union committee, the Bombay college committee and the Kotáyan (Travancore) committee.

Literary Work. Prepared a pamphlet entitled "The Missionary Meeting of the College Association," have written five articles and one book review; have edited each month (since May) the college department of The Young Men of India, and have prepared the report of our student movement for the World's Student Christian Federation. My correspondence has amounted to over 1,000 letters and post cards and this means considerable work, as no stenographer was employed.

Missionary Department. Both as secretary of the college committee and chairman of the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement of India and Ceylon I have given considerable thought to quickening and deepening the missionary interest of our membership. (1) The preparation of a course of study on the religions of India necessitated the examination of many books in order to select libraries for the junior and senior divisions The Christian Literature Society has very kindly made a grant of these books to the associations in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Lahore and Allahábád. Have also prepared a library, No. 3, for advanced work We are indebted to student associations in North America and to unions in Cambridge and Edinburgh universities for promising to send this third and larger collection of books to associations in Calcutta, Lahore, Madras, Allahábád and Jaffna. This course of study was introduced into several centers. (2) In response to our requests the publishers of the Missionary Review of the World and the Church Missionary Gleaner are most kindly sending these magazines free to each college association in India and Ceylon. (3) This year we have introduced a new form of election by means of which the executive of the Student Volunteer Movement of India and Ceylon is brought into closer connection with the Young Men's Christian Association college committee, while remaining independent as to its action and finances.

Office. This year we have prepared forms to be filled and filed at our office, thereby introducing a fairly thorough system of reporting and recording visits to colleges. We have sold considerable association literature and have disposed of 2,300 Colportage library books which were most kindly sent by D. L. Moody. We hope to place the remaining 2,700 books in needy centers during the coming year. Messrs. Barber and Steinthal have been most helpful in looking after the office.

There are 34 student associations in India and six in Ceylon (three not fully organized) with a membership of 1,600. There are besides in 22 city associations 816 past and present students. As several city associations have not reported the full number of students in connection with the intercollegiate associations of India and Ceylon is probably over 2,400. Three student conferences were held during 1900—one in Ceylon, another in the Madras Presidency, and the third in Bengal. A number of students were also in attendance at the association camp held in the Punjab. At these four conferences about 360 delegates were in attendance. About 650 students were enrolled in Bible classes as circles in 1900. Only a very small proportion of the students of India are Christians, so a large part of my work has been evangelistic. Everywhere there has been large audiences of non-Christian students and excellent attention. Many are intellectually convinced of the superiority of Christianity to their ancestral faiths; prayer is requested that they may receive Jesus into their hearts and have courage to confess Him boldly before men.

REPORT OF B. R. BARBER

I reached Calcutta and began work as college secretary November 17, 1899; have now been fourteen months upon the field. With the present help it taxes one's entire energy to maintain the work already established, not to speak of the great field at our doors still untouched. However we have been able to extend our borders a little and many encouragements have been noted. During the year the new hostel has been completed and there have since been from twenty to twenty-five students upon the premises. Work has been opened in the new government medical-military hostel and an association has been organized there among the Europeans. One of the encouraging features in the college work is the number of voluntary workers and helpers found among the active members; several strong committees are now well organized. The membership of the branch has increased 230 per cent this year; a debating and literary society has been formed; the daily Bible classes have increased in attendance; the public and members' reading rooms are well attended, the public room furnishing the greatest means for getting hold of the non-Christians. The monthly social has proved of great benefit to the members. The government of Bengal has recently made a grant of Rs. 5,000 for the college buildings.

The following is a list of the different meetings with the number and the total attendance at each: 214 non-Christian Bible classes, 1,845; 107 Christian Bible classes, 1,201; 130 gospel meetings, 6,805; 45 devotional meetings, 502; 94 open-air meetings, 11,750 (estimate); 50 committee meetings, 250; 40 Sunday school and Hindustani preaching services 2,000; 12 monthly socials, 729; 13 mission study classes, 190; 15 Dr. Ladd's lectures, 3,870; 10 workers' prayer meetings, 58; 16 prayer meetings, 385; 7 William Oatts' meetings, 600; 8 week of prayer meetings, 712; 7 miscellaneous meetings, 1,700. Total meetings, 768; total attendance, 32,597.

Mr. White and his family left in March on furlough. In addition to the college work, the general oversight of all the work was left to me, one feature of which, the new building for Europeans, has involved no little thought and energy. The building fund now stands, cash subscription, Rs. 91,074; unpaid subscriptions, Rs. 30,161; total, Rs. 121,235. It is expected to begin work on the building in February, 1901. The membership of the four branches is 577.

Since coming to India I have attended the secretaries' conference at Lonauli and the biennial convention at Bombay; have served as secretary of the Scripture freeship examination committee, and as office secretary of the Intercollegiate Department of the Indian National Council. I have also had much to do with arranging for and working up the Bengal-Burma student conference held at Serampúr in December, 1900.

REPORT OF J. RUTTER WILLIAMSON

Secretary in India

A Young Men's Christian Association was started twenty years ago in Lahore ; a piece of ground was purchased by trustees, and a small building erected. After several years of useful work the original promoters either had died or had left Lahore and gradually the association became moribund and was represented only by a weekly prayer meeting of four or five men. This was the state of affairs when J. H. Oldham was sent out by the Scotch National Council in 1897. Mr. Oldham spent the first two years largely in language study and in seeking by personal work to build up a small group of men with whom the attempt could be made to reorganize with some chance of success and stability. How wise this method was is now seen in the rapid growth of the association around this central nucleus. In the autumn of 1899 the association was opened for the first time as a reading room and social parlor. This proved a distinct success and the development has been such that the building is too small for the number using it daily. Practically the entire membership is of Indian students.

Mr. Oldham is the general secretary. My relation to the work is that of one sent out by the International Committee for student work, using my professional knowledge as a physician in every way possible to gain an influence over this class for Christ. I need hardly point out that with a constituency of over 3,000 students there is far more than two men can possibly manage. Yet, of course, I am sharing in the regularly organized work of the association. I was appointed chairman of the religious meetings committee and I also preside at the weekly religious meeting for the building up of the Christian members. I am a member of the board of directors. I have been elected to the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement for India and Ceylon.

During the past year a good deal of time has been spent in trying to negotiate for a house suitable as a hostel for medical students. It was believed that such a hostel would be a valuable means of getting into contact with the men. A certain amount of time has been given to the study of Hindustani. This I believe to be exceedingly important, even though working among English-speaking students. Many of the junior students speak English very imperfectly. Moreover, experienced missionaries consider the study of the language a most valuable way of becoming acquainted with the people themselves. This year our student annual conference in the Punjab was conducted wholly in Hindustani. The experiment was very successful and was so much appreciated by the students that it is almost certain to be followed in future years.

I am glad to report that our membership is now 102 (39 active). Considering that the association, as an organized institution, recommenced its work only last fall, this is a gratifying growth. Every week is seeing additions to the roll. We have now the following committees meeting regularly: religious meetings, Bible study, social work, reading room and library, and athletics. We have sufficient ground adjoining our building for a grass tennis court and two badminton courts. The reading room is well supplied with magazines, newspapers, games and stationery. The library has been enlarged by the addition of 100 books.

On Saturday evenings last winter a series of "lectures to thinking men" were held. The attendance varied from 80 to 350, practically all non-Christians, that is, Hindus and Mohammedans. Subjects such as "Character," "The Resurrection of Jesus," etc., were handled by experienced missionaries. At the Friday evening meetings for Christian members the attendance averages about 20.

Since April we have had an Indian assistant secretary who has done excellent personal work, and is able to influence many who are outside of our reach. It has been decided recently to open a restaurant to be run by the association on non-caste lines as at Madras.

Of late the need of increasing our borders has been pressing itself home. More men are desirous of using the privileges of membership than we can possibly accommodate in our cramped space. It seems most unfortunate to be unable to welcome to our rooms men who are anxious to come. After several months of earnest and prayerful consideration of the matter, it was decided at the last board meeting to go forward with plans of a new building on our present site for an enlargement of our work in every direction. A building committee was appointed of which I have been elected chairman. Happily our site is large enough for the erection of a thoroughly adequate and commodious structure.

At the end of July I received a most pressing call from the Punjab famine committee to give a month's service to a famine orphanage of 300 boys where a doctor was urgently needed as the mortality was becoming frightfully high. An answer had to be given in a few days and therefore it was impossible to lay the facts before your committee for their advice. No other doctor could be found to go. I felt it no small privilege to minister for a few weeks to those who were so sore stricken and accepted the call. I regret that during an outbreak of cholera in the orphanage, I was attacked. It was not severe and as my time was just about completed I left for the hills and took a three weeks' holiday. On returning to Lahore I attended the student conference; I had to leave, however, before the end and was finally ordered to Ceylon for two months. I am writing this report from Kandy; I am considerably improved and hope it may not be needful to stay as long as it was thought.

While on my return I hope to inspect the buildings thoroughly and to examine into the working of the associations in Colombo, Madras and Calcutta. This will prove valuable in view of our own association and its plans for a new building.

Regarding the medical side of my work the time has been too short to be able to report a great deal. Yet even the little done has made one confident how valuable an aid medicine will be. Since landing in India I have been medically consulted 114 times by students and others. This work is sure to grow and the opportunities of personal work in connection with it are great.

The Forman Christian College has asked me to be the physician to the college. This will bring one in and out among those 300 students resident in the college hostels. As I am going to take the Bible hour with one class in this college (about 50 men) on five days a week it will be an additional point of contact with them. I am persuaded that the consulting room is an excellent vantage ground for drawing near men and telling them of Jesus Christ.

In addition to the medical consultations before mentioned, I, of course had a very large amount of medical practice when engaged in famine help. During that month I had 500 boys pass under my care, 250 being medically overhauled daily; about 60 very bad cases had an average of 20 visits each; 20 times I was called out to emergency cases of men, women or children dying, and I had a fairly large number of emergency imperative operations. I find from my records that including this month's work in the famine area and all else since landing in India in December the figures stand as follows:

Medical examinations of patients	4834
Minor operations.....	35
Major operations under anæsthetics	24
Total	4893

I hardly need remind you again that this total owes its largeness to the special circumstances of the month in the famine district and is in no sense a criterion for the work of future years among the students of Lahore.

REPORT OF A. H. GRACE

Secretary in India

I sailed from New York, October 10, 1900, for work in India under the direction of the International Committee, and arrived in Bombay, November 18, reaching Allahábád, my designated field of labor, November 22.

Allahábád is the seat of government and university center of the North West Provinces. The student field of these provinces includes 189 institutions of higher learning with 7,851 students.

The work for which I was commissioned was that of organizing and developing Young Men's Christian Association work among the Indian students of Allahábád and possibly, as occasion should offer, in other places in the North West Provinces.

Two or three months in a strange land is hardly enough to warrant the formation of settled impressions, much less to justify any expectation of an elaborate account of work accomplished. We have thirty members; no property as yet but Rs. 1,150 (or nearly $400) collected toward a building fund; are just beginning to hold a prayer meeting and a Bible class each week.

A good deal of time has been consumed in calling upon the residents of the station and cultivating as wide an acquaintance as possible. Of course, too, the study of the language is a daily occupation. In December I attended the first Bengal-Burma Christian students' conference held at Serampúr.

REPORT OF LOUIS HIEB

Secretary for Ceylon

While my field is the island of Ceylon, three-fourths of my time was spent in Colombo which is the metropolis, which presents the greatest opportunity for work, and whence one can readily keep in touch with other parts of the island.

A large portion of my time and energy was given to the Colombo association proper. The two years saw a steady, if somewhat slow growth of the work in nearly all departments. One important matter was a deputation from the board of directors which early in 1899 waited upon the governor of the island, and, presenting the claims of the association, plead for a site of crown land upon which to erect an association building. The request at the first was favorably considered by the governor, but his executive council were less favorable and the official reply put us off indefinitely. The committee, however, is still hopeful that a way will soon appear to allow the association to begin the erection of a much needed home of its own.

Among evidences of growth are the holding of successful members' quarterly meetings and anniversaries, an increase of 500 volumes in the library, a successful membership contest netting 101 new members, the establishing of a cricket club and a successful annual sports day. A Sinhalese branch of some fifty members has been doing good work for eighteen months. Sunday evening meetings for men, started in a suburb of Colombo, have resulted in a number of conversions, largely through meetings addressed by George S. Eddy.

Early in 1899 a medical students' weekly meeting was started which has had good results to this time. It is hoped soon to organize this work into a regular student association. Later in that year it was found advisable to abandon the intercollegiate rooms, as the difficulties of college exclusiveness and the small number of mature school boys could not be overcome. A branch association has since been revived in the Royal College and a weekly Bible class of students of the Technical College held under great difficulties.

In October of each of the last two years I visited Jaffna where there are a number of associations of various degrees of efficiency. The Jaffna college association is by far the best organized. Most of my time was given to the Jaffna town association and to the other two college associations whose organization is very weak. The town association had voted to close its rooms owing to poor financial policy, but was induced to reconsider and is now enjoying a new lease of usefulness. There are a dozen village associations also in this district organized into a North Ceylon union which employs a Tamil secretary as executive. This secretary gives half of his time to the work in Jaffna town. I am in constant touch with these associations by correspondence. The most significant feature of the work in Jaffna is the recent organization of a Jaffna student foreign missionary association, which has sent out its first missionary and his wife to labor in a neglected field on the mainland of India and adjacent to Jaffna. This and other good things are due in the main to the work of Mr. Eddy who visited Jaffna several times during the two years.

Correspondence regarding association work was carried on also with several other towns and schools. One week each year was spent at the volunteer camp of over 1,000 Sinhalese volunteers; an association shed was erected, reading and game rooms furnished, and entertainments, gospel meetings and Bible classes arranged. The average attendance was about 200 per day. In December, 1899, the association conducted a united ten days' mission with the Rev. C. H. Yatman when much good was accomplished. Also, I arranged for a four days' visit of the Rev. F. B. Meyer, and as secretary of the Colombo missionary conference I arranged for other union meetings.

The visit of W. M. Oatts in March, 1900, was seized upon as an opportune time for organizing a central committee for Ceylon. Seventeen missionaries and business men representing all parts of the island were secured to serve on this committee. I attended the conference of general secretaries at Lonauli and the association convention at Bombay in December, 1899.

REPORT OF MYRON A. CLARK

Secretary for Brazil

Two more years have been devoted by your secretary to the administration of the Rio de Janeiro association, to the complete exclusion of organization in any other city. It is hoped that this absorption in one association may soon give way somewhat to travel and the organization and supervision of other associations as the local directory has recently made provision for a native assistant who will relieve me of much detail work, thus permitting at intervals my absence from the city.

The local work has continued its slow but steady growth as from its very beginning. The membership, which at the annual meeting in June, 1898 was 214, two years later was an even 300. During the same period the average daily attendance at the rooms increased from 23 to 41, and at the Sunday gospel meetings from 43 to 56. The evening educational class work has remained about stationary, there being two more subjects taught but an increase of only one in the average attendance per class. The number of associate members converted and joining some evangelical church in the same two years was 25. These few figures are given simply as indicative of the growth in all departments.

Financially, Brazil is still in the midst of a severe crisis, from which not only business but all forms of activity, including the association, have suffered. Yet each year has seen all bills paid; $1,100 and $1,400 (U. S. gold) were respectively raised on the field during the last two years to meet current expenses, besides gifts towards the debt on the building of $4,000. Appeals are now being sent out in the hope that a considerable payment may be made in September, when the first mortgage matures.

The little weekly paper A. C. M., begun in September, 1897, as an experiment, is now a permanent feature, has increased in size, has obtained subscribers in various other cities of Brazil, and is accomplishing valuable results in the propagation of association aims, methods and news items.

The long-cherished plan, mentioned in my report of two years ago, of educating a young Brazilian for the secretaryship, has become a reality, for which we especially praise God. For a year and a half now, thanks to the initiative of Dr. Doggett, and the generosity of the New England conference of general secretaries, Alvaro de Almeida has been in attendance at the Springfield training school. He hopes to finish his course of preparation in 1902, and then return to dedicate his life to association activities among his fellow countrymen.

Two small associations have been organized in the cities of Castro and Sorocaba, but neither has been visited nor received much attention from your secretary. The associations formerly existing in São Paulo, Bello Horizonte and Pelotas have ceased to exist from lack of supervision, or from dearth of proper elements.

Soon after the employment by the directory of the native assistant already referred to your secretary carried into effect a long deferred tour of investigation to the Argentine and Uruguayan Republics, at the River Plate. Six weeks were spent during September and October in visiting the cities of Buenos Ayres, Montevideo and Rosario, in each of which thorough interviews were held with interested parties, the history of former attempts at association work was studied, and the whole situation sounded. It was found that, though the associations formerly existing there had accomplished some good results, yet lack of experienced supervision and of a paid general secretary had caused shipwreck. The association still lives in the hearts of many former workers, who are anxious to see it resuscitated. The need of the work is great, and elements for its maintenance exist; trained leadership is lacking, and this is hoped for from abroad.

Much time has been spent in correspondence, not only with association friends at home but with parties interested in association work in other cities of Brazil; articles on association work have been written for the religious press of Brazil, and for publications at home; and charts, illustrative of the history and progress of the Rio association, have been prepared for the Jubilee exhibit.

Praising God for many favors and blessings, regretful for many lacks and omissions, your secretary craves for the opening years of the new century a deeper spiritual life and a more useful service for the Master.

BIENNIAL REPORTS OF CORRESPONDING MEMBERS

AUSTRALASIA

The past two years have been made notable by two visits. That of the Rev. C. H. Yatman in 1899 will long be remembered. It was the means of the conversion of many and gave a distinct impetus to our work. Following him came W. M. Oatts as the representative of the English National Council, and his tour was also exceedingly beneficial, one result being the appointment of an organizing secretary for Australia. It may be mentioned that it is owing to the liberality of the National Council and of Mr. Oatts personally that the appointment was made possible.

Sydney, New South Wales. The general secretary, David Walker, has won the valued cooperation of C. J. Hewer as assistant secretary, and together these men will doubtless secure great success in the "mother state." Increased number of operations promoted; instructor Renshaw still holds his own in the gymnasium; deeper interest in classes for Bible study; good work done among soldiers who went to South Africa.

Adelaide, South Australia. The record of the past two years is a good one. Theater services still a distinct feature. Twenty-first anniversary celebrated in April, 1900. At the annual tea meeting 1,633 persons were present, and at the public meeting 2,500 attended. General Secretary Virgo resigned to take up the position of traveling secretary. On leaving he was presented with a purse of sovereigns—nearly £400. His successor not yet announced.

Melbourne, Victoria. Thornton Pearson, the new general secretary, is doing a good work and is putting things together splendidly. He is enthusiastic and lately has had the membership fee reduced with a view to reaching larger numbers of young men. He writes that the plan is working well. Special work in the volunteers' camp of South African contingent did much good and brought the association well before the public.

Brisbane, Queensland. W. F. Woodcraft, the general secretary, took a deep interest in soldiers' work and with great success. The association has made good progress since Mr. Woodcraft's appointment, although he has had much to discourage him. Better support by business men, deeper interest by the young men and a general restoration of confidence have made Brisbane's prospects very hopeful.

Newcastle, New South Wales. It was found that the newly erected premises were badly situated and these have been let, the association renting more central rooms. W. T. Hooker has been appointed general secretary.

Kalgoorlie, West Australia. This association was started by Mr. Oatts, and the prospects are good. A grant of land has been obtained from the government and premises are to be erected.

Digitized by Google

Perth and Freemantle have ceased to exist, but are hopeful of revival on the visit of the organizing secretary.

Hobart, Tasmania. A quiet but effective work is being done. After many years of faithful service Mr. Woolley, the honorary secretary, has resigned and A. J. Palfreyman is his successor.

Burnie, Tasmania. A small association has been formed and the honorary secretary, C. Joliffe, and his workers, are carrying on a successful evangelistic effort.

Gawler, South Australia. This branch of Adelaide has been in existence for some years, and it is proposed to get suitable premises shortly.

Auckland, New Zealand. New Zealand has decided to come into the Australian union as a result of the visit of Mr. Oatts, and the work of Mr. Virgo will extend to this country. Christ Church rooms have been let, but the Auckland building is still the center of activity and a successful work in many directions has been accomplished. Mr. Brackenrig is still general secretary.

The traveling secretary has received a number of applications to start new associations, and is at present at Mt. Gambier, in South Australia, where there is every indication of a good institution being formed. We badly need men for the work.

The Rev. W. G. Marsh, vice-president of the Adelaide association, has been appointed to represent Australasia at Boston in June, 1901. American brethren will recognize in him a fellow countryman who did such a good work during the thirteen years he was general secretary at Melbourne. It may safely be stated that Australia has made a distinct advance during the past two years.

JOHN JAMES VIRGO, Cor. Mem.

FRANCE

The National Committee has kept bravely at work since my last report and while there have been no very striking results, fair substantial progress is noticed in many of the smaller associations of France. This field of association labor offers quite different conditions from that of the United States, not only because the inhabitants are nominally nearly all of the Roman Catholic religion and the priests oppose our work by all the means in their power, but also because effective and aggressive work in behalf of the association is so little understood by the small part of the population of France nominally of the Protestant faith, and the time of our hard working national secretary is very largely taken up in visiting the small associations and explaining by lectures and familiar talks to the members and the church members who show interest in the work, what a modern Young Men's Christian Association is. He has also visited during the last fourteen months in order to interest the people in the work many places where associations might be started; the development is slow in comparison with similar work in America, but it is by no means discouraging.

One of the very perplexing problems for France which will be very difficult to solve is the formation and education of general secretaries for our associations. I alluded to this in my last report and refer to it again because of its great importance to the development of association work in France. One of the means adopted by the National Committee for creating interest in its work, has been the purchase of a large number of stereopticon views illustrative of association work, which are lent gratuitously to associations in all parts of France, whenever lecturers are found willing and qualified to lecture. During the last summer the National Committee prepared a large number of tableaux and albums which were exhibited in the "Palais des Congrès," of the great "Exposition Universalle." These proved very effective in disseminating information about Young Men's Christian Association work in France, and the National Committee was awarded a "Grand Prix," the highest prize awarded by the jury. Monsieur E. Sautter, our general secretary, represented the Young Men's Christian Association at the international congress for young men of the working classes, where he presented a report on association work, which was very well received, and after which the delegates paid an official visit to the building of the Paris association.

During the summer, the Central International Committee of Geneva met at Versailles, where they were entertained and lodged at Mme. André's country place, "les Ombrages." We now have a French federation of Christian students which it is hoped may before long bring about the organization of a strong association for students. Meanwhile our general secretary keeps in close touch with this federation. The example of the organization of soldiers' associations in the United States has brought about a beginning of similiar work in one of our large colonies, several associations having been founded in Tong King, where many troops, both French and native, are stationed. The effective work among railway employees of the United States has been brought to the notice of the directors of some of the principal French roads by Clarence J. Hicks, but nothing has come of this yet, beyond the fact that this work seems to appeal strongly to many of the directors, who say that they would see with pleasure a similar work in France, as they are convinced that any result which would tend to the improvement of the morals of their employees would prove of great value. The National Committee closed its financial year without deficit. The Paris association has done excellent work during the last two years, and is now organized thoroughly on the American plan, with a single general secretary. The plan of having a permanent delegate of the general committee in charge of part of the direction of its affairs was given a thorough trial during several years, and as it was the cause of more or less friction it has been abandoned and the post of delegate declared vacant, thus allowing full scope for the initiative of the general secretary. All the branches of activity of the association are doing good work, but we feel the need of a good physical director who could give all his time to the association. It seems very hard to find a Frenchman for this post and we may be obliged to appeal to the United States for one. The evening commercial classes are well attended. Considerable additional interest has been added by the offer of three prizes to the three best scholars, the prizes consisting of traveling expenses for a trip of one month to the principal capitals of Europe. These prizes are given by three members of our general committee. A new feature introduced this year is the organization of a cooperative society from among its members for the purpose of operating the association restaurant; many members have become interested in this, and it promises to prove very successful.

In addition to the large association 14 Rue de Trévise, we have a number of smaller unions of the old type in various parts of the city: Belleville, Batignalles, Montmartre, Rivoli, Ste. Marie, Grenelle, Luxembourg and Vincennes; all these form the Groupe de la Seine, and as a rule meet one evening each week for Bible study. The Vincennes association has a small building of its own, and being in the vicinity of large armories and barracks, where a large part of the garrison of Paris is quartered, has recently fitted up a room specially for soldiers' use, which it is hoped may be the means of much good. Military law forbids French soldiers joining clubs or associations of any kind, unless the same are composed entirely of the military, and for this reason they may not mingle with other members of our associations, but must have rooms of their own where civilians are not admitted. The Belleville association, which was started forty years ago, shows signs of becoming more active. Many new members have been received lately, and it has decided to move into more commodious quarters. As soon as financial arrangements can be made it will have a general secretary, and will organize for active work among the young men of the laboring classes of this district of Paris.

Although none of these smaller associations have yet any general secretary, a step forward has just been made by the appointment for a trial period of six months, of a general secretary for the entire group; it is hoped that by this means interest in the work may be increased and that as a result we may soon have general secretaries for some of these associations.

We also have in Paris an English and a German association, but I regret not being in position to make any report on their standing, except to say in a general way that they are both reported as doing good work.

The financial condition of the Paris association has now materially improved. Expenses for 1900 were frs. 86,847. Receipts were same amount, a small deficit of some few hundred francs having been made up before closing of the books; of the total receipts only frs. 27,500 were proceeds of subscriptions, nearly frs. 60,000 having been raised among the members, including frs. 8,510 profit from restaurant and frs. 20,525 from rooms rented to members. We now believe the days of deficits are over and are eagerly looking forward to the time when the mortgage of frs. 200,000 still due on cost of the ground may be lifted.

GERMANY

The years 1899 and 1900 have been, as we acknowledge with deep gratitude towards God, years of progress.

The training courses for secretaries, mentioned two years ago, notwithstanding decided blessing, proved insufficient owing to their shortness of time. The Berlin association therefore opened October 1, 1900, a permanent training school for secretaries, of which the director is Lieutenant-Colonel Von Hassell. This will, we trust, be a valuable help toward providing the German associations with secretaries. The Berlin association has received a number of large financial gifts. Since all other means to obtain money have been entirely given up and the necessary funds are asked only from the Lord in faith, all our debts have been paid and the necessary means have never been lacking. Our rooms are visited by such numbers of young men, especially on Sundays, that they have proved entirely insufficient. An extension of our premises is therefore absolutely necessary, and the council has already voted the purchase of a site close to our buildings. The work is more and more addressing itself to different classes of young men. The Scandinavian department and the one for bakers remain among the best. The work among waiters, which for a time seemed to fight with unconquerable difficulties, is beginning to prosper again. New departments for butchers, hairdressers and painters have been added. In Breslau and Stuttgart new houses are being built for the associations.

The work among soldiers is enlisting larger sympathies. In the large garrison city of Metz, the government has given a site for a soldiers' home (Emperor William house), and in South Germany such a home has been opened in one of the great military camps.

The white cross movement, which celebrated its tenth anniversary at the Bielefeld conference in 1899, and which is such an important help in the spiritual work of the associations, has made great progress. The twenty thousandth card of membership has recently been given out.

In most of the larger German cities societies have been formed for taking charge of the young men coming from the country or other cities. The police authorities have kindly consented to give all the addresses of new-comers and the society forwards them to the association nearest to their respective lodgings.

The death of the veteran president of the German National Council, Pastor Krummacher, a warm friend of the cause, has been deeply felt. Pastor Berlin has become his successor in the International Committee, and Pastor Klug as national president. Mr. Helbing is now national secretary.

GREAT BRITAIN

Whether considered from the standpoint of the breadth and variety of their operations, of their earnest missionary and evangelistic effort, or of the growth and increasing solidarity of the general organization, the closing year of the nineteenth century must be reckoned as among the best in the experience and history of the British associations. It is estimated that the average weekly attendance at the young men's Bible classes in connection with the associations and associated unions exceeded 18,000. An average of nearly 100 young men has been sent forth each year for several years past into the Christian ministry and the work of home and foreign missions. Special missions to men have become a feature of the work of increasing interest and usefulness. The associations are sustained by a growing liberality on the part of the churches and the community. Distinguished leaders of all the evangelical denominations cooperate and render the associations invaluable service.

The equipment in buildings designed and erected for young men's work improves year by year. The stately structures opened during 1900 at Newcastle-upon-Tyne and Cardiff may be taken as embodying the more advanced ideas prevailing at the end of the century as to the character of the association work and the conditions under which it may be successfully prosecuted.

The growth generally during the decade 1890–1900 has been as follows: Centers of operation—1890, 609; 1900, 1,471. Membership—1890, 76,161; 1900, 103,420. Value of buildings—1890, £326,746; 1900, £626,495 (exclusive of Scotland).

The British conferences held at Dublin in 1899, and at Newcastle-upon-Tyne in 1900, have been among the most important of these gatherings. General secretaries' conferences were held during the week following each of the British conferences at Llandudno and Filey. These were attended by nearly all the general secretaries and proved eminently useful as a means of equipping them for their very difficult work. An honorary secretaries' conference was instituted last year at Newcastle. This has similar objects in view to those of the school of general secretaries and gives promise of becoming a useful agency.

The formation of the British and Colonial Union of Young Men's Christian Associations, and the mission to colonial associations undertaken by Mr. and Mrs. Oatts, at the request and on behalf of the English National Council, have inaugurated, it is believed, an era of fuller cooperation between the associations of the mother country and those in the colonies. Besides forming several new associations and conducting successful missions in many of the larger centers of population, an important step in the direction of placing the work of the Australasian colonies upon a better footing, has resulted from Mr. Oatts' labors in the appointment of J. J. Virgo, general secretary of Adelaide, to the important office of traveling and organizing secretary for Australasia.

No feature of British work has occasioned greater hopefulness as to its future than the great awakening of interest manifest among members of the associations in every part of the country, in efforts put forth by association workers for the salvation of young men in heathen lands. The Irish associations already contribute regularly a large proportion of the sum necessary to meet the cost of work for young men carried on by Oliver H. McCowen, LL.B., in Burma; the Scottish associations have undertaken the full responsibility of sending a worker, in the person of J. H. Oldham, B.A., to Lahore; while the provision of workers for the Bombay association, including a student secretary, has been mainly the work of the associations of England and Wales.

The year 1900 dawned upon the British nation amid circumstances of much gloom and perplexity, arising from the course of events connected with the war in South Africa; while the associations of the entire country were weighted with a great sorrow through the serious and protracted illness of the beloved and honored president of the English National Council, Sir George Williams. After days and weeks of anxious suspense, during which the prayers of associations ascended in many lands for his recovery, the council was privileged to welcome the Lord's dear servant back once more, and the following resolution, expressive of its joy and deep thankfulness, was adopted :

Resolved, That this meeting of the national council, highly privileged as it is to welcome in its midst the beloved president of the council, after lengthened absence consequent upon his most serious illness, desires to place on record the expression of its devout thankfulness to God for sparing the life of the revered president, and restoring him to them once more, and earnestly prays that, through the Divine blessing, he may be long spared to the work.

This resolution was moved by M. H. Hodder, as senior member of the council; seconded and supported on behalf of the home associations, by J. K. Starley, Coventry, and Albert Everett, Ipswich; on behalf of associations on the continent of Europe, by Monsieur Charles Fermaud, of Geneva, and H. D. Barclay, of Paris ; and on behalf of the associations of India and America, by J. Campbell White, of Calcutta.

A long cherished desire that the associations should possess a permanent portrait in oils of one who will always be recognized as "the friend of young men," led to a request being presented by the council to Sir George Williams at the beginning of the year that he would give the necessary sittings to H. S. Tuke, A. R. A., for his portrait; a request most kindly acceded to. Mr. Tuke has produced a very fine picture and a good portrait, which will be held in trust by the council for the general body of Young Men's Christian Associations.

One of the most interesting features of the record for the past year is the special service which has been undertaken in behalf of soldiers engaged in the South African war. When in 1893 the National Council organized upon its present lines the auxiliary agency of the Soldiers' Christian Association, it was with a due sense of the remarkable opening that existed for work of an association character among the various British regiments at home and abroad. The development of the association was pursued successfully over a period of six years ; and the great opportunity presented by the despatch of an immense army to South Africa found the organization in some degree ready to cope with the task before it. Methods similar to those employed by the American associations in the war with Spain were adopted and it was resolved to send out a band of workers with large tents—the latter, furnished with literature and writing material, to be employed as reading and corresponding rooms during the day-time and used for evangelistic services at night and on Sundays. These tents were at a later date supplemented by four large iron buildings. Arthur H. Wheeler, the devoted secretary, was enabled to embark early in the campaign with a company of seven earnest and whole-hearted fellow-laborers—two having left a fortnight previously. Others followed, and no fewer than twenty-six workers in all were employed under the auspices of the association at some time during the progress of the war.

The difficulties of the work were stupendous, chiefly in respect of transport and the immense distances to be covered. But the success achieved was beyond all anticipation. Special facilities were afforded by the army authorities to the workers as they separated for their various stations, or went forward with the troops; and the work itself from the first secured most cordial approval from commanding officers and men alike. The tents as well as the iron rooms which were subsequently forwarded were crowded by day and by night. The meetings were always overflowing; men everywhere showed themselves eager to hear the gospel message; and the evident blessing which accompanied the preaching and the singing far exceeded anything in the previous experience of the workers.

Several of the active workers with the tents directly represented the South African Young Men's Christian Associations, and two association secretaries in their official capacity accompanied to the front the volunteer contingents sent from Canada.

Mr. Wheeler's valuable life was laid down in the interests of the soldiers whom he loved so well. Before leaving England his labors were unceasing in their behalf. The exceptional burden of responsibility which awaited him at Cape Town, and which he manfully bore until the month of March, proved too great a strain. He became seriously ill and ultimately was invalided home. Here in an enfeebled condition he lingered until August 26 when he passed away, to the great grief of a wide circle of friends who had been identified with him in Christian work.

JAPAN

I. The General Work:

The Tokyo association.—Probably the event of most far reaching importance to the Tokyo association during the past two years has been the return of the general secretary, Seijiro Niwa, from his year spent in travel and study among the associations of North America. The opportunities afforded him for study of association principles, for observation of methods, for contact with leaders, and for deepening of spiritual life have made themselves felt in the entire work of the association and will be a factor in the work for young men throughout Japan. Whether as editor, emergency speaker or preacher in city pulpits, as traveling secretary, business manager or spiritual leader, Mr. Niwa is invaluable and indefatigable.

We are pleased to note the arrival of Mr. Helm, your secretary to Japan, who in connection with his work in supervision and extension of the city and town associations throughout Japan is able to devote considerable attention directly to the Tokyo association. His contribution to the spiritual and organizational forces of this association is already perceptible, and he has helped to bring the missionary body into more intelligent relations to our work throughout the country.

We regret to record two losses, both keenly felt. One in the removal by death of Rear-Admiral T. Serate, for three years president of the board of directors, a man recognized as a Christian leader and possessed of a rare devotion to the association. The other is the removal by confirmed illness of Mr. Kin Takahashi, who was acting as general secretary during Mr. Niwa's absence, and who showed special fitness for the work of the secretaryship to which he looked forward.

The membership of the Tokyo association is now upwards of 600 and new members are being added at the rate of from 20 to 30 a month. The year 1900 records a net gain of 211 members.

The Saturday lectures have continued to be the great popular feature. Two regular lecturers have given each one lecture a month and for the other dates special speakers have been secured. The variety of subjects—religion, ethics, economics, politics, science, etc.—appeals to young men of vastly varied tastes and conditions. Many regular attendants at the Bible classes and not a few active workers were first attracted to the association by these lectures. The aggregate attendance during the past two years was over 10,000. It has been our privilege to welcome as speakers the following well-known gentlemen from America: Dr. George I. Ladd, of Yale, Dr. George F. Wright, of Oberlin, Dr. Francis E. Clark, and Rear-Admiral J. C. Watson.

A series of practical talks for members on such subjects as law, banking, and business has proved helpful. The library has been increased until it contains 2,744 Japanese volumes and over 1,000 English volumes and with additions in sight.

The English evening school has been reorganized as a department of the association so that enrollment in the classes is a membership privilege. The course has been changed from three to four years and a stronger corps of teachers employed. Total attendance for 1899 and 1900 was but little short of 10,000.

In Japan the sexes do not mingle in social intercourse as in western countries, hence the association possesses a peculiar opportunity to supply young men with clean social recreation by themselves. Special attention has been given to this feature recently. Frequent gatherings of members and groups of members have been held. Early last fall a student night was arranged specially for new students, which despite a rainy night was attended by 600 young men. Later a reception was tendered the clerks employed in banks and the larger mercantile establishments at which there were over 600 guests.

The gospel meetings, devotional meetings and Bible classes continue to be the heart of the entire work. The total attendance at the Sunday gospel meetings has been over 7,500. After-meetings conducted by Secretary Niwa have been emphasized and many young men have been personally dealt with. The Bible classes afford the best opportunity to come into personal touch with young men. Attendance at Bible classes has aggregated 3,300. A number of the students have confessed Jesus Christ and there are many inquirers.

A notable event was the sixth anniversary of the dedication of the Tokyo building, May 5-6, 1900. Opportunity was given to bring the association prominently before the public. At three anniversary meetings, addressed by leading association workers and some of the most prominent Christians of the empire, there was a splendid attendance of over 2,200 young men.

The association, beginning with 1900, assumed entire control of the Shinseiki (The New Century), a monthly magazine which is becoming a potent factor for good among our members, to all of whom it is sent and to three hundred other subscribers.

A good advance has been made towards the goal of self-support.

Through an enlarged budget, due to the expanding work, and through the gradual decrease of the funds formerly depended upon, the amount necessary to be secured in Tokyo has increased four-fold during the last six years. To emphasize the importance of increasing the cultivation of a financial constituency, it is necessary simply to say that in addition to important work in the present building, for which there must be an increased income to cover adequately a city like Tokyo, will necessitate in time additional buildings with secretaries and equipment.

Last fall, from October 24 to 31, a general conference of Protestant missionaries in Japan was held in the Tokyo association building. The fact of 450 missionaries passing in and out of the building constantly for ten days, observing the work in its varied forms, has done more to secure the heartiest cooperation of the entire missionary body of Japan in the extension of the city and town work than could have been accomplished by any other means. The conference passed resolutions warmly commending the work of the association and bespeaking its extension.

In the report of this conference, published in the leading English paper in Japan, occurs this statement: "With the assembly hall and parlors and offices and reading rooms and all the paraphernalia of that magnificent Young Men's Christian Association building placed at their disposal, it would be difficult to imagine a place better suited for the purpose. We venture to prophesy that the next ten years will not produce in Japan a place better suited for holding the fourth conference." The fact of the association possessing such a building gives it a prestige which would not be the case in an American city, where buildings for general religious purposes are numerous. Our building is the place for holding many religious assemblies, and is the headquarters for the leading interdenominational forward movements in Japan as well as for social and reform movements not thus affiliated.

An important work has been taken up in finding and training men to fill general secretaryships in other cities, some of which for several years have been demanding men. Such work must be slow and difficult. Of six young men thus selected three have dropped out for various reasons, and three are now employed in association work in Tokyo, considering the secretaryship as a life-work. From the standpoint of human agency the supply of secretaries holds the key to permanent development. The Tokyo association has loyally pledged itself to make the utmost endeavor to contribute this key.

The association cooperated in forming a Christian commission, on which the leading denominations were represented, and which sent to the front two secretaries for work among Japanese troops in North China. Not only were stationery and writing materials furnished, but each secretary wrote as many as fifty letters a day for soldiers sick or illiterate. It was not possible to prosecute an elaborate, aggressive Christian work, but the secretaries used faithfully the many opportunities afforded for personal work.

Other Cities.—The Osaka association has continued the gospel meetings and lectures for young men in its commodious hall. The small reading room attracts constant visitors. A Japanese secretary gives a fraction of his time to the association. Even this limited work is a recognized factor for good among young men. The directors feel that the phenomenal growth of the city and the multiplying industries, with their attendant multitude of young men, have produced an unparalleled opportunity for a wide educational, social, and religious work. We are glad to see their realization of the inadequacy of the present work and would here most heartily endorse the appeal from Osaka and Kobe, which will soon reach you, for a secretary from America to labor in these twin cities.

Active associations have been organized in the port cities of Kobe and Yokohama, by which gospel meetings, Bible classes, lectures and socials are conducted. The Rev. T. Harada, of Kobe, while visiting the United States and England last year, secured some additions to the Kobe building fund. The associations in both these cities are endeavoring to lay foundations for an abiding work which in time will possess buildings and be served by competent Japanese secretaries. Before that time considerable attention will be necessary from outside.

In a number of smaller cities are associations already exerting a decided influence, and additional fields are ripening for organization. Secretaries Helm and Niwa have rendered valuable service by visitation and correspondence. We believe this work demands increasing attention. The time evidently is ripe for a wise extension. Cities are growing in size and importance; the line is closely drawn in the struggle for spiritual supremacy and the crucial contest lies with our young men. The association with its experience, its machinery, and the blessing of our Heavenly Father, which has rested upon it hitherto, must not hesitate to step into its larger field.

II. The Student Work:

The years 1899 and 1900 have been a period of testing in the Student Christian Union. The impetus of Mr. Mott's visit and the enthusiasm of newness having worn off there has been a settling down to normal conditions. Yet the stability of the union has been attested not only by the absence of internal friction but also by the steady growth of its influence.

The number of associations has increased from thirty to thirty-four and the membership from 837 to 880. Two associations have been dropped from the roll, or rather have evaporated, the one because the school ceased to exist, the other because only one member remained. It is a significant fact that all of the new associations organized are in the government academies, composed of younger students among whom but a very small proportion are Christians. Constant encouragement is necessary to sustain almost any association in a country where the association idea is so new and where so many of the members are young and isolated in their Christian life.

Visitation and correspondence consequently assume unusual importance. We were fortunate in securing two able university graduates, Messrs. Hara and Hirssawa, to give half their time to this work during 1898 and 1899, but both of them felt called to resign to enter their chosen professions. Both men, we are glad to say, have continued to give unstintedly of time and thought to the work. Our present secretary being yet an undergraduate is unable to travel, so that visitation has been quite insufficient during the closing months of 1900. As a partial substitute inter-association deputation work has begun to take root. It is hardly putting it too strongly to say that our paramount need is a permanent Japanese secretary. During the period under review, however, every association has been visited from one to three times, not only by the secretaries but by leading central committeemen like Presidents Honda, Ibuka and Motoda. The two extremes of the country have been touched for the first time.

The district training conferences have been powerful educational and unifying agencies. We have thrown on the entertaining associations as much responsibility as possible for the program and business arrangements. Since the fourth conference, the northeastern, was started in 1889 its constituency has increased from two to four associations, with others in swaddling clothes.

The summer school turned over to us in 1898 has been conducted so as to regain general confidence as well as to contribute more directly to association needs. Normal Bible classes have been taught by two of the best-fitted missionaries, Dr. G. E. Albrecht and the Rev. Albert Oltmans. Conferences on association methods have been conducted by the secretaries; the lectures have included sound and scholarly leaders, such as Professors Motoda, Wada, Takagi, Honda, the Hon. S. Ebara, M. P., and the editor-pastor M. Vemura. The attendance in 1899 was 52 from 22 associations; in 1900, 65 from 18 associations. The expense of these sessions, amounting to over $400, has been largely raised and expended by a committee of students appointed by the central committee. The extreme length of the country has suggested the idea of two schools—for the east and the west respectively; but the objections are the loss of the present unifying tendency and the increased burden of financial and platform arrangements for the central committee. We are thankful to report that at the third convention, July, 1899, there was no tendency manifested to alter the evangelical basis. The chief action taken was to increase the central committee from fifteen to twenty-five, making it more unwieldy, but more representative.

The subscriptions to the bimonthly magazine have increased from thirty-five to eighty. Considerable improvement in literary quality has been wrought by the efforts of Secretaries Hirassawa and Satomi. The only new publications have been a translation of Mr. Mott's, "The Morning Watch," and the preparation of "Studies in the Life of Christ," by Secretary Fisher, similar to those used in America. Our reports show that Bible study has grown steadily. In 1898, fifteen associations conducted classes having an average attendance of 209; in 1900, twenty-four associations conducted classes having an average attendance of 331; that is, while the number of associations increased seventeen per cent, the number conducting classes increased sixty per cent and the average attendance fifty-eight per cent.

During the same period it is gratifying to note that the average attendance upon religious meetings increased thirty-four per cent. While we cannot point to any increase in the number led to profess faith in Christ through association effort, we can assert that never before has there been greater readiness to hear the gospel or greater activity by the associations in bringing the truth by evangelistic meetings and Bible classes to non-Christian students. Among the most noteworthy meetings have been those arranged and addressed by the association of Tokyo Imperial University and First High School.

The value of a building as a home and headquarters for associations in non-Christian schools has been particularly emphasized by Mr. Fisher. In Kumamoto the late Rev. J. B. Brandram "bought up the opportunity" and almost gave outright to the association of the Fourth High School s house and lot near the campus. Mr. Brandram was a stanch worker in the union from its inception to his lamented death, but perhaps the most enduring memorial to his love for students will be that home in Kumamoto. The association is now attempting to refund to his widow some of the money so generously invested. Similar homes have been started by two other associations, making a total of seven.

We rejoice in the confidence felt towards us by missionaries of all denominations. At the general missionary conference, October, 1900, the discussion following the paper on work for students read by Secretary Fisher, evinced the most cordial sympathy. More recently the Rev. S. L. Gulick (American Board), in his booklet "The Christian Forces of Japan at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century" wrote as follows: "Specific work for young men has not been overlooked. Young Men's Christian Associations were early formed and widely imitated by Buddhists all over the land. Due to the energy of the North American International Committee regular organized work has been started for both city young men and students, competent and experienced secretaries being sent out for the purpose. Although this organized work is relatively new, especially for students, it is rendering an invaluable service for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God in Japan. Its work among the government colleges and universities, which are necessarily non-religious, is especially promising." The Rev. J. L. Dearing (American Baptist Missionary Union), wrote last summer: "I regard the work of the Intercollegiate Young Men's Christian Association as one of the most valuable departments of missionary work in Japan. * * * The little group of students uniting in the associations has done wonders to preserve the faith of the individual members."

One of the practical evidences of the sympathy of the churches with our work has been the wide observance of the universal day of prayer for students in February.

A broader sympathy with the movements of other countries has been fostered by the attendance of the undersigned upon the third convention of the Chinese associations in May, 1899, and by the visit of President Honda to Europe in connection with the World's Student Christian Federation conference at Versailles.

In August, 1899, the department of education issued a regulation limiting certain valuable privileges and immunities to students of non-Christian schools. This worked serious damage to the Christian academies, and consequently depleted some of our associations. But the spirited and wide-spread discussion aroused served to show statesmen and educational officials the real nature and aim of Christian education and the necessary relation between religion and education. While this particular regulation may not be withdrawn the attitude of the educational authorities has become more friendly and the cause of Christian education in Japan has been planted on a more secure foundation.

CANADIAN WEST

The work has been quiet the past year; no conference was held except among the Indians, who met in large numbers for a week under the leadership of Secretary Tibbetts with the result of organizing an additional Indian association.

R. C. Horn, assistant secretary at Winnipeg, is also acting as provincial secretary with continued acceptance; he reports requests for visits from several districts which for the last few years have been discouraging fields but which are now asking for association work.

Winnipeg has at last secured a magnificent building valued at $75,000; a temporary loan of $45,000 is covered by subscriptions.

There are eight working associations in this jurisdiction, three town, three student and two Indian. We are indebted to the International Committee for the presence of its Indian secretary at the conference and for the flying visit of its field secretary, Mr. Ward.

MARITIME PROVINCES

There are now 33 associations and 17 boys' branches in active operation in these provinces; there are 18 paid employees. The year 1899 was a year of stress financially with most of our associations, but the year 1900 has seen a marked change. Decided advance is being made in our local work, while in two sections of the field where the mists have hung for years the outlook is very bright. The public has been more responsive, and there is a very distinct advance in the place voluntarily given our work for young men on the part of the churches. Improvements have been made internally and externally on a number of our buildings, and in St. John and Sydney funds are now raised for making extensions equal to the cost of the original buildings. During this period two general conventions for the Maritime Provinces were held, one at St. John, N. B., the other at Truro, N. S. Messrs. John F. Moore, Fred B. Smith, and H. M. Moore, of the International Committee, and State Secretary Brown, of Illinois, assisted in these.

The Maritime Committee with its secretaries has increased its work of supervision in every direction, and has undertaken larger work than ever before. This has involved a greater expenditure, but the committee is able to report all bills paid.

An endowment fund was modestly started, and now amounts to $300; the objective is $50,000. An office and boys' work secretary has been employed for the last two years, but was recently given up to save a local situation. Two railroad conferences have been held, a circulating library has been begun among the railroad men, and much time has been given to visitation on the part of the railroad secretary and volunteer workers.

Two intercollegiate conferences were held and much growth has been shown in the student work. Three student associations have been organized in preparatory schools.

The St. John association in 1899 built a summer chalet for the use of its members—the first in the country—and the effort has met with great success. Large quantities of literature have been sent to lumber camps during the last two winters. Our associations show a little actual increase in the number and scope of the educational class work, but in addition to this there is a desire and purpose to plan more largely for its growth in the future. The tone of the religious work has been for the most part high and strong. The Maritime Bible study committee prepared a list of topics which has been used by many associations. Work has been done among the 5,000 militiamen in the volunteer camps and our representatives, Dr. H. G. Barrie and T. F. Best, sailed with the Canadian contingents that went to South Africa. God used them to do a marvelous work among the men on the transports, in camp, in hospitals, and on the field and march. While returning to Canada with the men of the first contingent, Dr. Barrie was overwhelmed by the kindness of the men shown in the gift of $500. A more thorough and comprehensive plan for the whole religious work of our associations has been largely adopted. The Bible study work has been developed in a broad way; volunteer leagues have been organized and an effort is now being made to have the Maritime Provinces assume larger responsibility for the foreign work. Two boys' conferences have been held and each year boys' camps have been instituted under the direction of the Maritime boys' work committee. The camps have grown so that now they are held in three sections in different parts of the country.

An inter-associational paper has been issued monthly by the Maritime committee and has served greatly to strengthen "the tie that binds" and to unify all the endeavors of our associations. Corresponding members have been found to carry on aggressive work in outlying and unorganized towns.

The chairman and treasurer of the Maritime committee for the last six years have been obliged, through pressure of other things, to give up the places of leadership of so much value to the work, but good successors have been found. For the last two years the general policy of the work has been intensive with a view to enlargement and extensive work in the coming time.

Our workers are looking forward towards the Jubilee Convention with prayerful interest and are looking out with large hope and faith to the work and the victories of a new century.

In a great measure the success and continuance of the work in the Maritime Provinces is due to the unremitting attention and unceasing labors of the Maritime secretary, Fraser G. Marshall.

ONTARIO

During the past two years good progress has been made in this province in all phases of association effort. The work is in a very satisfactory condition and a number of new associations have been established at important points.

Work among railroad men has made greater progress than at any former time in our history; several new buildings have been erected at terminal points on the Grand Trunk system.

District work has been prosecuted with encouraging results and meetings for Bible study have been established in a number of villages and towns where no associations exist.

Secretaries of the International Committee have given very valuable assistance, especially in connection with the college and railway work.

The special effort in sending out representatives with two military contingents to South Africa was most hearty and resulted in much blessing to the men on the field.

QUEBEC

The associations in this province though small in number represent the different branches of the association movement—Montreal, a large city; Quebec, a small city; Sherbrooke, a town; McGill University, the student, and Point St. Charles, the railroad department.

The canvass of the Montreal association to raise the mortgage and floating debt has been successfully completed. The changing of the upper floors of the building from offices into bed-rooms for members, has been a greater success than was anticipated. A remarkable growth has occurred, particularly in the educational and physical departments, calling for an enlarged accomodation in the near future. The membership now stands at 1,938, and efforts are being made to bring it up to 2,000 for the Jubilee year. Never before in the history of the association has the committee work been so faithfully performed. Emphasis has been laid on the religious work; more thorough organization has been given to the Bible study department; the men's meeting and the foreign work, and personal effort for the individual has been more faithfully developed through the visiting committee, strangers' social tea, employment bureau, the following up of inquirers, introducing them to pastors, etc. The influence arising from the weekly morning meeting of the directors for prayer has been of incalculable value to the whole work. The summer camp is steadily increasing and is one of the most successful features of the work of the association. The Jubilee celebration of the Montreal association—the oldest in America—is now being carefully planned.

The Quebec association shows a steady progress during the past two years. Special emphasis has been given to the matter of Bible study. The physical department is a strong feature in the work. The matter of interesting the members in foreign work has for the first time taken an organized and hopeful shape.

The Sherbrooke association feels the pressing need of a new building. It reports a reorganization of physical department work, and a large increase in the attendance at the religious meetings; special emphasis is being laid on the Bible and training class for young men, and definite results are appearing.

The McGill University association reports the employment of a general secretary. The cooperation in the Bible study cycle recommended by the International Committee has proved very attractive and suitable. The association has taken a deep interest in a former graduate and general secretary, A. H. Grace, B. A., now in the foreign field, and is diverting part of its missionary giving towards his support. More attention has been devoted to systematic giving for missionary objects. Steps are being taken to secure the erection of a building which will be suitable for the rapidly growing work.

The reconstructed building of the railroad branch at Point St. Charles has already proved inadequate ; a number of interviews have been held with the management of the Grand Trunk Railway, looking towards the erection of a substantial and well equipped building, which would provide for future growth. This company has stood behind the work, not only at Point St. Charles, but along its lines in a remarkable way during the last three years.

Our associations took an active part in sending out Dr. H. G. Barrie and T. F. Best with the first and second Canadian contingents to South Africa. The work was deeply appreciated by both officers and men, and received high commendation. It has also reacted helpfully upon the home work. Our associations will cooperate with those of Ontario in the support of Dr. Barrie on the foreign mission field. Work at the militia camp at Laprairie was revived last year, the Montreal and Quebec associations cooperating in this.

HAWAII

Since your former corresponding member, the late Hon. A. F. Judd, wrote you, Hawaii has become an integral part of the United States and, although separated from the mainland by a vast expanse of the Pacific, we can no longer consider ourselves a foreign field, but our association is brought into closer touch and cooperation with the work of the International Committee.

In the early part of 1899 our association reached its thirtieth anniversary. The writer, being one of the original charter members, had the pleasure on that occasion of tracing the growth of the association from its inception of eleven members holding meetings in a room at the Olympia Gymnasium hall, to its membership of 440 with a home of its own in a well appointed and comfortably equipped building, free from debt. At that anniversary, through the generosity of C. M. Cooke, an ex-president of the association, we were enabled to announce the gift of $2,500 as an initiatory for an endowment fund.

With H. E. Coleman as general secretary, Albert J. Coats as physical director and assistant secretary, a faithful, earnest board of directors and active, devoted committees, all departments of the work were carried along with a vigorous growth.

Bible study, evangelistic services, educational classes, literary and social classes and the gymnasium, all showed a deeper interest and a wider scope, and 1899 would have been a well rounded out year but for the plague cloud which fell upon our city and made sad and serious many hearts and homes among us.

In 1900 our customary New Year's reception and open house for the first of January, had to be omitted. It had been the custom for many years, as each new year came round, for the workers and their lady friends to entertain, and many a young man, far distant from the home gathering, has been made glad with the cheer, entertainment and sumptuous repast so generously extended to them. For some weeks our building was closed, but during that awful plague ordeal many of the association men were among those who unstintingly gave themselves for service to their fellows, and one of our number had the charge of providing for all "contacts" and all quarantined within the lines, feeding daily 1,900 to 3,000 persons. When the worst had passed our association work was resumed as soon as advisable and all departments fell into line.

Our general secretary was engaged to complete another year, and after a visit to Lake Geneva, Physical Director Coats entered upon his second year with us. Our religious meetings show 165 sessions for the year, with an average attendance of 50. In the Bible and training classes 118 sessions were held with an average of 10 persons. Our library contains 1,000 volumes and is supplied with many of the leading journals and papers, and the same is well patronized.

During the summer our first summer camp was started by Secretary Coleman. The camp was located in the famous Manoa Valley. It was quite a success although the location was far up in the "rain line." The many lads who availed themselves of the outing were greatly benefitted.

Among the army religious work was carried on with the sixth artillery stationed at Camp McKinley. The meetings were mostly held at the Waikiki church. Sixty-four meetings were held with an average attendance of thirty-eight. There were five Bible class sessions. A number of conversions have followed this work.

When the army transport Logan came into port with its hundreds of young men for Manila, with no special adviser or shepherd in spiritual things, Abram E. Cory went to work among them and so pressing was the need of Christian work that our association provided for Mr. Cory to accompany the ship to Manila, which he did, working with the men with marked results and wonderful success. Besides personally laboring with the men he preached thirty-three times, strengthened the timid and weak, reclaimed the fallen and brought into a confession of service to the Master, at least seventy-five souls. An association was organized with 185 members. Each group of company members had its committee with chairman. We could not but feel that this was a grand investment for the Master and that Mr. Cory's work had been signally blessed.

During this year our endowment fund has been increased by the sum of $5,000 from the Bishop estate. This now gives us $7,500 in endowment fund. On May 20 last the Hon. A. F. Judd, one of our charter members, an ex-president of the association and a life long supporter of our work, was called from us and went home to his reward.

Our Japanese friends have organized and are working very successfully an association of their own. Some of their leading members still hold membership with the main association.

We had a membership of 421 at the close of the year. Although many have left for the mainland our numbers are being constantly added to,

for as many as 180 new names were put upon the roll during the year, and the outlook for the future is quite promising.

We begin to think the time is not far distant when we must be looking for a larger building to meet the growing demands of our work in this rapidly growing city.

YUKON DISTRICT

W. A. Reid, the only regular association worker now in Alaska, was formerly general secretary at Kalamazoo, Mich., having gone to Alaska in the summer of 1898. His objective point was Dawson, where he hoped to be able to start association work. On reaching Skagway, the journey on to Dawson seemed inexpedient, and the needs for such work at Skagway appeared to be so imperative, that he remained at that point where he set up a tent to be used as association headquarters. The work was appreciated and an association was regularly organized and incorporated, the membership at one time reaching a total of 850.

During 1900 Mr. Reid made a tour among the army posts in Alaska, carrying with him supplies furnished by the Army and Navy Department of the International Committee. At Cape Nome and St. Michaels associations were organized among the soldiers, the charter membership being 102 and 55 respectively. Forts Gibbon and Egbert were visited also and association supplies of stationery and literature were furnished the troops.

Aside from the work among soldiers there is at present just the one association at Skagway and a strong demand for work at Dawson and Cape Nome, but it will be next to impossible to develop the work without proper men to put in charge and also without the means to support the work until started. Mr. Reid contemplates going to Dawson as quickly as he can secure a man to take his place at Skagway.

ARKANSAS

Arkansas has at the present time six associations; one railroad, two student, and three city, with two more city associations in process of organization. The railroad association at Texarkana owns and occupies a splendid building valued, with equipment, at $16,000. This association recently closed its first year's work without a dollar of indebtedness, and with a total paid up membership of 920 men. There has been no organized state work in Arkansas in recent years, but valuable service has been rendered from time to time by the International Committee through its secretaries, C. C. Michener, F. B. Shipp and Hugh McIlhany. The outlook for association work in this state is now more encouraging than for several years past.

CALIFORNIA

Our cause has made steady progress in California during the past two years; all departments of the work have been strengthened and built up.

Digitized by Google

This is particularly true of the student work, which has a far stronger hold on the student body of the state than ever before. The two summer schools at Pacific Grove were attended by nearly one hundred students coming from every college and university of the Pacific states. The two state conventions, held at San Jose and Redlands, were largely attended by delegates from all parts of the state; the carefully arranged programs were carried out in the most acceptable manner and new impetus was given to the work. As the legitimate work of the association is becoming better understood it is receiving a larger support than heretofore. Our close relations to the Philippines has given us unexampled opportunities, both in connection with the soldiers located at the Presidio and those who pass through our city to and from the Philippines. We now have an army branch of the work at the Presidio, with two secretaries giving their entire time to this department.

W. M. Parsons, state secretary of California, has been abundant in labor and the effect of his indefatigable zeal and management of the state work is bearing good fruit. Steps are being taken to establish the railroad work in our state, and in the near future we hope to have one railroad branch at least—the first in California. Special attention has been given to educational lines in most of the larger associations, and this very desirable branch has been largely increased numerically and in efficiency.

COLORADO

The work of the Colorado state committee the past year, while very much handicapped for want of necessary means, has nevertheless gone steadily forward with the assistance of W. M. Danner, general secretary of the Denver association, who is also our state secretary. Naturally the secretary of an association of more than 1,200 members does not have much spare time, but he has done well and the committee is under great obligations to him.

Since the last report G. C. Huntington has resigned from the Pueblo association, being succeeded by F. H. Gamel. C. W. Hardy having resigned from the Canon City association, Bevan Binford became his successor for a short time; owing to continued ill-health, however, he was obliged to resign and has since gone to his reward. G. S. Bilheimer, formerly office secretary of the Denver association, succeeded Mr. Binford and is doing good work. The associations are all in a thriving condition. Colorado Springs expects to have a building soon and Denver is still hopeful of obtaining one.

There are several points in the state where we should have associations, especially Leadville, Cripple Creek and Victor, but until we are able to employ a state secretary at least six months in the year we do not think it wise again to undertake work at these points.

The railroad work at Denver continues under the able management of Secretary Burdick, and is growing rapidly. Officials of the various roads which traverse our state are considering the feasibility of opening work at three other points.

The student work is in a flourishing condition and much credit is due to the earnest Christian young men in the various colleges for the vigorous manner in which they are prosecuting the work through visitation, etc. Two new student associations have been organized the past year; at the state School of Mines, at Golden, and the professional schools of Denver University. A conference of the student associations was held in Denver, April 13–14, 1900. The lamented secretary of the International Committee, H. W. Rose, who had just completed the visitation of the colleges in Colorado, was present and rendered valuable assistance.

Under our auspices, in cooperation with the International Committee, a traveling library has been installed at Fort Logan. We have also furnished equipment for an amusement room, which is greatly appreciated by the soldiers.

Closely connected with our work of supervision comes the burden incident to ministering to the needs of the host of tubercularly inclined young men who crowd into our inviting climate each year. The needs of this class impelled our committee to appeal for funds with which to establish and equip a "health farm" for these unfortunate men. The appeal has been heard in part, and a few thousand dollars placed in the committee's hands, but additional funds are needed.

CONNECTICUT

There has been no marked change in the general standing of the associations throughout the state during the last two years.

We have extended our borders to some extent and have made more efficient the existing associations, so that while we feel that "there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed," we enter upon the new century full of hope and courage. There is a constantly increasing sympathy and cooperation on the part of the moral and Christian public, and the churches manifest an enlarged sympathy with our end eavors.

Twenty-five live associations and three sections well organized and officered are doing efficient work. Between three and four thousand patrons find their way into our associations daily and avail themselves of the various appointments. The most cordial relations exist between our state committee and the local associations, the latter realizing more and more the value of our state organization.

Led by our efficient state secretary the members of our state committee are doing excellent work by canvassing every part of the state to determine where efforts should be made to introduce our work, either by the formation of a section or an association; by leading the associations to feel that they are all one and engaged in a common work; by rendering needed assistance when from any cause the work is hindered, and by seeking to give every village and town a knowledge of the work we are doing. In all this we are greatly aided by our five faithful district committees, by the 35 members composing our state advisory committee and by our more than 100 corresponding members.

The financial condition of our associations is encouraging, three having paid off their mortgages and other encumbrances, while others have reduced their indebtedness. Twelve own buildings valued at $805,000; three others own real estate valued at $82,000; three have building funds and subscriptions amounting to $90,000; five have endowments aggregating over $73,000, and the furnishings of our association buildings are valued at about $50,000, thus making the total valuation of association property in the state $1,100,000. The beautiful building now being erected in New Haven will be one of the finest in the state. The cost will not be far from $225,000, a large portion of which is already pledged.

The work done through the state committee at the military encampments of the Connecticut national guard was of such excellence as to command the approbation of the governor of the state and of the commanding general.

Our associations are still emphasizing Bible study and progress has been made in the endeavor to unify this work by adopting a uniform course of study. The junior work is growing in membership and efficiency. We have recently held in Hartford our first delegated junior conference, which was well attended and was both interesting and profitable.

Our Sunday afternoon meetings have been well attended; several associations in our larger cities have held them in the opera houses to accommodate the large numbers.

We would not forget gratefully to acknowledge the helpfulness of the International Committee in giving wise counsels, frequent suggestions and an ever ready response to any legitimate demand in time of need.

W. R. BURNHAM, Cor. Mem.

GEORGIA

Association work in this state is now in the best condition in its history. J. V. Read has been our state secretary for more than a year. He has devoted his whole time to the work, and it is mainly through his efforts that the present promising condition has been reached. While the number of organizations has not been materially increased, much has been accomplished in building up the individual associations; all of them have been greatly strengthened within recent months, and all are doing definite work for young men, by young men, on established association principles.

Georgia now has six city associations, all employing general secretaries; six well maintained college associations, and the railroad department of the Atlanta association. These have a combined membership of 3,303. Five own buildings having a total value, including furnishings, of $200,000; three of the buildings have debts upon them aggregating about $29,000.

The state committee has the assistance of fifty-two corresponding members. Four young men's bands have been organized in small towns during the past year. The Atlanta association has a membership of 1,200, and comprises a larger percentage of young men of the city in its membership than any other large city association in this country. Atlanta has the only educational director in the southern states, and is doing a good work on educational lines. The new building at Macon, costing $18,000, was dedicated last October, and has the distinction of having no debt. The Augusta association is said to have the most numerously attended men's meeting of any association in the South.

The state committee would express its appreciation of the valuable assistance received from the International Committee, especially in the hearty aid given at our conventions, and for the attendance of its secretaries at the successful dinner recently given in Atlanta.

ILLINOIS

At the October, 1900, state convention there were 114 associations reported—thirty-eight city, ten railroad, fifty student and sixteen town—besides eight organized bands Twenty-two of these own buildings valued at $2,576,505.

For the preceding year 684 conversions were reported. The average weekly attendance at religious meetings was 3,745, and at Bible classes 2,054. Increased interest in Bible study was marked.

Thirty-four associations have gymnasiums, twenty have special work for boys, seventeen are doing educational work, five of which have secured 127 international certificates.

The number of associations and bands in the town department increased from twelve to twenty-four; work has been organized in Iroquois County and a county secretary employed.

The corresponding membership has grown from 540 in 1898 to 805 in 1900. The correspondence bureau followed 575 men in 1899, and 1,200 in 1900, into almost every state in the union.

New buildings were opened in 1900 by the railroad associations at Danville and Peoria.

Two most useful and interesting associations were begun during the past two years—one for miners at Carbon Hill, in July, 1899; the other at the State Reformatory at Pontiac in October, 1898. The latter has a membership of about 500.

In commemoration of the completion of twenty years of work under the state secretaryship of I. E. Brown, the state executive committee issued a little book describing its history, organization and needs.

FRANKLIN W. GANSE, Cor. Mem.

INDIANA

We have held the same thirteen city and railroad association points reported two years ago, and the total number of thirty-four remains the same, one new college association having been organized and one having suspended. Two more college associations have established general secretaryships, one with a trained man giving his whole time and another about one-third his time, making three colleges with general secretaries. Our total membership is nearly 6,000 and our annual current expenses $57,000, not including the $5,000 used in state work (all bills paid.)

In the language of the last report of the International Committee, "A review of these figures shows little apparent progress. A larger decrease might have been expected as a result of the hard times so long prevalent. The associations have certainly exhibited remarkable staying power. On the other hand, there are indications of the continuance of that growth and development in individual associations which has been the most marked feature of progress for a decade or more."

The two years have been made the more difficult by a peculiar succession of losses from the ranks of our best leaders and changes in our secretarial force; our former chairman, Mr. Wishard, is now in Minnesota, and our former vice-chairman, Mr. Wales, in Connecticut; our last year's president, Mr. Newton, is in Ohio; a fourth "wheel-horse," our member at Evansville, Mr. Lewis, moved to Alabama; and recently we lost by death Governor Mount, one of our most interested and valuable members. We have in training, in a strong eastern metropolitan association, our assistant state secretary-elect, Mr. Hanson; a special committee is at work on a thorough reorganization of the duties of our employed force, acting upon suggestions and experience gained from various states and provinces and from the International Committee.

The $300,000 worth of buildings and other real estate have an unprovided-for indebtedness of but six per cent of the total amount. The average daily attendance in the thirteen associations has passed the 2,000 mark; the total average weekly attendance at young men's gospel meetings is 1,100; the number of Bible class sessions last year was 2,100. These figures vary but little from the previous year, some being smaller and others larger.

Comparatively new features of our state work mentioned in the last biennial report—holiday evangelistic work by college students and "young men's Sundays"—have been continued with gratifying results. Our corresponding member system touches more than 100 unorganized towns. The observance of "state-day," the second Sunday after the convention, is also becoming a custom. The athletic meet has become a fixed annual event; the last two years it has been entirely under the auspices of the Association Athletic League. The Indianapolis association has led in the establishment of an association tent in the annual encampment of the new Indiana national guard. We cooperated with the International Committee towards the support of our former assistant state secretary, V. W. Helm, one of the national secretaries in Japan, eleven of our associations contributing to this fund last year. We are now planning for our third annual conference of the presidents of Indiana colleges and universities with our college committee—a new and profitable feature of our state work; the college deputation continues to be helpful. Our secretaries and physical directors held last April their eleventh annual conference which was above the average in quality. With the cooperation of the governor and others we have done considerable to repress the immoral features of our street fairs. Our endowment fund has increased to nearly $2,800 by the voluntary addition of life insurance policies in favor of the state association.

In the last report of our state committee (to the convention, December, 1900), there was special mention of the wise helpfulness of every department of the International Committee upon which we have called.

IOWA

Iowa, the tenth state in the Union as to the number of its inhabitants, according to the last report of the International Committee, is seventh in the number of its associations.

Our present reports show fifty associations with a membership of 9,000. Thirteen own buildings worth $423,000. More than $70,000 were spent for current expenses. There were fifty-nine evening educational classes with an enrollment of 526; 150 lectures and practical talks were given; 235 receptions and socials were held; 2,500 young men came together in men's gospel meetings; 138 weekly classes for the study of the Bible were held with an attendance of 1,362. Forty-seven men devote their whole time to the work as general secretaries and physical directors. There are no vacancies at present. In towns not having associations, 265 correspondents give information as to young men who leave home for business or educational purposes. These figures show that since the Dubuque convention two years ago there has been an increase of 1,300 members, a net gain of three buildings, adding $90,000 to the value of our property, and a gain of $10,000 in the amount spent for current expenses. Twelve additional educational classes and fifty more socials and receptions are reported. The average attendance at men's gospel meetings has increased 200; 508 more men are enrolled in Bible and training classes. There are seven additional secretaries and physical directors, and over 1,100 men have professed conversion in the gospel meetings. We have heretofore reported gifts of $10,000 and over from seven individuals and firms. We now add another to this class, S. F. Baker & Co., Keokuk.

Buildings have been completed and entered at Waterloo, Keokuk, and Central College, Pella. They are worth $30,000, $40,000 and $15,000, respectively. All were entered free of debt, furnishing a good example for future enterprises of the kind.

The association at Davenport purchased a fine large brick residence in October. They are planning to add a gymnasium and are engaged in a canvass to secure the money. The Independence association purchased for $3,000 a building well adapted to its needs, and from which some income will be received. A new bath service was put in at Ottumwa, costing $3,000. A largely attended business men's conference opened the canvass for a building at Oskaloosa. Although no solicitation was made at the conference, more than $10,000 was voluntarily offered. This amount has been increased to $21,000, and it is their hope to secure $40,000.

A troublesome floating debt of $8,000 of some years standing has been subscribed at the State University. The subscriptions were conditioned on the entire amount being pledged. No mass meetings were held, but a quiet hand-to-hand effort was conducted among Iowa City business men and the faculty, students and alumni of the university. The Des Moines association will be able to pay from twenty to twenty-five thousand on its debt within a few months. The bequest of $2,000 from W. B. Bentley was a great encouragement. The Cedar Falls association has received a bequest of $1,000 toward a building. The work of our railroad departments is increasing in efficiency each year. Marshalltown hopes to pay $1,000 on its mortgage soon. Early in 1899 some of the employees of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. became anxious to do something for the welfare of their companions in the service. R. W. Robinson, of Burlington, a conductor; C. W. Messenger, of Ottumwa, chief dispatcher, and George Goodnet, of Creston, an engineer, were foremost in the movement. It was planned to hold at least one meeting a month, and later one meeting in two months. A large number of division points have been visited. The results have been very gratifying in strengthening Christian men and in conversions. The state committees of Iowa and Illinois have given hearty co-operation in this work. Iowa had twenty-eight delegates at the great railroad conference at Philadelphia.

The work of the student department is encouraging ; a delegation of sixty-two, the largest ever had, was present at the Lake Geneva student conference last summer.

Reading and writing tents have been maintained at the military encampments at Clear Lake, Burlington, Perry, Red Oak, Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa. The tents were in charge of experienced secretaries, and furnished a place of wholesome resort for the men. They were furnished with the best of reading matter, free stationery, suitable games and opportunity for social intercourse. The attendance was from 300 to 500 a day and 200 letters a day were written. The authorities gave hearty cooperation. Early in 1900 our committee sustained a great loss in the death of Chairman W. B. Bentley.

The counsel and assistance of the International Committee have been greatly appreciated.

KANSAS

The associations in this state continue to show substantial progress, especially in the matter of buildings. The new $11,000 railroad building at Argentine, completed and occupied in June, 1899, is a model of its kind, and must be seen to be appreciated. May 6, 1900, the Leavenworth association dedicated, free from debt, a home costing $15,000. Arkansas City has purchased a building, which is being repaired and improved, and will doubtless be a strong element in the strengthening of the work in that city.

Two new residences were donated to the State University association in Lawrence through the liberality of Mr. and Mrs. George Davies, and are proving of great value to the work in that important place. A swimming pool and unusually good accommodations for physical training have been provided by the Lawrence association. Topeka and Ft. Scott have greatly improved and enlarged their rented quarters. Through the generosity of the well-known author, the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, the Topeka association has had improvements made in its furnishing and equipment to the amount of $500.

Four of the great railroads of the country are giving liberal corporation support to the association work on behalf of their men at several points within the state ; a fifth is contemplating work at an important division point, and a sixth has recently requested the International Committee to make an investigation of the needs of its employees.

No more debt seeds are being planted in Kansas. The pay-as-we-go policy prevails everywhere, and the state work is absolutely free of debt, this happy condition of affairs having prevailed for the last five years. The sum of $5,000 was voted for state work this year.

In membership and spiritual lines a gratifying and healthy growth is manifested. There are ten city and railroad associations, containing 2,998 members, besides 255 juniors; 25 student associations, containing 1,448 members, making a total membership of 4,701.

The governor of the state is an active member of the state executive committee, and the association cause is still under the wise and faithful leadership of Andrew Baird as state secretary.

J. B. LARIMER, Cor. Mem.

KENTUCKY

The last two years have seen a more thorough and comprehensive development in the work throughout the state than ever before. There are now forty associations, and five organized bands. There are four men on the state force—the state secretary, an assistant state secretary, a student secretary, and a county work department secretary.

From a spiritual standpoint the years 1899 and 1900 have been the best in the history of the work in the state. In nearly all our associations there has been a very considerable increase in the number of Bible classes and in the thoroughness of the work done. The religious work of many of the associations is well organized, and there is an increasing purpose to make the association in the fullest and truest sense a Christian force in the community.

The student work has been characterized by a development of broader activity and gradual growth in numbers and influence. A secretary is now entrusted with the supervision of this department.

The five railroad departments have steadily increased in strength and influence, and the one at Ashland is about to be equipped with a $7,500 building. A new work is being inaugurated on the L. & N. R. R., at Corbin, where a building, costing $5,000, has been secured by an appropriation from the company and the subscriptions of the men.

The army work was maintained in 1899 with the remaining regiment from the state in the United States volunteer army in Cuba.

One of the most interesting and important features of the Association work, which has been developed under the direction of the state executive committee during the past two years, is the county work department. The plan of employing a secretary of the state committee to organize and develop this department of the work, begun in this State, has proved an important contribution to the cause throughout the country in addition to its primary success in helping to reach and save the young men of Kentucky. Three counties are now organized, with a county secretary giving his entire time to the work in each county.

Beginning with January, 1901, the Kentucky associations are contributing to the salary and expenses of F. S. Brockman, secretary at Nanking, China, as a representative from the state in the foreign field.

The twentieth annual state convention, held in Louisville, February 21-24, 1901, reached the high water mark in the association gatherings of the state; 417 delegates were in attendance, and a budget of $8,000 was adopted for the state work of 1901.

LOUISIANA

The progress of the work in Louisiana during the past two years has been gratifying. The New Orleans association has shown a marked development. Never in its history has the entire organization, both in equipment and in general work, been in such excellent condition to reach the young men in this metropolis of the South as at this time. J. P. Jackson, formerly secretary at Dallas, Tex., has been called to this assotion since our last report.

The college associations of the state have been doing, on the whole, very satisfactory work. There is expressed interest in several unorganized institutions, and it is expected that in the near future at least two new college associations will be organized. There is a decided interest in several of the smaller cities of the state, and the outlook is encouraging for at least two associations with secretaries being added to our town associations.

The joint arrangement by which this state joins Alabama and Mississippi in the employment of a state secretary is continued with very satisfactory results. L. E. Buell has resigned to accept the position of association state secretary of Michigan. His service with us was successful and self-sacrificing, and the state committee reluctantly accepted his resignation. H. F. Williams has been called to the position and is doing successful work.

The state convention at Natchez in April, 1900, was a well attended and an enthusiastic meeting. CHARLES H. SHUTE, Cor. Mem.

MAINE

A survey of the work of the last two years shows growth of a most encouraging character. The state convention was held in Portland in 1899; there was none in 1900. E. T. Garland has given some time to visiting the associations throughout the state and has answered all calls for help, but the state work has been hindered by lack of funds.

Temporary work for sailors of the North Atlantic squadron has been maintained at Portland and at Bar Harbor during both years. About $3,000 has been spent in this work.

At Bar Harbor a new association has been formed and a new building erected. The work is well organized and is under the charge of a competent secretary. The Portland association raised $20,000 last winter to discharge the debt. Good work is being done under the efficient management of Secretary Garland; the membership is large and the men's meetings among the largest and best in New England. The Bangor association is active and influential. The endowment fund has been increased from $12,170 to $14,570.

No changes have occurred among the general secretaries of the state during the two years. GEORGE H. HOPKINS, Cor. Mem.

MARYLAND GROUP

The associations in this group have made marked advancement during the past year. The work in all departments has been strengthened and enlarged, and several building and current debts have been cancelled.

Digitized by Google

There are 15 city and town associations with a membership of 6,572; 20 college associations, membership 818; 6 railroad associations, membership 1,678; total membership, 9,068. The value of buildings and other real estate is $666,500.

George F. Tibbitts began service as state secretary September 1, 1900, and has been giving general service to all the associations in the territory, getting in touch with each, unifying the work and assisting each, especially in the religious department.

Cumberland has succeeded in raising $19,400, thereby cancelling the building indebtedness. It now has a fine equipment, the stores on the ground floor bringing a yearly rental of $1,500. Wilmington has secured $25,700, the total amount of the building indebtedness, and has added building improvements costing $5,000. Baltimore has made extensive alterations and improvements costing $16,000. The association now has the largest gymnasium in the city, a first-class bathing equipment and modern improvements throughout. The Frederick association has taken on new life, having three attractive rooms and the year's budget raised. Hagerstown closed its doors November 15.

College associations have been organized at the Wesleyan Conference Seminary, Buckhannon, Maryland Agricultural College Park, and Wilmington Conference Academy, Dover.

THEODORE A. HARDING, Cor. Mem.

MASSACHUSETTS AND RHODE ISLAND

There are at present in the two states 86 associations, divided as follows: 60 city and town, 23 student, and 3 railroad.

In the 63 town and railroad associations there are 21,488 members and a junior membership of 3,508. In the 23 student associations there are 1,364 members, making a total membership of 26,950, a gain of 3,698 for the year.

These associations employ 129 men as secretaries, physical directors, and assistants, and provide 126 educational classes and 47 gymnasiums for the training of the minds and bodies of the members. There has been a marked increase in the attendance at the Bible and training classes and at the Sunday afternoon gospel services for men. Twenty-four associations report 255 professed conversions.

The last year five associations have raised $164,100 to clear their buildings from encumbrance, a record unprecedented in our history. New buildings have been secured for three associations at an aggregate cost of $157,200, and several associations are conducting successful canvasses.

Educational work has received special attention at several points; the Boston association is setting an example to all and proving that educational work when properly and efficiently conducted can be made a great power for good in reaching and benefitting young men.

The boys' department has received special attention and done effective service in training the future men of the association. E. M. Robinson, who has recently left us to become the first international boys' secretary, rendered very efficient service in this field during the two years he was with the state committee. The state camp at Meduncook Island, Maine, was attended by 135 boys. Fifty of these took a decided stand for Christ.

The women's auxiliaries of the two states have a total membership of 7,396. Two thousand women are serving on committees and have raised the sum of $20,000 for the carrying on of the work during the past year.

Last summer a very successful small town campaign was carried forward. Twenty-eight towns on Cape Cod were visited, eighty-two meetings were held, and letters from the pastors of the country churches visited showed conclusively that small town work conducted by spiritual and tactful men yields large returns.

In the last two years successful and helpful conventions have been held, and while not so largely attended as in previous years, they have proved a valuable aid in the upbuilding of the associations.

The work in all its departments has received the unceasing watch-care of the state committee, and State Secretary Armstrong and his corps of assistants have been untiring in their visitation and correspondence.

MICHIGAN

The student associations in the state are in a very encouraging condition and doing excellent work. At Geneva last summer they again promised $300 to the foreign work of the International Committee.

Ten of the 11 college associations report. These have a membership of 975 (adding last year's membership of the association not reporting, 1,023), 285 of whom are serving on committees. In these 10 institutions are 4,091 male students, 1,832 of whom (estimate in some cases) are members of evangelical churches; 443 men enrolled in Bible study, 355 of whom continued two months or longer; 126 men in mission Sunday classes, and 33 men volunteers; 33 professed conversions are reported.

The student gathering at Lake Geneva last June was attended by 35 delegates from 11 Michigan college associations. Two of last year's graduates from Michigan institutions have taken important positions in an adjoining state—Mr. Hurry, of the U. of M., going as general secretary to the State University of Indiana, and Mr. Dinsmore, of Kalamazoo, going to Depue.

Immediately following the convention last year there were secured for the Kalamazoo association $27,000 to pay off all liabilities, repair the building and meet the current expenses for the year. Over $21,000 of the above amount has already been collected.

We have at present 30 regularly organized associations, with a membership of 7,617, divided as follows: In 16 cities, 5,535; at three railroad points, 1,059; in 11 educational institutions, 1,023; this shows the gratifying increase of about 17 per cent for the year. Seventeen city and railroad associations report 784 as serving on committees, which is 25 per cent increase over last year in number of men serving, but a slight decrease in the percentage of active members. Seventeen report total average at gospel meetings 527. This shows a total increase of 1,926; the attendance at Bible classes remains about the same as last year; 11 city and railroad associations report 165 professed conversions, five less than last year, and 38 as joining churches, one less than last year. The property owned and occupied by our associations represents in value $426,000, on which there is an indebtedness of $15,525, against which, however, they own other property and have a bequest not yet paid, amounting in all to $43,925. The Detroit association has received a bequest amounting to $5,000, from the late David Whitney, Jr., one of its trustees.

The railroad association at West Detroit has one of the handsomest and best equipped of modern railroad association buildings completed. A $2,000 addition has been made to the Port Huron building, and the Durand association has had to enlarge its quarters. There are prospects of a still further increase in the railroad work.

Work has been opened among the soldiers at Fort Wayne by the Detroit association. JAMES SCHERMERHORN, Cor. Mem.

MINNESOTA

At the close of 1898 William Francis resigned as state secretary and E. W. Peck succeeded him. Mr. Francis went out of the work with the respect and warmest feeling of friendship on the part of the members of the state committee, and Mr. Peck was received in the most cordial manner and has had the heartiest support of all. Our work has never been in a more active and healthful condition than during these two years.

The association in St. Paul has maintained a large membership, having at this time about 1,050. It reports an expenditure of about $12,000 for the past year, and at the end of each year current expenses have been fully paid and a small balance applied to old debt. The educational work has doubled in two years.

The Minneapolis association has done a strong and vigorous work in all departments. The budget was about $14,000 last year and the membership is about 1,100. This association paid off a floating debt of about $4,000 in 1899 and expended about the same amount on its building in 1900. Both years closed with all bills met. Duluth association has nearly reached 1,000 in its membership, has remodeled its building at a cost of $2,400, and has done stronger work and is in better shape than at any time in its history. Winona and Mankato keep up their efficiency and have gained in the confidence of their communities.

The railroad work has developed. Two Harbors and Brainerd associations have grown in membership and influence. There will be two more of these associations in the near future, one with a building of its own.

The state university association has acquired control of its building, has thoroughly refitted it, and has a membership of over 400. All the college associations are doing well, with a marked increase in systematic Bible study. The student delegation at Lake Geneva have had a slight increase each year. Forty-one students in eight bands were sent out for the student vacation work in 1899, and about the same number in 1900.

There are now about 182 corresponding members who aid the state force in following young men who change their places of residence, and there has been a large increase in the contributions from corresponding and sustaining members, about $2,000 being raised for the budget of 1900 from unorganized points.

Dodge county is the only county with a secretary in charge. This secretary accompanied thirty-two men to college from his own field the past autumn, most of them from his junior department. Two conventions were held, at Minneapolis in 1899, and at Winona in 1900.

G. W. Lewis, Cor. Mem.

MISSISSIPPI

There has been an encouraging growth in Mississippi during the past two years. The joint state committee arrangement with Louisiana has been continued with most harmonious relations. There are no large cities in the state, and but one town association. Natchez has at times with difficulty continued its work, but the success realized has given it a hold upon the churches and people which assures permanency.

The Meridian railroad association has been compelled by its increased membership to secure quarters of nearly double the former capacity. The growth and efficiency of the work have attracted employees and have secured the unqualified endorsement of the officials.

A new railroad department has been established at Canton. The management has erected a building costing $4,000, and the citizens have subscribed about $1,000 more for furnishing. D. G. McLaurin, a graduate of the Chicago training school, has been called as secretary, and the work will soon be in full operation. This is the first building erected by the Illinois Central company, and special interest is felt in the success of the movement.

The college associations show progress; the men manifest a deep interest in all departments. A few organizations have suspended.

The retirement of L. E. Buell as state secretary was a matter of regret, but the committee was fortunate in at once securing H. F. Williams, who has already taken up the work.

The joint convention at Natchez in April, 1900, was a good meeting, and greatly stimulated the work in the state. The outlook is hopeful, notwithstanding a burdensome debt. As in former years we have been favored with the valuable assistance of representatives of the International Committee.

J. R. Dobyns, Cor. Mem.

MISSOURI

The work of the associations in Missouri during the past two years has been very encouraging and gives promise of much better work in the immediate future. The state committee was able to report at the end of 1899 that it was out of debt as the result of a thorough canvass in St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and other cities. Secretary C. C. Michener of the International Committee assisted very materially in this work.

Although we were without a state secretary during 1899 we held all the old associations and added five new ones—two town, one college and two railroad—the latter at Monett, on the 'Frisco, and at Poplar Bluff, on the Kansas City, Ft. Scott & Memphis. These associations were the result of the cooperation of the railroad companies named, secured through the assistance of F. B. Shipp, railroad secretary of the International Committee. Before the year closed arrangements had been made whereby the Missouri Pacific offered to assist in the erection of a building at Sedalia, and the Wabash in the erection of one at Moberly. At the latter point E. L. Hamilton, railroad secretary of the International Committee, rendered able service.

During this year arrangement was made for a general secretary at the State University, that institution providing a fellowship as a means to furnish the necessary funds. The general branch at St. Louis raised by general canvass $4,000, and its board of directors provided $6,000, thus freeing the association from debt. There were at the end of the year 14 town associations, 16 student and 6 railroad—36 in all. Arrangements were made to visit the college associations twice during the year; in the spring by H. A. Wilbur, college secretary of Ohio, and in the fall by H. W. Rose, of the International Committee and a number of voluntary workers.

The St. Louis association at its central branch, very largely increased its work. At the end of the year 600 members were enrolled and a strong junior department had been organized and equipped.

At Kansas City, C. S. Bishop, formerly of Pittsburg, Mass., became in September general secretary and began at once to put the work of the association upon its feet. The membership was considerably increased and the financial situation materially strengthened. During the year 1900 the association added an employment secretary, a secretary for the junior department, and Max Exner, formerly of Troy, New York, became physical director. The membership was increased from 600 to 1,400.

In 1900 Miss Helen M. Gould gave $1,000 for a library at Popular Bluff, and promised a like amount for Monett.

I. E. Munger accepted a call to become state secretary, and entered very zealously into his work; he pushed it successfully until he was forced to give up on account of a malady contracted in mission work in India.

During this year parlor conferences were held in the interest of the state work, and were made successful largely through the stirring efforts of Mr. Munger and International Secretary Michener.

The state convention held in December, in the new railroad association building, at Moberly, was the largest and best for many years. The state committee gave Frank H. Burt, heretofore a member of the state force of Illinois, a call to become state secretary of Missouri; he accepted and has entered upon his work.

During 1900 the buildings at Monett and Popular Bluff were finished, the building at Moberly erected, and buildings at Joplin and Springfield begun. Webb City is also making a canvass for funds to secure a building.

NEBRASKA

The work in our state seems to be improving and a solid foundation is building for the coming years. There have been several changes in the executive force; fifteen men are now employed, a gain of two.

The state committee, under the leadership of Chairman Henry B. Ward, of the State University, has held regular meetings and has kept affairs well in hand. We are greatly indebted to the International Committee for the invaluable services of Field Secretary Ward at Lincoln, also for his help at other points, and for the care of the railroad associations by Secretary McDill.

During the year the committee tried the experiment of organizing sections in small towns. Under the direction of F. F. Carruthers, formerly secretary at Hastings, six places were so organized. Owing to a lack of state supervision the experiment was not a great success. Last winter an arrangement was effected with Secretary Moore, of the State University, whereby he gave one-half his time to the state work. This was fairly successful, and the committee is planning with Colorado for a combination of the two states, a secretary to divide his time equally between them.

The three railroad associations are in better shape than ever before. They report a total membership of 659, current expenses of $5,133, and seventeen conversions during the year. At Chadron special evangelistic meetings were successfully conducted by Engineer McClure. At Grand Island two Bible classes were successfully carried on, one at the Union Pacific shops and the other in the association bath room—the only available place. North Platte has paid off a debt of several hundred dollars.

Ten college associations report a total membership of 674, with 31 Bible classes, having a total enrollment of 327. They report $998 paid for current expenses besides the amounts raised for missions and state and international work; also an average attendance at the Sunday meetings of 385, and 30 conversions. The Lake Geneva conference was well attended both years. The largest growth was at the State University; under the leadership of John S. Moore the association has become a great power for good.

The city associations have more than held their own. At Hastings, which had been without a secretary for months, a good man has been secured. This association received considerable help from the state convention which met there in February.

At Lincoln there has been a revolution. This association which lost its building several years ago, and had gradually been losing everything else, was by the urgent insistence of the state committee taken in charge in the summer of 1900 by International Secretary Ward. A careful investigation showed a very bad state of affairs, with a floating indebtedness of nearly $5,000 and a somewhat unsavory reputation. Notwithstanding these things business men demonstrated their faith by putting up enough money to pay the indebtedness and furnish a suite of rooms. The association was fortunate in securing as its secretary C. M. Mayne, for six years the assistant at Omaha, under whose businesslike administration it is growing in favor and usefulness.

Fremont has had a healthy growth. The membership is 250, a gain of 44. A feature of the year's work was the organization of a volunteer league. A broad work is being done.

Omaha reports a membership of 1,340, a gain of 176 during the year. The religious work has advanced, attendance at the Bible classes increasing over one hundred per cent. The volunteer league held monthly meetings, and raised $525 toward the support of one of the foreign secretaries of the International Committee. The gymnasium classes showed an increase of twenty-five per cent in number and 45 per cent in attendance over the year previous. In a financial line the event was the payment of a small amount on the mortgage, this being the first payment made since the building was erected eleven years ago. The most hopeful feature was the improved facilities for a boys' department. The auditorium was cut up so as to supply the boys with a small hall, seating 200, reading room, game room, and parlor, also with locker and bath rooms. Two Bible classes had an enrollment of fifty-five. The attendance at the Sunday afternoon meetings during seven months was 1,347. The working boys' department, which has been in operation for over two years, is beginning to bear fruit.

NEW JERSEY

The last two years have been years of great encouragement both in the development of the work of the state committee and in that of the local associations.

In 1899 the state committee had but one secretary on its force. Now there are three: Associate State Secretary Charles B. Brown, who has charge of work in small towns, and Charles R. Scott, state secretary for boys' work, having been added during the past year.

The state conventions have been made biennial and the number of conferences has been increased. Fifteen are now held each year; five for secretaries, assistants and physical directors; six for corresponding members and workers in small towns; one each for railroad and college associations, boys' departments and women's auxiliaries.

The number of associations is 42; 25 city and town associations, 13 college, three railroad and an army association at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook. This represents a growth of four during the past two years. The army association was organized in July, 1900, and offers facilities to 400 men. The use of two pleasant rooms in the barracks is granted by the authorities. The state committee has furnished these and defrays the expense of maintaining the work.

Twenty-four associations are employing general secretaries as against nineteen two years ago. The membership has increased thirty per cent, or from 7,755 to 10,101. 2,747 men have used the privileges of the physical departments, against 1,704 in 1899, an increase of sixty-one per cent. The attendance at Bible classes has nearly doubled in two years, raising from 8,536 to 15,296. Nineteen associations report 609 conversions in 1899, fourteen associations reported 246 conversions. Eleven associations reported 111 young men joining churches against eight who reported forty-nine in 1899. Seven associations report literary or debating societies; there were none in 1899.

Of all the departments of association work the educational alone shows a decrease. $2,500 was contributed towards work in foreign lands in 1900, In 1899, $900 was the total amount raised for foreign work. During the last two years buildings have been erected in Passaic costing $35,000, Montclair $65,000, Princeton University $125,000, the latter being the gift of William E. Dodge, of New York.

Orange association received a gift of $40,000 for an addition to its building, conditioned upon the raising of $25,000 as an endowment fund. This has been pledged and plans for the new building adopted. Newark association has purchased a new building site and has secured $150,000 of the $200,000 needed to erect the building.

Plainfield and Summit associations have paid off all their mortgage indebtedness, amounting to $5,000 in the former and $8,000 in the latter case. New Brunswick has reduced its debt $2,000.

Under the state secretary for boys' work that department is promising great results. A state camp for boys will be held at Lake Wawayanda. The work in small towns is being vigorously pushed and many corresponding members secured. Sections have been organized at several points.

The state finances are in good condition. The last two years have closed without debt.

NEW YORK

As in former reports made to the International Committee so now the Empire State reports continued and increasing progress in all lines of work for young men within its borders. The total membership at the close of 1900 was 42,523, divided as follows: in city and town associations, 25,451; in railroad associations, 9,117; among students, 2,404; in boys' branches, 5,180; in sections, 371. This membership is comprised in 165 associations and branches.

Over 6,500 religious meetings for men and boys were held in 1900 with a total attendance of 336,000, while for men there were held 4,241 Bible classes, and for boys 1,230, with an attendance of over 120,000, while the total attendance at the rooms and buildings for religious purposes shows a weekly average of over 8,700.

Twenty reading rooms are provided with a daily average attendance of 7,600. Eighty-six libraries are equipped with 168,068 volumes. The 316 evening classes show a membership of 3,998 students, while 758 lectures and popular talks were given in 1900.

The boys' departments have increased in number to 63, while the quality of work done has increased greatly. Nineteen secretaries give all or a portion of their time to boys' work. Three boys' camps were maintained under the supervision of the state committee: at Camp Dudley on Lake Champlain, the central camp at Sodus Bay on Lake Ontario, and the western camp on Lake Chautauqua. The attendance at the camps was 420 boys and leaders. There were also five local camps. The expenses of these camps were fully met and a balance left for increased equipment.

There are 18 buildings owned or occupied by railroad branches valued at over $565,000. The membership is 9,117. Rest-rooms are provided by 20 associations, which were used 118,648 times during 1900. Over 8,300 lunches and meals were served weekly to railroad men, and the use of the bath-room shows a weekly average of 1,900.

Digitized by Google

Associations in 36 college institutions have a student membership of 2,404. Buildings worth $157,000 are now owned or occupied at five institutions, while others are being provided at Union College and Columbia University. There are 372 students enrolled in voluntary Bible classes.

As for many years past, tents were provided and maintained at the state military camp at Peekskill. The daily average attendance was over 350. Excellent results followed the religious meetings and entertainments which were held. New developments came in 1900, and now work is being done at six government posts within this state. A fine new building was opened October 10, 1900, at Governor's Island, a gift from William E. Dodge. The navy department work of the International Committee showed marked advance during past year. The Brooklyn naval branch building is being erected at a cost of $400,000, the gift of Miss Helen Gould through the Women's Auxiliary of the International Committee.

Seventy-six gymnasiums are in use, and fifty-two physical directors and assistants are employed by associations. Twenty-five associations in this state are connected with the Association Athletic League of North America.

Sixty-three buildings owned by the associations are valued at $4,462,437, while miscellaneous property, endowment funds, building funds paid in and amounting to $1,102,486, make a total of $5,564,923, from which, however, must be deducted debts amounting to $920,265. A vigorous move has been made to reduce mortgage debts, especially at Rochester, Troy, Syracuse, Corning and New York. New buildings were added during the last two years at Kingston, Jamestown, Saratoga Springs, West Albany railroad and Seventy-second Street and Melrose Junction railroad branches, New York City. The Melrose Junction branch was provided jointly by Mrs. J. M. Toucey and the New York Central Railroad, the latter road also providing the Seventy-second Street branch.

The associations of the state during past two years spent $1,122,996 in the prosecution of this great work in all its departments; and employed 112 general secretaries, 84 assistant secretaries and secretaries of boys' departments, 11 librarians and educational directors, 52 physical directors and assistants.

The expense of state work for past two years has been but $27,970, and despite this small cost the prosecution of the work under the continued able and energetic management of State Secretaries Fred. S. Goodman and George A. Hall and Office Secretary Fred. F. Calyer, and their several assistants, with the help of the state committee, has been vigorous and greatly successful in all possible ways. To help along the state work an effort is making to raise a fund of $25,000 to be called the "George A. Hall Endowment Fund," in commemoration of the quarter-centennial of Mr. Hall's services as state secretary.

on the part of the International Committee and the state committee; a very competent secretary is in charge. Otherwise the secretarial force is unchanged. No association has been discontinued and one new point has been won. The older associations both in towns and in colleges have been unusually efficient and several have been blessed with revivals. Everything points to substantial progress the next year.

GEORGE B. HANNA, Cor. Mem.

NORTH DAKOTA

The association work in North Dakota during the past two years has merely held its own. At the present we have three college associations, one of which was organized in January, 1901. The associations at Grand Forks and Fargo are the only two town associations now open; both have paid secretaries. They are slowly but steadily advancing; and are doing an excellent, all-round work; especially is this true of Grand Forks.

The partial failure of crops in this state last year has very largely effected the extension of the city as well as the state work.

The association at Devil's Lake closed its doors some time last summer for want of financial support.

We have no state organization and have held no conventions during the past two years. Young men's Sundays were held during the summer of 1899 in several of the smaller towns.

H. AMERLAND, Cor. Mem.

OHIO

The city associations of Ohio have increased their efficiency and enlarged their service to the twenty-two cities in which they are located. Marion has reached the limit of its capacity—800 members. Cleveland has secured a new property to be devoted entirely to boys' work—perhaps the first in the country. Piqua has reduced its mortgage, cleared up its current debt and reorganized its forces. Springfield will dedicate in June a $75,000 building. Membership has grown until a total of almost 20,000 has been reached. The evident growth of educational work indicates the wisdom of having one of our secretaries devote considerable time to its supervision.

The seven railroad associations have grown in members and in usefulness. Columbus has doubled its membership the past year. Bellefontaine railroad department, on the "Big Four," our newest organization, opened an attractive building January 10, 1901. There is no more hopeful feature of our work than the promise of these seven railroad departments.

The college associations number thirty-six. Their work has broadened and has become more practically helpful. College secretaries are for the first time employed at Ohio State and Ohio Wesleyan universities. An intercollegiate department in Cleveland also employs a secretary.

The state gatherings of the past two years have been strong. The business men's conference in Columbus is considered worthy of repetition this year. The biennial convention at Findlay had an unusual attendance and influence. A building fund in that city followed the convention.

Fewer secretarial changes have occurred during the past two years

than formerly. Outside of East Liverpool, where a vacancy exists, the secretaries are capable and successful. Their loyalty to state and international work has been shown by continuous cooperation and special aid in emergencies.

During the past year State Secretary W. A. Kling felt constrained to resign his office. The state committee united in a testimonial appreciative of his long and efficient service. H. A. Wilbur, for several years our faithful college secretary, has filled the place thus left vacant to the satisfaction of the state association. The state secretarial force is harmonious and competent. The removal of state headquarters to Columbus in February gives us a central location which facilitates travel and relieves our secretaries.

Obligation to the International Committee is acknowledged for the assistance of field, railroad, and college secretaries. The assistance of C. C. Michener in finances was of particular value.

J. W. WALTON, Cor. Mem.

OREGON—IDAHO

The association work in the states of Oregon and Idaho have shown much progress during the years of 1899 and 1900.

At thirteen colleges and universities the work has made steady advance in number of members, intensity of work, and in quality of Bible and mission work. Much inspiration and help has come from the annual student conference at Pacific Grove, Cal. Twenty-three men from the schools of the Pacific Northwest attended the last conference. The visits of International College Secretary E. T. Colton and Mr. Leavitt, secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, have been of incalculable value to the work. At the Oregon State University at Eugene they are now engaged in a canvass to raise $10,000 to erect a building on the college campus.

The railroad association at Pocatello, Ida., the only one on the Pacific coast, has perhaps the most congested work on the field. In the comparatively small rented rooms they have a membership of over 500 that is steadily increasing. They are anticipating having a building in the near future.

The city associations now number five, with one more in process of organization, all being secretarial points. The new association in Boise, Ida., has raised $10,000 for a building and the first year's work. The Salem, Ore., association was forced out of its rented rooms on account of the noise made by the gymnasium and its officers are now raising $10,000 to secure a building, with good prospects of success. At Oregon City the work has been much hampered by a $3,000 debt, but a canvass is now on that will pay the most of this and the prospects are good for a strong work in the future. Early in 1900 an association was organized and a good equipment secured for an association at Marshfield, Ore., seventy-two miles from the nearest railroad. This is a very deserving field with almost no Christian men in the city and a large number of saloons and evil resorts running full blast all the time. The Portland association has been wonderfully blessed during the past two years in all departments.

Digitized by Google

The membership has remained above the 1,000 point. All current bills have been promptly met and the association has sought to be of help to the work throughout the Northwest.

The first convention of the Oregon-Idaho associations was held at Eugene in December and was marked by the outpouring of a great spiritual blessing upon the university and upon the delegates and attendants. Money was raised and steps taken for a permanent traveling secretary to supervise the work in the two states.

I cannot close this report without again bearing witness to the invaluable aid that has been constantly given by the International Committee through the advice and visits of its secretaries, C. K. Ober, C. S. Ward and Fred B. Smith. Mr. Smith's visit to the associations of these states marked a real religious awakening wherever he went. Hundreds of young men professed conversion and the general religious and Bible study work was greatly quickened. The Portland association also feels much indebted for the advice received from George B. Hodge in the Educational Department.

The prospect for the future of the work in these two states was never brighter. While fully realizing the fearful temptations that surround the young men in these states, the leaders of these associations are looking unto Him who overcame the world to lead them in their fight against the forces that destroy.

H. W. Stone, Acting Cor. Mem.

PENNSYLVANIA

A survey of the work in Pennsylvania shows marked progress along the lines as compared with my report two years ago. It is especially noticeable in the liquidation of debts, and in the acquisition of homes by the associations. The associations at Sharpsburg, Warren, and Butler paid off their entire indebtedness of $12,000, $26,000, and $10,000 respectively. Reading has paid $20,000 on building debt, and Erie has $5,400 pledged. Bloomsburg, Du Bois, railroad, Tarentum, West Chester, and Steelton have either purchased or erected permanent homes. The splendid new home of the Lancaster association, to cost $160,000, is rapidly nearing completion. The first meetings held in the auditorium were those of our thirty-third state convention. Scranton has broken ground for her magnificent new home, to cost $265,000, all but $8,000 being already pledged. The following associations report building funds pledged: Chester $400; Du Bois, $8,836; Harrisburg, $23,000; West Philadelphia, $25,000; Pittston, $19,000; Shamokin, $23,000; Washington, $23,500; Sewickley, $18,200; Altoona, railroad, $1,300; Scranton, railroad, $3,505, and Tyrone, railroad, $500.

We have now 156 associations (72 city, 21 railroad, and 63 student), a gain of six over our previous report. One hundred and sixty-seven executive officers are employed—85 as general secretaries, 51 as assistants, and 31 as physical directors. This is a gain of six over two years ago, and the largest number ever reported. The total net value of property reported by the associations is $2,970,765. Forty-one associations own their homes, valued at $2,533,900; 29,956 young men are enrolled in the membership (20,348 in cities and towns. 6,607 in railroad associations, and 3,001 in the student associations), and there are 3,100 boys in the junior department.

For the first time in many years, each of the eight districts held a successful convention during the fall and the winter of 1900, a total of 740 delegates being in attendance. The "county work," the organization of which was reported two years ago, has since been enlarged to embrace the anthracite coal region. It is supervised by a committee of men directly interested in anthracite coal mining, with a member of the state executive committee as chairman. Two secretaries are employed all the time, and a third during a portion of the year. Aggressive work is being prosecuted among the miners of this section. As a result of the work 114 men and boys professed conversion in 1900. Some form of permanent work has been established at eleven points, groups of men organized for Bible study, and there are two normal classes for the training of teachers.

The Bible conference has been successfully continued, and a proportionately increasing number of the men in the associations are being helped through this gathering. Don O. Shelton, now of the International Committee's force, has contributed to the practical helpfulness of the conference by conducting the normal training class for the last two conferences. The conference for 1901 will meet at Eagles Mere July 6-14. The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. Arthur T. Pierson and the Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin have been engaged as instructors.

We are under obligations to the International Committee for the helpful cooperation rendered through its secretaries, in the respective departments of the work.

At the encampment of the Pennsylvania national guard in August of 1900 the state committee conducted the usual work for the soldiers, with the most hearty cooperation of the officers. A large tent and a living tent were erected with each brigade. The secretaries of the committee were assisted by thirteen volunteer workers from the associations, eight of these being general secretaries. Fourteen gospel services were attended by 910 soldiers ; 1,601 attended the tents daily ; over 11,000 letters were written. Ninety daily and weekly papers were on file, and 75 magazines and religious periodicals. Each tent was provided with organ, song books, in-door and out-door games, and ice water ; also stationery and pens and ink.

Three bands of workers, equipped with hammocks, blankets, folding organ, song books, testaments, colportage books, and tracts, were sent by the state committee into the lumber sections of Cameron, Potter, and Warren counties. One band was composed of Bucknell College students, one of young men from Harrisburg, and the third was a quartet under the leadership of Charles E. Hurlburt. In the lumber towns house to house visitation was made, resulting in great interest in the meetings. In towns and camps 137 meetings were held, with an attendance of 7,138. Sixty-three colportage books and 113 Bibles were left in the camps for circulation among the men. A total of twenty-five professed faith in Christ as a personal Saviour. Cost of the work, $559.51.

The last two state conventions have greatly stimulated the associations of the state along missionary lines. Indeed, it is probable that the most remarkable development since my last report is the interest in such work. It has already taken definite shape in the support of representatives in the foreign field by the Warren and Philadelphia associations, and in an effort on the part of the associations in the sixth and seventh districts to provide for the support of Arthur Tibbetts in his work among the Sioux Indians. Many other associations are planning to take part in this movement.

We have great reason to rejoice in the growing interest manifested in work for the boys. Fifty of the Pennsylvania associations conduct such work in some form or other, with a junior membership of 3,100. Many of the associations are planning to push this phase of the work more aggressively.

The eighth annual conference of the student association presidents was held at State College in April, 1899, thirty presidents being in attendance. The ninth conference was held at Dickinson College in April, 1900, with thirty-eight presidents attending. Probably no event in the student work so vitally affects the student associations in the state as these conferences, which are really four-day training schools to acquaint the newly elected presidents with the most successful methods, to compare experiences and problems, and to agree upon a policy for the year's work.

It is especially gratifying to be able to report a gain in Bible study, gospel meetings and conversions since our last report. The associations report a gain of fifty per cent in professed conversions.

At the recent state convention at Lancaster, action was taken increasing the membership of the state committee from twenty-four to twenty-seven, and authorizing the state committee to take steps to secure an endowment of $100,000 for state work.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The last two years in the history of the work in South Carolina have been marked by steady progress on almost all lines, particularly in financial matters which have been for some years past rather hard to manage. Our committee had a debt of nearly $900 two years ago, due largely to the army work; not only have all regular expenses been paid promptly, but we expect to have wiped out the debt almost entirely before entering the new year. We feel much encouraged by the interest manifested all over the state.

With regard to work in small towns and county communities the committee is indebted to the International Committee for sending John Lake for a month's work in Edgefield County. But in spite of repeated attempts in that field, it seems that for the time at least Edgefield County work must be suspended, owing to difficult local conditions. We hope at some future date to experiment in a more promising field.

The corresponding member plan was inaugurated one year ago and the results have surpassed our most sanguine expectations. Thirty young men are now serving in this capacity.

Since our last report the association at Columbia has completely reorganized its work and has erected a handsome building. It employs an experienced general secretary and a physical director, and is doing an all-round work on broad lines. There has been a complete change in the employed force at Charleston and a secretary is in charge of the junior department. The Charleston association has shown some striking developments in the educational, physical and junior departments.

Five new college associations have been added to the list and the work in every institution is on a higher plane than before. College presidents throughout the state speak in the highest terms of the value of these student associations. The influence of college graduates who have been developed by this work for active Christian service is now being felt in our state.

Bible study has been emphasized by our leading city associations, the college associations have more men enrolled than in previous years and the courses of study are more systematic.

With only six months of a state secretary's time, the committee has been compelled to adopt a very conservative policy, and very little attention has been given to the organization of new associations in cities or towns; we have rather devoted our efforts to strengthening the state work along financial lines. We rejoice to know that three of our young men have decided to make association work their life occupation, and are to-day employed in other states in various capacities.

The state committee parted regretfully with W. M. Lewis, who for six years did a telling work in South Carolina. We rejoice, however, in the success which is attending his efforts as state secretary in Texas. A. G. Knebel, who for five years had served the Charleston association as its general secretary, succeeded Mr. Lewis, and brought to the service of the committee a mind well trained in all the details of the city work and full of zeal for the service; his success in the state has been extremely gratifying. We have profited by the visits of International Secretary Gates, whose good judgment has helped us in emergencies. Secretaries H. P. Andersen, H. O. Williams, Hugh M. McIlhany and Walter C. Douglas are friends we shall always be glad to see; their coming brings pleasure and profit.

We have in mind for the near future the establishment of an association in Spartanburg and the reorganization of the work in Sumter, hoping to make secretarial points of both these fast growing towns. The Government having established a military post at Sullivan's Island and having given orders for the erection of fine quarters for the garrison, we hope that we may be able to do something for the soldiers there, and the establishment of the naval station in Charleston may also enable us to do something in the way of a work for the sailors.

TENNESSEE

During the past two years the association work in Tennessee has made substantial growth. The efforts of the state committee have been directed towards the development and increased efficiency of the associations already organized rather than towards the organization of new associations. The present number of associations in the state is thirty-two. The number of paid employees has been increased since our last report from five to twenty-one. All of the associations in the larger towns and cities employing general secretaries, are doing a work well organized in the different departments and most excellent results are shown. One of the most marked features is the increase in membership, there being now 3,100 members.

Larger numbers of young men have professed conversion in the association meetings then ever before, not only in the colleges, but in the towns and cities as well; 31,748 men attended the religious meetings last year. 1,397 attended the Bible classes, and 335 professed conversion.

Five of the associations in Tennessee occupy their own buildings and one owns a valuable building lot, free from encumbrance. The Knoxville association occupies an entire rented three story building with basement and has very much enlarged its work. Bristol reports increased membership and growing attendance at the meetings. Chattanooga has recently secured a new gymnasium, made necessary by the increased number of men entering the classes. Both Memphis and Nashville report increased membership and prosperous work. Educational work has been inaugurated at Chattanooga and Nashville, this in addition to the already organized classes reported by Knoxville and Memphis.

Gratifying results have been obtained in the college associations, where we believe better work has been done than ever before. Regular meetings for Bible and mission study have been held. Three new associations have been organized the last year in educational institutions, making nineteen associations organized among students.

The only railroad association in the state, the one at Knoxville, has done excellent work and is in a most flourishing condition. Careful investigation has been made at Nashville, Jackson and Bristol, looking towards establishing railroad departments, and the matter has been submitted to the railroad companies with encouraging prospects.

Young men's Sundays have been observed at a number of points, and in every case with good results. We wish to acknowledge the services and help of the International Committee through its secretaries, Messrs. Hugh McIlhany, jr., Fred B. Smith, C. L. Gates and H. O. Williams.

JAMES H. COWAN, Cor. Mem.

TEXAS

There are now in the state thirty-five associations—thirteen city secretarial points, three town organizations without secretaries, seven railroad and twelve student associations. Important progress has been made in the railroad department, and the cooperation of the railroad companies has resulted in erection of suitable buildings at Temple, Texarkana, Smithville, Cleburne, Ennis, Hillsboro, and one at San Antonio is now building. The growth and good work of these associations has been notable and is most gratifying. The city and college work has kept up well and each year is seeking a more permanent basis. New secretarial associations have been organized at Victoria and McKinney. In September, 1900, Galveston was visited by the terrible storm, seriously injuring the association building, crippling its resources—taking away many of its members—and severely afflicting its general secretary. To the associations and to the International Committee we are deeply grateful for the sympathy and help extended. The Galveston building has now been repaired and an earnest effort is being made to resume actively all of its work.

In June, 1899, J. B. Palmer, who had filled the position of state secretary for about a year, resigned to resume his position as general secretary at Galveston, and W. M. Lewis, then state secretary of Georgia and the Carolinas, was called, beginning his work August 15, 1899.

The state convention was held at Waco. We are very grateful to the International Committee for its assistance and for the help of Messrs. Hicks, Gates, McGill, Shipp, McIlhany and Andersen.

C. F. W. Felt, Cor. Mem.

UTAH

Utah's one association, that at Salt Lake City, maintains a steady, aggressive work in behalf of young men. Other points in the state have been canvassed recently, with a view to establishing associations, but none presents a constituency large enough to justify immediate organization.

Frank Pierce, Cor. Mem.

VERMONT—NEW HAMPSHIRE

The interstate convention held at Brattleboro was marked by great spiritual power and many men found Christ at that time. The convention was organized under the direction of the International Committee through T. T. Hazlewood, special field secretary. A strong program was carried out and the interstate committee was authorized to continue the supervision of the field and to secure a state secretary. This the committee endeavored to do, but was unable to obtain a permanent secretary and arrangements were made with Mr. Hazlewood to give a year's effort with a view so to develop the field as to allow the permanent employment of a supervisory officer. Definite progress has been made, associations have been strengthened and a number of local debts have been paid. The debt of the interstate committee, so long a menace to the work, has been wiped out.

Early in the year the acting state secretary suggested a plan whereby the young men in the small towns could be reached, and he was authorized to secure a man for this work. Austin H. Roby was chosen and he proved to be the right one to undertake it. In seven months 33 towns have been entered and over 100 men have signified a desire to follow Christ; over 8,000 people have had the association work presented to them and corresponding members have been secured. In each town a constituency has been built up to support this special work, and in addition Mr. Roby has given assistance in the general work.

One new railroad association has been organized at Woodsville, largely through the efforts of the Railroad Department of the International Committee. The Boston & Maine Railroad leased the building, fitted it up at an expense of $1,500, and gives liberally to the support of the work.

During the encampment of the New Hampshire national guard at Concord the committee maintained a tent on the grounds. Over 700 letters were written in four days and there were over 3,000 visits to the tent.

The Nashua association has moved into the building purchased two years ago. Portsmouth owns a lot valued at $7,000 and has $9,000 pledged towards a building. Concord has removed its debt of $2,800. St. Johnsbury has reopened its building and has sufficient funds pledged for the year's work. Brattleboro has removed all of its old indebtedness. Keene has reduced its mortgage indebtedness to $7,000. Active work at Laconia has been suspended, but the association has $1,000 invested which will serve as a nucleus for a larger work in the future. The association at Dartmouth College has been much strengthened by securing Philip C. Walcott as general secretary at that point.

The other associations are in a stronger position than they have occupied for some time. Competent secretaries and physical directors have been secured to fill ten vacancies during the year. Altogether the results of the supervisory work warrant a continuance of the present plan even on more aggressive lines. WM. P. FISKE, Cor. Mem.

VIRGINIA

Forty-eight associations in the state—18 city and town, 23 college, five railroad, one army, and one mining.

Advanced step in the line of buildings—three now nearing completion—Virginia Polytechnic Institute (first college association building in the state) to cost $20,000; Portsmouth to cost $30,000, and Newport News to cost $15,000.

One secretarial point gained—South Boston; money raised for first year's expenses; neat quarters to be opened, and general secretary employed.

No convention was held in 1899; after all plans had been made convention had to be called off on account of smallpox prevalent in proposed place of meeting.

The twenty-third state convention met at Hampton, February 15–18, 1900, with 184 delegates. The International Committee was represented by Messrs Williams, Gates and McIlhany.

As college secretary, G. Mebane Smith rendered valuable service from July 15, 1899, until his death, November 14, 1900. State Secretary L. A. Coulter and Office Secretary W. Reginald Walker have continued with the committee.

During the past year there were marked spiritual awakenings at the University of Virginia, at Hampden-Sidney College, Emory and Henry College, and at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Valuable service has been rendered to the work in the state by Secretaries H. O. Williams, H. M. McIlhany, Jr., and John R. Mott, of the International Committee.

Facts from reports for 1900: Total membership of associations, 7,152; 477 different students in educational classes of eight associations; nine associations report special work for boys (more attention will be given to the development of this line of effort); 13 associations have gymnasiums, and 17 have bathing facilities; 29 libraries contain 17,806 volumes; total valuation of 16 buildings $290,450. WASHINGTON

In December, 1899, the Seattle association successfully completed a canvass for $36,000 to pay off all indebtedness and to make needed improvements. A much enlarged membership and more vigorous department work has resulted. In June, 1900, a canvass for a $5,000 building fund for a proposed association at Everett, Wash., occupied but six weeks, and May 1, 1901, the building was dedicated with a large membership and a property worth $7,000.

Walla Walla, Whatcom and Aberdeen and some other points are nearly ready for organizations that will live.

In regard to the work accomplished in the associations it may be said that it was never better than during 1900, especially in the distinctively spiritual work and the educational work.

In the college department the advance is very marked. In Bible class enrollment there has been a large increase. A general secretary has been installed at the University of Washington.

In August, 1900, a movement was satisfactorily consummated to divide the supervisory work over the Pacific Northwest, so that now there is a state committee for Washington, with headquarters at Seattle, and a state committee for Oregon and Idaho, with headquarters at Portland, Ore.

A. J. Burroughs, Cor. Mem.

WISCONSIN

It is gratifying to note the substantial progress of the association work in Wisconsin during the last two years. The state committee is entirely free from debt, with an ample provision made for the expenses of the present year. The buildings at Waukesha and Marinette have been reopened, and the associations at both points are doing good work with generous provision for current expenses for years to come. Kenosha has erected a building at the cost of $30,000, free from debt. Janesville has added a dormitory which cost about $7,000. The buildings at Oshkosh and Kaukauna have been remodeled and very much improved. Plans are now in hand to remove debts aggregating $30,000 on four buildings in our state. West Superior is making a canvass to organize an association. New associations at Brodhead and Antigo are in a flourishing condition. Work in the small towns and country districts is rapidly taking shape, and we are more confident that this department presents safe and sure results for the future. Intelligent and aggressive work is being done by the college associations. The Lake Geneva conferences have done much to stimulate and make effective the work among college men. The progress in educational work is marked in many associations. Bible study has received a new impetus. The boys' work in the summer camp and in the interest and enthusiasm at many points shows a marked advance.

Two valuable state conventions have been held—at Green Bay in 1899, and at Janesville in 1900. The one at Janesville was next to the largest ever held in our state. The associations are well manned and we find many more of our business men interested than ever before. The general interest in the work has deepened; the young men are more responsive, and support the association more liberally. We wish gratefully to acknowledge the aid of the International Committee in sending to us in conference and convention, Secretaries C. J. Hicks, Robert Weidensall, E. L. Hamilton, Fred B. Smith, C. C. Michener, C. K. Ober and E. M. Robinson. They have done us much good by their counsel and cooperation in the solution of many problems. We have twenty local associations, three railroad and seven college, with thirty-one men employed as general secretaries and assistants.

Young Men's Christian Association organizations on board ship. During the year, naval associations were organized on board the Kentucky, Kearsarge, Massachusetts, Constellation, Brooklyn, Buffalo, New York and Hartford.

Temperance League. The Temperance League of the Naval Young Men's Christian Association was organized and up to July 1, it was estimated over 2,000 had joined. Judging from the requisitions for the badges, the number on the roll December 31, 1900, exceeds 3,000. Leagues have been formed on board the U. S. ships Adams, Buffalo, Dixie, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts and Richmond; the receiving ships Vermont and Wabash, and at the training stations at Newport and San Francisco. The Navy Department has approved this movement and authorizes the wearing of the badge.

Stereopticons. Stereopticon outfits consisting of electrical lantern, 25 lectures, and 550 slides illustrating war ships, American history, science, countries, etc,, have been placed on board the battle ships Kearsarge, Kentucky, Massachusetts, and the cruiser Buffalo. The Navy Department has borne the major part of the expense of these outfits.

Libraries. By the kindness of the Women's Auxiliary of the International Committee, provision has been made for installing small libraries on board a few of the ships for the use of the men. Such libraries consisting of about fifty volumes each, are now on board the Scorpion, Kearsarge, Vicksburg, Buffalo, Massachusetts, and two on the Kentucky.

Bulletins. In November, 1900, the plan was inaugurated of sending out bulletins of clippings from the best sheets, including scientific and service papers, the clippings being mounted on manila paper 24 x 36 inches and arranged in nine columns. The bulletins have been mailed weekly to the following ships: The training ship Constellation and the U. S. ships Alabama, Chicago, Kentucky, Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Kearsarge, New York and Newark. Supplement bulletins consisting of selections from the best illustrated articles in the current magazines are also sent. The cost of these bulletins is defrayed by the Women's Auxiliary of the International Committee.

At San Juan many vessels were furnished with magazines, colportage books, etc. The men in the hospital were supplied with daily papers and magazines. See statistics under Porto Rico.

Membership of the army and navy association at Manila is larger now because longer liberty is granted and more sailors are visiting there.

Cavite naval station has a building provided by the government officials for the use of the marines, sailors and soldiers. See statistics under Manila.

Havana reports visits to U. S. S. New York, Texas, Machias and Detroit with stationery and literature.

At the Seamen's Bethel, Manila, two religious meetings were held each week, and stationery and literature provided. At Guam, Olongapo, Subig Bay, Luzon, and Pollok, Mindanao, stationery and literature were supplied, and at Port Isabella, Basitan Island, weekly religious meetings were held from June to November 25, with a total attendance of 250. Stationery and literature were supplied.

While in the Philippines and Chinese waters during the year, U. S. Flagship Brooklyn, U. S. ships Glacier, Isla de Luzon, Monocacy, Monadnock, New Orleans, Newark, Yosemite and the Petrel were visited and provided with stationery and literature.

At Tongku, China, a reading room was established on a U. S. launch and carried on from November 5 to the end of the year.

Partial reports have also been received from the following points:

UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN

Newspapers and Magazines,

ONTARIO, OHIO,

Publisher and Proprietor of the Y. M. C. A. Guide to Reading Room Literature for the Exclusive use of Young Men's Christian Associations, Colleges and Public Libraries.

THE only agency in America that caters exclusively to the wants of the Reading Room.

The Cheapest Supply House for Periodicals in the world.

Our prices are lower than the lowest, and supplying Y. M. C. A. Reading Rooms our specialty.

If Secretaries of Reading Room Committees will forward us a list of such publications as wanted, we will make an estimate of cost below anything they have from others, and promptly return with other special features.

Of the many hundred estimates made for reading rooms during the winter of 1900-1901, nearly all were accepted by committees, and orders sent us to be filled.

Our arrangements are such that we supply to our patrons complimentary copies of many such new publications, as they appear, as are worthy the patronage of Associations.

We supply many Associations, to whom we will gladly refer you when asked. What our patrons say :—

Mar. 8, '98—Permit me to express my sincere gratitude for your prompt attention and in every way satifactory service.
T. A. HILDRETH, Gen. Sec'y, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dec. 16, '97—Your services are eminently satisfactory, and I wish to thank you for your courtesy in attending to all our requests, and especially for the financial arrangement which simplifies matters for us appreciably.
INENE A. HACKETT, Librarian, Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Jan 11--We are pleased with your prompt and business-like methods.
THE Y. M. C. A., Cleveland, Ohio.

Jan. 16—Our interests have been looked after with the greatest satisfaction to all.
H. D. DICKSON, Gen'l Sec'y, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dec. 22—Here is our own for 1901. YOU always get it.
J. F. OATES, Sec'y, Central Dep't, Chicago, Ill.

April 23—If you care to use my name in printed matter at any time, you have my permission. BEN. M. LEWIS, East Side Dep't, New York City.

May 20, '96—I feel like expressing my gratitude for the service you render; by careful comparison I find your rates are always low and often lower than any other agency. Sincerely yours, G. C. HUNTINGTON, Gen'l Sec'y, Y.M.C.A., Pueblo, Colo.

This new invention makes 100 copies of any writing or drawing in 20 minutes, and is the cleanest, cheapest, simplest and most reliable duplicating apparatus made. Requires no washing; any boy can work it. From an original, on any ordinary paper, with any pen, 100 copies can be made; or, with an original written on the typewriter, 50 copies can be produced, quickly and without trouble, in 15 minutes. The ease, with which copies of letters, circulars, price-lists, examination papers, drawings, specifications, music, etc., can be reproduced in various colors at one operation, makes it invaluable. Thoughts for the Occasion.

Patriotic and Secular. Historical Data, Facts and Best Thoughts, for the Fourteen Holiday and Timely Occasions of the calendar year, for the Home, School and Library.

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, writes: "Your book happily meets a want frequently felt by speakers who are called upon to address an audience upon all sorts of occasions and have little time to look up the literature bearing upon the subject. The book presents in condensed form suggestions which would indicate to an orator in a few minutes the spirit of many of our important celebrations."

THE CHANGING

VIEW-POINT

IN

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

By

HENRY THOMAS COLESTOCK, A.M., B.D.

Sometime Fellow in the University of Chicago.

What is the essential distinction between the older and the newer religious thought? Mr. Colestock, answers this in one word. It is wholly one of view-point. When the artist changes his point of view, he sees the landscape differently. So is it in thinking on religious subjects. The older thought approaches the religious experience from one point of view; the newer thought approaches the same realities from another point of view.

The work is constructive; its object is to furnish or aid the reader to find a satisfactory view-point from which the religious experience can be interpreted in view of all that is true in modern thought.

"This book contains much plain talking, for which I offer no defense. Its justification will be found in the body of the work designed to furnish the non-professional man with a knowledge which he cannot afford to be without of matters pertaining to the sexual sphere.

Science strips all draperies from the objects it examines and, in the search after truth, sees no indecorum in any earnest line of study, and recognizes no impropriety in looking at objects under an intense light and in good focus."—Author's Preface.

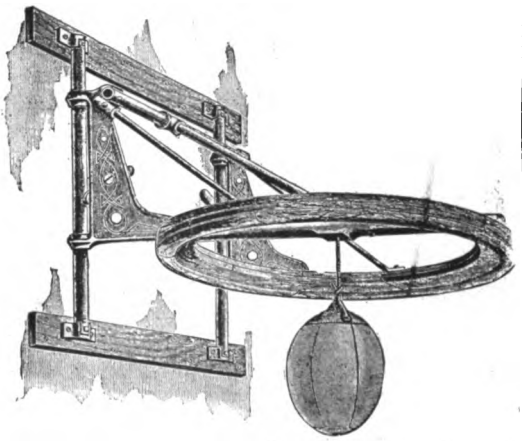
THE MOLINE STRIKING BAG PLATFORM



Endorsed by the Leading Professional Bag Punchers

No. 1.
MOLINE PLATFORM
$10.00.
Bag is not included in above price.

THE most delightfully exhilarating indoor exercise is unquestionably that of vigorously punching a light, inflated bag against a reliable, responsive disc. It has, unfortunately, been deterred from occupying its proper place as a home exercise by its unwieldy size, weight and general unsuitability of the ordinary gymnasium disc and its many useless substitutes.

Our Moline Platform is adjustable in height, readily attached to any wall, and the side bracket so arranged that it touches three rows of studding.

Neat in design and handsomely finished, it in no way detracts from the appearance of the room, does not obstruct the light, and overcomes many other objectionable features of the old style disc usually costing double the price.

The new and exclusive feature in this platform offers a wide range of clever combinations and scientific work. Each platform is supplied with everything necessary for attaching to wall, and crated ready for shipment.

"A warmth of feeling, quickness of intellect and common sense which should make them acceptable not only within but beyond the circle of assent to the doctrines involved in them."—The Dial, Chicago. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50

LIFE OF HENRY DRUMMOND

DR. GEORGE ADAM SMITH

Third edition. With Frontispiece in photogravure. 8vo, pp. 941. $3.00

"What makes his biography admirable is his fairness in dealing with Drummond's intellectual product and in his loving appreciation of the man. We lay down the book with the feeling that nothing that Drummond wrote is so morally inspiring as his character, and especially the simplicity with which he met more than once the temptations of a great and sudden fame."—The Nation.

DWIGHT L. MOODY

By HENRY DRUMMOND

With an Introduction by DR. GEORGE ADAM SMITH

"Every one who loves and admires Mr. Moody will feel grateful for the publication of this kindly review of his character and life."—The Living Church.

With a portrait of Mr. Moody in photogravure and decorated head and tail pieces. 12mo. $1.00

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT GENESIS

By DR. ELWOOD WORCESTER

Rector of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia

Recent discoveries in Babylonia have increased our knowledge of a period which is of great historical interest, and Dr. Worcester has given thorough and reverent treatment to this and other developments of modern times. The work is illustrated by photographs which throw more light on the subject.

Illustrated. Cloth, 12mo. $2.00

THE LIFE OF THE MASTER

REV. DR. JOHN WATSON

Illustrated in colors of black and white from pictures made in Palestine especially for this work, by Corwin Knapp Linson. 8 vo. In press about $3.00

Dr. John Watson, better known as Ian Maclaren, has produced in the "Life of the Master," a work deeply reverential in feeling, noble in sympathy, and pregnant in meaning. It has been prepared with the full knowledge of a scholar, but its scholarship is never obtrusive. Dr Watson's method is to take the vital and human results of learning and to use them in enriching and illuminating the narrative. Thus the holy story remains simple indeed under Dr. Watson's treatment, though it is enhanced by the new light of scholarship.

POPULARITY INDICATES MERIT.

PIERCE POPULARITY
Is Proven by the Number of

SEEN ON THE ROAD.

CAPTAIN C. P. STAUBACH, Manager of N. Y. Journal Century Run, Saturday, June 16th, 1900, gives official record :

1,100 Riders. 653 Registered Name of Wheel. 210 Different Makes.

THE NINE HIGHEST WERE:

92 PIERCE,	23 CRESCENT,	20 TRIBUNE,
40 CLEVELAND,	22 ORIENT,	20 COLUMBIA,
25 RAMBLER,	21 SPALDING,	18 CRAWFORD.

No effort was made by us to increase the number of Pierce Riders, and as this is similar to the showing of the 1899 run, it indicates a lead that our competitors cannot shake.
